Another Lynching.
To Discourage Kidnapers.
Hard to Please All.
Get the Right Labels.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE STORY of the latest lynching is unpleasant, and arouses sympathy, not so much with the victim, dragged through the streets of the town by a rope attached to his neck at the rear end of an automobile, hanged, and his body burned, as with the mob, men, women and children, "packed so closely about the fire that burned the Negro's body that the police could not fight their way through."

The victim, it is alleged, had confessed his crime, for which no punishment that human beings might properly inflict could be too great.

The dreadful part of the whole performance is its revelation of human nature, when you "scratch through the surface."

A WHITE boy of eighteen cutting off the Negro's ear while he was still alive and helpless scarcely proves the superiority of his race, and, most amazing, in the South, where respect for women is great, the Associated Press reports:

"Under the oak tree, despite the presence of women and children, all the victim's clothes were torn from his body, and he hung there for some minutes nude."

THERE IS consolation in the knowledge that a mob's actions do not accurately represent the character of individuals that make up the mob. Members of a mob are as different from their ordinary selves as dogs hunting in a pack from an individual dog by the fireside.

You realize it when you read, also from the Associated Press dispatch:

"The mob members seemed crazed, continually leaping on the Negro, even after he fell to the ground and was unable to rise."

The late Prof. Shaler of Harvard, in his book, "The Mob," declares that under sufficient provocation even a group of clergymen might be transformed into a lynching mob.

Those that tortured, hanged and burned that Negro are to be considered as a mob only, not as representing any race or section. The world saw such mobs, on a bigger scale, during the World War.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and his Department of Justice deserve thanks for their energy in discouraging kidnaping. Sending eight or nine kidnapers to jail for life is effective discouragement.

Now the President orders an intensive investigation be made of the Lindbergh kidnaping. Kidnapers, present and to come, would be influenced, beneficially, by conviction of the Lindbergh criminals even at this late date.

AN ABLE police official of Chicago, who worked on the horrible Loeb-Leopold murder, believes that Col. Lindbergh's child was abducted and murdered by one or more depraved students, as a "stunt crime."

Mr. Capone told this writer, who visited him in the Chicago prison:

"The Lindbergh baby was not abducted by any regular mob. They wouldn't be so foolish. That was the work of some crazy fool working by himself."

CHARLES W. BRYAN, governor of Nebraska, brother of William Jennings Bryan, fears what "farmers' unrest may lead to." He says:

"It is bringing on a condition we cannot shut our eyes to."

He and the farmers, whom Gov. Bryan describes as a "seething mass of unrest," denounce what they call the "policy of pouring money in at the top."

The government is buying tens of millions of dollars worth of pigs, will buy millions of pounds of butter, plus millions of dozens of eggs and much beef, to be given away. That surely is pouring money into the pocket of the farmer, or does it go elsewhere?

TWO MEN on Tuesday died after drinking bad whisky, made of poisonous alcohol.

The end of prohibition will not end such whisky, for heavy taxes undoubtedly will continue the possibilities of bootleg profit.

Whatever you drink, beer, wine or the stronger drinks, be sure to select a respectable label for your protection. Names of well-known, respectable brewers, wine growers and distillers will give you protection, if you insist on having them.

JOE CRAWFORD, of Morehead, Ky., past his hundredth year, decided it was about time to die, and started digging his grave. He never finished digging. When he failed to return to his work, neighbors found his body, finished the digging and buried him.

There is no fine monument, and there will be nothing in histories, encyclopedias, or the "lives of great men," about him. But Joe Crawford lived his 100 years, did his share of the world's work as it came to him, obeyed the law, behaved himself, helped his neighbors, injured nobody.

In the Angel Gabriel's book, his name is perhaps written as large as the name of Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini or even Christopher Columbus or Genghis Khan.

MAN NERVED BY LIQUOR HANGED

Takes Last Drink and Mounts Gallows With Smile

International News Service.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 20.—Smacking his lips over his last drink of whisky, Dallas Egan, Los Angeles slayer, turned off a "blues" record on a little, squeaky phonograph here today and smilingly went to his death on the gallows.

The gray-haired, 38-year-old man who shot an Olympic games visitor from Michigan during the holdup of a jewelry store, walked rapidly from his "death cage" to the gallows, mounted the 13 steps steadily, stepped under the rope and smiled as the black hood dropped over his face, to be followed by the noose and death.

BOTTLE DRAINED

The eight-ounce bottle of whisky, which was given him yesterday by Dr. L. L. Stanley, acting warden, depleted the condemned man greeted his guards almost gaily at they came to give him the last drink which he had requested of Dr. Stanley earlier today. He said:

"Well, boys, this will make things a lot better."

He took a small bottle, poured out its contents into a tin cup, and asked:

"Won't someone join me?"

Gov. James Rolph, Jr., granted Egan's last request, that he be given whisky. Egan had refused to seek executive clemency.

GOVERNOR'S ORDER

Gov. Rolph ordered Acting Prison Warden Dr. L. L. Stanley:

"Give him all he can safely stand up under."

Taking his liquor straight, Egan smiled and said:

"It's great stuff. Thank the Governor for me."

Egan also consumed oyster soup and played jazz records on the phonograph during his last night on earth—but the Kentucky bourbon pleased him most.

Slayer Goes to Chair, Breaks Up Card Game

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Ted Patton, the 25-year-old slayer for whom more than 2,000 persons sought executive clemency, paid the extreme penalty with a Negro attacker at state's prison shortly after midnight.

Patton, who killed his 19-year-old boyhood chum, Robert Wall, died in the electric chair five minutes after the shouting Negro, Charles Dumas, had been pronounced dead.

The youth claimed he killed Wall in self defense.

His execution ended a friendly rivalry at cards between him and Earl Quinn, sentenced to die next month for the slaying of two sisters, Jessie and Zexia Griffith, school teachers. Quinn said:

"Patton has got 30 games on me. I have been trying to get him a stay so I can get even."

PLAYBOY'S WIFE GETS RICHES

Marguerite Heasley McCready, divorced wife No. 2, of playboy Harrison R. McCready, is approximately $38,000 richer today in real estate.

The deeds, one for a two-story brick dwelling at 5609 Penn avenue, and another for two lots in Fox Chapel Manor, O'Hara township, have been recorded in her name at the Allegheny County recorders office.

Asked about the property grant at her home, 5810 Hays street, the attractive 24-year-old girl said:

"I won't answer questions and I won't tell you a thing!

McCready, who calls himself the "reformed playboy," said the properties are worth $38,000. He added:

"It was a pre-divorce settlement. It will help to take care of her."

The deeds, filed by Raymond M. Worley, East End real estate man, state that the properties are the same which McCready and his first wife, Margaret L. McCready deeded to him October 21, 1930. Worley handles McCready's real estate interests.

M'NAIR GETS MACKRELL SUPPORT

Herron Foe in Primary Bolts G. O. P. on Eve Of Party's Rally

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, long-time Republican and follower of the late Senator M. G. Leslie, today declared support of William N. McNair, Democratic candidate for Mayor.

Mackrell, a candidate against Mayor John S. Herron for the Republican mayoralty nomination in the recent primary, asserted he was being consistent in his present position, as he was continuing the fight against what he described as the domination of Senator James J. Coyne in municipal affairs.

The declaration of the Register of Wills, coming on the eve of the North Side Republican rally tonight, caused a sensation in political circles, as many of his closest friends had predicted he would remain silent during the campaign. Mackrell said today that silence for him was not possible in view of his primary platform, and he asked all who supported him in the primary to follow him into the McNair camp.

Mackrell's indorsement was confined to McNair, and did not mention the remainder of the Democratic ticket. In supporting McNair, Mackrell joins with Leslie M. Johnson, Francis S. Guthrie, Mrs. Templeton Smith and Grant Curry, members of the Citizens League which fought him in the primary.

MACKRELL STATEMENT

Mackrell said he still stood for the principles he enunciated in the primary, and believed they

M'DADE SEES WIFE BURIED

Edward J. McDade, 24-year-old movie theater owner, today went handcuffed to the funeral of his young wife in whose death he is being held for action by a Coroner's jury.

While he bowed his head in memory of the wife, Grace, who died after falling or jumping from his automobile, two homicide detectives stood beside him. Detectives had sworn out an information against him on a morality charge.

At almost the same hour, McDade's 16-year-old sweetheart, Mary K. Danahey, was returned by detectives to her parents. Taking her back home, her brother, Earl Danahey, said:

"This has been a lesson to her."

She had protested her love for McDade ever since she was held for questioning to clear up Mrs. McDade's fatal leap.

Funeral services for the young mother of two children were held at the George F. Smith funeral parlors, with burial in Uniondale Cemetery.

ROOSEVELT TO RULE ON MINE ROW

Strikers Wait Order By President to End Frick Strife

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—That President Roosevelt is about to take a hand in enforcing the bituminous coal code upon operators of captive mines was indicated by developments early today.

NRA officials admitted the whole matter is now up to the White House since the impasse between President Thomas Moses, of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers.

The situation is acute.

President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers early today had a long distance telephone conference with Murray and it is known that President Roosevelt has been advised of all developments. Action in the matter is momentarily expected.

PICKETS ON GUARD

Pickets maintained watch before the captive coal mines of Western Pennsylvania, as 20,000 miners today awaited word from President Roosevelt on negotiations between the United Miners Workers of America and owners of the captive mines.

The last meeting of Moses and Murray was held Thursday of last week and lasted little more than 10 minutes. Previously, the Iron and Steel Institute, representing captive mine owners, had offered as a basis of settlement the voluntary check-off. This, it was understood, was taken as a satisfactory beginning by Murray.

Then, before they had hardly begun, the parleys were snapped off.

Meanwhile, thousands of miners from the commercial operations with union contracts, on "holiday" in sympathy with strikers of the captive pits, have returned to work at the President's command. The procession into the pits continued today. Only a few commercial mines still remain closed.

MINES RESUMING

Three of the larger mines in the Connellsville coke region today were preparing to resume, and practically all of the smaller op-

LEGION BACKING SUNDAY SPORTS

Steadily growing support of the Sunday sports bill to be voted on November 7 was announced today by two leaders of the American Legion in Pennsylvania, Otto F. Messner, state Legion commander, and Ben Giffin, newly elected commander of East Liberty Post No. 5.

After a conference today with William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, they announced:

"We have received a mandate from our national convention which recently met in Chicago to begin a campaign for the passage of this Sunday sports local option legislation. This morning we received a promise of co-operation from Mr. Benswanger.

"Also we have the promise of support from Philadelphia's two ball clubs."

Benswanger said:

"Of course we are in favor of Sunday baseball, if the people are in favor of it. We think they are."

Mrs. Morin, 24, 5401 Penn avenue, arrested for questioning that police hope will help them in their search for the ice-pick slayers of John Aliberti, found with 60 wounds in his lifeless body. When she was taken, she had just completed a round of East Liberty's Italian colony to solicit funds to pay for Gangster Aliberti's funeral.

'Girl Friend' of Slain Gangster Held; Grill Man

A pretty brunette, described as the "girl friend" of John Aliberti, slain gangster, was questioned by Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk and county detectives today.

She is Viola Morin, 24, the winner, 10 years ago of a beauty contest held at the Nixon Theater by Earl Carroll in connection with his "Vanities." She told detectives she was a member of the chorus for one week after the contest and was offered a permanent place, but her parents refused to permit her to take the part because of her youth.

She was arrested late yesterday as she returned to her home at 5401 Penn avenue from a day spent in East Liberty's Italian colony soliciting funds to bury the friend of the slain Volpes.

At county detective headquarters, Mrs. Morin, her friend, Catherine Gerdins, 23, of 1231

Those arrested will be given a hearing tomorrow.

U. S. Agents Silent On Lindy Cash Find

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Justice Department officials today declined to comment on reports that a new portion of the Lindbergh ransom money had been discovered.

Such reticence is customary in cases of the kind, officials feeling that to give out details as they develop hinders them in their efforts to apprehend the criminals for whom they are searching.

TWO NATIONS MOVE NEAR ACCORD

Washington, Moscow Await Announcement Of Roosevelt Deals

By LINTON WELLS

(Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.)

MOSCOW, Oct. 20.—The Soviet Foreign Office will make public tonight an exchange of cablegrams between President Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Michael Kalinin, of the All-Union Central Committee of Soviet Russia, which have opened the way for early recognition of the Soviet government by the United States.

International News Service is able to make this exclusive revelation from authoritative sources.

Taking the initiative, according to this information, President Roosevelt is understood to have dispatched a telegram to Kalinin expressing willingness of his administration to open negotiations with the Soviets for the purpose of establishing official relations and effecting an amicable settlement of all outstanding differences.

RECOGNITION RUMOR

Throughout the morning, rumors the United States would formally announce Russian recognition late today spread throughout Moscow, and received a measure of apparent official confirmation on the announcement by the foreign office that a communique, whose subject matter was not made known, would be issued at 11 p. m.

The information obtained by International News Service, however, revealed that the communique would merely detail the exchange of messages between the American and Russian governments.

There appeared little doubt, however, that this publication would reveal that the way has been cleared for early recognition.

Among the obstacles which had previously blocked American recognition of the Soviet government were the long controversy over re-

Morgan, No Longer Sphinx, Talks Freely on England, But Not U. S.

Banker, Interviewed, Silent on NRA and Banking Laws

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. — The world is indeed changing—

J. P. Morgan, the world's best known financial figure, threw overboard his sphinx-like tradition and talked amiably and at length to newspapermen on his return today from Europe.

He recently chased an ambitious photographer down the gangplank. But today the financier smilingly posed for pictures in his cabin on the liner Berengaria with a meerschaum pipe in his hands and a pleasant smile on his face.

For a second, the Morgan smile was replaced with the famous Morgan scowl but the sunshine reappeared quickly behind the clouds.

The financier, before the questioning began, proudly exhibited a companionate pipe to the meerschaum he was smoking.

COMMITTEE TO AID FOREIGN BONDHOLDERS FORMED

ROOSEVELT AIDS IN DRAFTING GROUPS

Statesmen, Financiers Named; Billions At Stake

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today aided in the organization of a voluntary non-governmental committee to protect the interests of American holders of $8,000,000,000 worth of foreign securities.

The committee will undertake the task of co-ordinating the scattered holders of defaulted bonds of foreign issues.

Officers of the State and Treasury departments and the Federal Trade Commission conferred with the committee which will take the place of the government organization proposed by Senator Johnson (Rep.) California, in the Securities Act.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Secretary Hull, who attended the meeting, said further discussion would be held shortly. Of the amount held by Americans, Hull said, approximately $2,000,000,000 of the bonds are in default.

The Secretary of State said he was delighted at the course taken by the discussion. It assured, he added, a high-class permanent organization.

Hull indicated the group would be known as the "American Securities Protective Association."

BAKER IN GROUP

Those attending the conference included Ilaird Bell, of Chicago; Hendon Chubb, New York City; W. L. Clayton, Houston, Tex.; John Cowles, Des Moines, Ia., publisher; Philip La Follette, former Governor of Wisconsin; Herman Ekern, former Attorney General of Wisconsin; Ernest M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College; Mills B. Lane, Savannah, Ga.; Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois; Orrin K. McMurray, dean of law school, University of California; Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan; Thomas D. Thacher, former solicitor general; J. C. Traphagen, New York City, and Quincy Wright, University of Chicago.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War; Charles Francis Adams, former Secretary of the Navy, and J. Reuben Clark, Jr., former ambassador to Mexico, also will be members of the committee.

Senate Launches Probe Of Exchange Members

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Senate stock market investigators decided today after an executive session with brokers and counsel for the New York Stock Exchange to obtain information on market practices through questionnaires submitted directly to brokers instead of through the exchange.

A group of brokers and representatives of the committee went to work at once on a revision of the questionnaire to get the information desired without too much expense or delay.

Decision of the committee was announced by Chairman Fletcher and Ferdinand Pecora, counsel, after a brief executive session with leading brokers and Roland L. Redmond, counsel for the exchange.

The session was called after an agreement in open session was balked by Redmond's insistence the exchange had no authority to distribute the questionnaire.

Members of the committee said the individual brokers, however, expressed confidence the information on pools and other operations could be furnished without too much expense and within a reasonable time.

GOAL OF UNIONS 10 MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—American Federation of Labor officials believe they have boosted their paid-up membership considerably above the old all-time record of 4,078,740, who were on the rolls in 1920.

Exact figures will not be available until after the end of the calendar year. By that time, William Green, president, and other officers expect the total will be well above 5,000,000. Already they have set 10,000,000 as the next immediate goal.

As evidence of the continuing swing toward unionization since NRA, Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, said today that 700 charters had been issued by his organization to new unions since July.

LEWIS DEMANDS MINE PEACE

International News Service.

WASHINGGTON, Oct. 20.—President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, today called upon authorities in Illinois to preserve peace in the battle between the Progressive Miners' Union and workers in his organization.

He charged the Progressive union, formed by members who seceded from the parent organization, are responsible for the mine war.

He attributed "criminal attacks upon men going to and from their work, night riding, bombing and shooting from ambush" to the Progressive miners.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Teeming with thousands of dissatisfied members of the Progressive Miners Union, Springfield today became the object of a concerted march of their women folk.

Mrs. Agnes Wieck, of Belleville, Ill., president of the 85 Progressive auxiliaries, said the women in numbers of upwards of 10,000 would join the men in picketing mines of the Peabody Coal Company.

U. S. CANCELS RAMP BIDS

Coincident with the announcement here today of a new and apparently highly satisfactory solution of the Federal Building ramp puzzle, government engineers in Washington announced cancellation of all bids for the previously approved plan for a vehicular ramp leading into Seventh avenue.

Robert W. Grange, Jr., local engineer, today presented to Council the new plan, which would provide for an overhead vehicular passage from the Pennsylvania Railroad side of the new Federal Building to Webster and Seventh avenues.

The postoffice truck traffic would thus be taken entirely away from the busy Seventh avenue and Bigelow boulevard corner by being carried over the boulevard. The plan for which bids were rejected in Washington had called for a steep ramp along the side of the building into Seventh avenue. All local traffic experts considered the plan a traffic bungle. Federal authorities had rejected numerous other plans as too expensive.

The new Grange plan, its sponsors claim, would cost only $250,000. Individual members of the planning commission stated they were in accord with it.

SENATORS FIGHT HUGE SALARIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Further legislation to slash salaries of big business executives was advocated by a group of Senators today as the Federal Trade Commission awaited responses to its request for salary data from 2,000 corporations.

Motivated largely by disclosures in the Senate Wall street inquiry that as high as half a million dollars have gone to one financier in salaries and bonuses for one year—and that period during the depression—those Senators now in Washington are almost a unit for doing something to keep salaries down.

Some feel Congress can go all the way and regulate the pay of heads of all business—public and private. Most, however, agree the restrictions could be applied only indirectly and then only to those corporations doing business with the government.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, one of the Senate's wealthiest members and a member of the stock market investigating committee, said he believed continuous publication of salaries would tend to keep them at a level more commensurate with services rendered.

MINERS WAIT ON ROOSEVELT

erations were working full blast. Pickets kept vigil at most of the H. C. Frick Coke Company mines, and the other captive mines were still shut down.

Workers were out at Pittsburgh Terminal Mine No. 8, Coverdale, over local grievances, according to a United Mine Workers' official.

In the Fayette County field two mines of W. J. Rainey, Inc., one of the larger independent operators, were being made ready for resumption. These were Clyde No. 3 and Royal. Allison mine of the same company also was expected to resume by next week.

The Hillman Coal and Coke Company reopened its Thompson No. 2 mine with a crew of 40 men. Full time operations will begin Monday, it was announced.

State police reported all quiet along the picket lines throughout the night. The usual patrols are being continued twice daily.

URGE 'SUPREME COURT' OF TRADE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Plans for extending the "partnership" between business and government into more direct, long-term economic planning by creating a permanent council are being studied by industrial leaders with a view of laying them before the Roosevelt administration.

The discussions are being carried on in the hope that this method would insure against future depressions and these leaders are seeking a united front from industry in support of the proposal.

The council, instead of being advisory as has been the function of most business boards in the past, would be chosen, one of its advocates said, "with the same care as are Supreme Court justices."

The members would be compelled to free themselves of financial connections and devote years of their lives to keeping tabs on production and preventing overproduction and other industrial abuses to which economists trace business collapses.

Guns Worth $4,000 Seized by Robbers

Firearms valued at between $3,500 and $4,000 and $25 cash were stolen from the Hartstein Hardware Company's store, 300-302 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, last night, the county detectives were notified.

Most of the weapons taken were shotguns. The same store was robbed about a year ago, according to the detectives.

MRS. PINCHOT SAYS U. S. STEEL FIGHTS U. S.

Charges Corporation Seeks to 'Cut Throat' of NRA

International News Service.

NEW KENSINGTON, Oct. 20.—"The steel trust is fighting the United States government."

With this ringing declaration, Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Pennsylvania's Governor, today challenged steel companies to poll their stockholders to determine whether the stockholders would back up the corporation.

She said:

"I cannot believe that 250,000 American citizens (the stockholders) are back of the steel corporation officials in their effort to cut the throat of the NRA."

Mrs. Pinchot spoke last night before Central Labor Union meetings both here and at Tarentum, urging workers to organize and warning that "unless the workers are organized, the National Recovery Act is not going to work." She said:

"The Steel Corporation is doing everything in its power to prevent workers from exercising this right. They have resorted to illegal, hateful and un-American methods—the kind of methods we called 'Russian' in the days of the Czars."

As for the heads of the steel trust, Mrs. Pinchot declared:

"They have failed to cooperate with the national administration. Under cover, they have done their best to destroy the NRA. They have bored from within—they have chiseled from the outside—they have tricked and cheated—broken faith over and over again.

"The steel trust is assuming to set itself up above American government—above Congress—above the President."

Referring to the steel strike of 1910, Mrs. Pinchot concluded:

"The steel trust then was fighting labor. Now it is fighting not only labor—it is fighting the United States government itself."

Mrs. Pinchot, discussing the aluminum code, said:

"I learned from the aluminum code for its workers that it violates the very fundamentals of what we have come to consider the American standard of living. It is an outrage that such a code should be proposed by the Aluminum Company of America.

"It is Mr. Mellon who is in a large measure responsible for the condition of the purchasing power of the American worker today—a large factor in the depression."

WOMEN IN RIOT OVER MINERS' AUXILIARY

Three Who Balk at Picketing Program Roughly Handled

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 20.—A near-riot broke up a meeting here yesterday of the "unofficial" women's auxiliary to the United Mine Workers of America. One woman fainted, more than a dozen were bruised and scratched, and others emerged from the stormy session in Moose temple with torn clothing and hair disarranged. State Police were called.

The trouble started, according to the women, when three delegates from Mather and Cokeburg denounced the proposed organization of women as not being sponsored by district officials of the UMW. Mrs. Agnes Snear, wife of Vincent Kemenovich, active in the Communistic National Miners Union, charged that the three were "insurgents sent to our meeting to disrupt it."

Mrs. Snear, a leader in strike activities at Library, sponsored the movement among the women and issued the call for the organization. The first meeting was held here a week ago.

She declared:

"No one woman needs to think she can rule our auxiliary. We're going to have an organization just like our brothers and fathers."

The "insurgent" trio spoke against the organization, maintaining that "the place for a miner's wife is at home and not on the picket line."

Mrs. Snear said the majority of the women favored picketing activities. When the three sought to dissuade them, shouts of "Throw them out" and "We don't want you" went up from the gathering of about 800 women.

The trio was "roughly handled," according to observers, and spirited away by male friends before the arrival of state police. The meeting had resumed when troopers arrived.

BEAUTY GRILLED IN GANG DEATH

Franklin street, and Ralph Girdano, 25, of 1241 Grotto street, chauffeur for Aliberti, were questioned for several hours, with little result.

Girdano told the detectives, they reported, he had taken Aliberti from Mrs. Morin's apartment about 9:30 p. m. Tuesday and that Aliberti left the machine at Frankstown avenue and Station street for an unknown destination.

Aliberti's body, his skull crushed and 60 ice-pick stab wounds in the chest, lay unclaimed in the County Morgue. It was found Wednesday in Long Run road, near McKeesport.

QUARREL REPORTED

Detective Edward Frank said the woman admitted Aliberti had known the slain Volpe brothers, and added that she had not seen him for several days before his death. Frank learned from others that she and Aliberti quarreled about another woman a few weeks ago.

Aliberti and the woman in the case, whose identity is unknown to detectives, visited East End cabarets and were joined by two men Tuesday night.

At 2 a. m. Wednesday Aliberti and four companions were arguing at Highland and Penn avenues. At the approach of a policeman the five got into a car in which two other men were riding. It was the last time Aliberti was seen alive and detectives believe it was in the car that he met his death after the woman had been let out.

SCOUT REVENGE THEORY

Aliberti was indicted for the Ban Box bombing last July. He was a friend of Guiseppe (Big Mike) Spinelli, under arrest in Italy in connection with the Volpe massacre 14 months ago.

Detectives scouted the theory that Aliberti was slain in revenge for the Volpe brothers' massacre.

The body of Aliberti, still in the County Morgue, was identified last night by Aliberti's sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Aliberti, of 6532 Navarro street. She saw him last three days before his body was found in a culvert near McKeesport.

U. S. Negotiates With Soviet On Recognition

pudiation by Moscow of the debts owed the United States by the Czarist and Kerensky governments and similar repudiation of debts owed private individuals in the United States, as well as Soviet counter-claims for damages growing out of American participation in the Archangel and Vladivostok expeditionary campaigns against the Bolsheviks at the close of the World War.

SETTLEMENT SEEN

Officials of the Soviet government have frequently emphasized to International News Service in private conversations that no difficulty was likely to be encountered in effecting a mutual, satisfactory settlement of all questions in dispute between the two countries.

Kalinin's reply to President Roosevelt's first cablegram is understood to have been extremely cordial, expressing willingness to open the negotiations at any time and any place selected by the American President.

In consequence, it is understood on high authority, that a Soviet-American conference will be held in Washington and that Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, is prepared to go himself in the immediate future as head of a distinguished Soviet mission.

Litvinoff, accompanied by Premier Molotov, of the Russian Soviet republic; War Minister Clement Voroshilov and M. Umansky, head of the press section of the foreign office, will leave for Turkey in a few days as members of a large Soviet delegation in connection with ceremonies commemorating the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Turkish republic.

At the same time they will return a visit paid to Moscow last year by Ismet Pasha, the Turkish prime minister.

Although no confirmation is obtainable now, it is within the realms of possibility that at least Litvinoff and Umansky will proceed direct from Turkey to Washington, arriving there about November 25.

Washington Awaits U. S.-Soviet Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—An important announcement regarding the long closed diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia appears in prospect, but whether it would come first from Washington or Moscow was not clear this afternoon.

Reports from Moscow that an exchange of correspondence between the two governments would be released late today brought no denial from the White House.

Secretary Hull smiled when asked about the reports and replied:

"I will have to wait until I have checked over the latest reports."

It was known that President Roosevelt had an important declaration in mind for later today, but his subject remained undisclosed.

PINCHOT TO AID MINE UNIONS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot yesterday said he will do everything possible to safeguard union miners against interference from company unions in the Western Pennsylvania soft coal fields.

He conferred with Mrs. Elizabeth C. Hidock and Mrs. Mary Verbos, whose trip to the Capital was financed by collections of five and 10 cents each from union miners of the Edenborn local.

The Governor said the women reported that members of company unions shot into the houses of union workers at night and attacked members of the Edenborn local if they left their homes after dark.

The Governor said the women also charged company union representatives, arrested by state police, had been furnished with bail by the H. C. Frick Coke Company.

Mrs. Hidock and Mrs. Verbos also conferred with Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, who informed them the state police will do everything they can in the area.

FARMER STRIKE SPURS ACTION BY ROOSEVELT

President Preparing to Outline Program To Curb Unrest

Associated Press.

President Roosevelt was said to be ready today to act in the face of unrest among farmers. What he might do if decided was not disclosed, but Representative Truax (Dem.), of Ohio, after a conference, said he had taken a proposal to the chief executive for price fixing.

Truax quoted the President as confident the farm revolt would be adjusted. Truax proposed minimum prices of a dollar for wheat, 7 cents for hogs, and 10 cents for cattle.

Meantime, the farm adjustment administration took cognizance of the declaration of a national strike by the Farmers Holiday Association and the embargo laid on wheat by the Governor of North Dakota. It announced that it was speeding up a study of plans to ameliorate rural conditions.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, reiterated his pronouncements that there should be inflation by payment of the bonus and of bonds with new money, but averred he was not attacking President Roosevelt personally.

Gov. William Langer, of North Dakota, insisted on enforcement of his embargo on exported wheat, but had not yet put troops in the field, although railroads accepted intrastate shipments of grain as required, they said, by federal laws.

Hugh Johnson's office tried to induce Keith Neville to reconsider his resignation as manager of the NRA in Nebraska. He quit yesterday, averring he was out of step since the NRA had increased the price of things rural citizens bought, but had not helped farmers get better prices for what they produced.

Reno Calls on Farmers To Join New Strike

OMAHA, Neb. Oct. 21.—(INS.)—An appeal to farmers all over the country, and particularly those in the Middle West, to join the farm strike to start at noon tomorrow was issued here today by Milo Reno, national president of the Farmers' Holiday Association.

Reno predicted that 90 per cent of the farmers in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and the two Dakotas would align themselves with the movement. He said:

"We have had assurance from thousands of farmers in the Nebraska-Iowa territory that they would support the strike. We are going to concentrate on making it 100 per cent effective in this territory and when it is, we anticipate no difficulty in getting the whole country to follow us."

Picketing of highways to prevent non-striking farmers from marketing their products is possible, Reno said, but is neither asked nor sanctioned by the heads of the movement.

It was the activity of pickets which resulted in bloodshed in the Middle West during the previous farm uprisings which followed declaration of farm strikes.

these matters. Universal statesmanship is not my business."

He added he had been away three months and was not in close touch with developments in the United States.

He reported that business was improving in England, explaining:

"England is getting along very well. Our English firm shows an increase in trade and employment and, which is more important, a drop in seasonable unemployment. The railroads and basic industries seem to be getting much better."

Morgan was asked:

"Would you comment on the business and employment situation of the United States as well?"

The financbier answered:

"I can't discuss the United States. Can't you understand why? I want to get the feeling of the water first and talk to those who know what is going on."

He added:

"Remember, I am not in public life. I am only a private citizen."

Son Tells 'Mom' by Radio She Erred in Parking

Over Station WCAE from Traffic Court today came this:

Magistrate J. Scott Morgan:

"Don't you know better than to park your car where it plainly said 'No Parking?'"

Meyer Zwang, 1900 Brownsville road:

"Yes, your honor."

Magistrate:

"Then why did you disobey the law?"

Defendant:

"Because my mother insisted that I park there."

Magistrate:

"You can tell your mother she is all wrong."

Defendant:

"I will your honor."

Magistrate:

"Well, why don't you tell her now—there's the microphone."

Defendant (into the mircrophone):

"Did you hear that, mom? Well, don't forget it!"

Magistrate:

"Case dismissed!"

Wife's Threat to Shoot Mate Charged in Trial

A threat to shoot her husband if she lost their divorce trial was made by Mrs. Grace S. Fleming, formerly of North Fremont street, Bellevue, against John P. Fleming, according to Thomas Park, testifying today before Judge Thomas M. Marshall.

Fleming brought the divorce action against his wife, alleging she had nagged him, struck him in the eye, and loosened his teeth and then ordered him out of their home in 1931. These charges and the alleged shooting threat Mrs. Fleming denied and produced through her counsel, Fred E. Milligan, a letter her husband admitted writing to Olive Rider, from which such terms as "dearest," "honey dear," and others were read.

Miss Rider's mother, Mrs. Mary Rider, testified today her daughter had been in the Tuberculosis Hospital since last August and that she had accompanied Fleming and Olive a majority of the times they went out together.

Fleming testified his wife once told him that she prayed he would be killed every time he went out in his machine. He added, however, that his wife was a good housekeeper and cook. He denied he had ever had any improper relations with Miss Rider or any other woman and said he had known her since she was 8 years old.

Judge Marshall, at the close of Fleming's testimony, ruled that Mrs. Fleming could present her defense just as if she had filed an answer to the suit, although her attorney had failed to file an appearance.

WEIRTON, W. Va.,—Oct. 20.—Following in the footsteps of his leader, George Ellison, vice president of the Weir-Cove Lodge, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, took his place in the ranks of workers at the Weirton Steel Company today.

Ellison's task during the strike was to sign passes for those who wished to get by the picket lines. One pass was issued to E. T. Weir, head of the company.

William J. Long, chief strike leader went back to work in the tin mill Wednesday night, symbolizing the end of the strike of 10,000 employes.

Americans Are 'Flop' Taken Collectively, Surgeon Says

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A prominent member of the medical profession took a look at his countrymen today and concluded that "under our present form of education" Americans as individuals "are great men, but collectively we are a failure."

Dr. William J. Mayo, chief of staff of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., and president of the Interstate Postgraduate Medical Association of North America, now in assembly here, made this statement in an informal discussion of the ways of educating lawyers and engineers as well as doctors.

TOO MUCH MEMORIZING

He declared:

"At present we throw together into Congress a group of men each educated along his own narrow line. None has a broad general knowledge of the problems of his country."

A "general" education of youth, he added, ultimately would improve government. He continued:

"We have been teaching our youth too much memorizing of things of the past. It does not matter one whit how much knowledge of the principles of medicine, law, engineering or any other profession a youth may have poured into his memory if he does not know how to use it."

'NARROW CULTURE'

He mentioned a "university course" for youths just out of high school, being tried at the University of Minnesota, of which he is a regent, as a means of orientation for the young student. He said:

"We make it easy for him to browse."

He added:

"The youth who desires to practice medicine in the coal fields should know something of coal mining. The same is true of the man who is to practice medicine, law or anything else in agricultural country.

"Our present system of leading to a narrow cultural aristocracy does not allow that. Text book indigestion, brought on by years of cramming down the knowledge poured into the youth is not the wisdom of dealing with his fellow man."

Dr. Crile Hails Operation As 'Cure-All' for Illness

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—A new operation, classed as denervation and propounded as a "cure-all" for many diseases of civilization, was disclosed today by Dr. George Crile, master craftsman of surgery, in one of his rare public utterances at the international assembly of physicians here.

America would be the healthiest nation in the world if the operation was used to a great extent, was the comment that surged through the hall after Dr. Crile's paper was read.

Speaking in highly technical terms, the distinguished director of Cleveland Clinic revealed the results of 17 years of research work. Laymen among the audience of more than 4,000, were unable to grasp his meaning, but later Dr. Crile's associates explained the tremendous import of the surgeon's statements.

LIGONIER HIGH STRIKE ENDS

LIGONIER, Pa., Oct. 20.—The strike of 200 students at Ligonier High School ended today; the boys and girls went back to their books.

And the three football players whose suspensions precipitated the strike still will not play until their marks are higher, Principal B. E. Connelley announced.

Connelley blamed the two-day strike on "a school board fight." One candidate for the school board made a speech to the strikers, promising to have the players reinstated.

JOAN REBELS AT FILM NAME

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—That ancient tradition of Hollywood that no one ever came to pictures with a name but what the studio executives couldn't find a better one staggered today under a precedent-shattering declaration by the winsome Joan Blondell.

Hereafter the forceful but pleasant wife of George Barnes, screen cameraman, has decided she will be known on the screen by her legal name, Joan Barnes.

Her argument was that if she were not in pictures her name would be Joan Barnes and inasmuch as that was her legal name, why not be known both publicly and privately by it.

GIRL BATTLER CLAIMS RIGHT TO TOTE GUN

Police Have Hard Fight Arresting Pretty Tap Dancer

Why shouldn't a girl tote a gun, especially if she's only 18 and weighs less than 100 and is very, very attractive?

Why shouldn't she carry two pistols, even? A girl has to have protection these days.

That's Isabelle Messmer's angle. Isabelle is the little lady from Elwood, Ind., who kicked and screamed at city detectives who arrested her. They were not at all surprised to learn that Isabelle was a tap dancer with a carnival; her nimble feet are very nimble.

Isabelle was arraigned in Morals Court today, as docile and calm as a lamb. She explained that everybody around a carnival packed a gat, so to speak, there being "a lot of rough people" thereabouts.

She said her father was manager of the Rubin-Cherry shows and that she had been with carnivals since she was 5.

Isabelle was arrested in her room in the Seventh Avenue Hotel after the detectives noticed her taking a pistol from a locker in a downtown bus station. But Isabelle informed the detectives at the hearing today that the hotel room represented her home, at the moment, and she had a perfect right to keep a pistol in her home. A second gun was found in the locker.

Nevertheless, Isabelle was held for investigation.

RITCHIE FLAYED IN LYNCHING

International News Service.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 20.—State and county officials today were investigating events leading to the lynching of George Armwood, Somerset County Negro, who allegedly confessed to attacking an aged white woman. At the same time a demand was made at Baltimore for the impeachment of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, who had placed the blame for the frenzied act upon District Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John B. Robins.

Armwood was taken from the county jail Wednesday night by a mob of a thousand, hanged and his body burned on the public square. Eight county officers under Sheriff Luther Dougherty, and 25 state policemen under Capt. McK. Johnson, surrendered the Negro to the mob without firing a shot.

Ritchie's impeachment was asked by the Socialist party of Maryland which sought also the removal of Judge Duer and State's Attorney Robins.

Writer of Roosevelt Biography Widowed By Suicide

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Herbert B. Lederer, the husband of Isabel Leighton, a writer and organizer, committed suicide today in his seven-room apartment on Park avenue.

He left no note, hanging himself from the kitchen transom with the cord from an electric iron.

Miss Leighton, until recently head of the local women's committee for the NRA, was named vice chairman of the Independent Citizens' committee for Joseph V. McKee. At the McKee headquarters in the Hotel Biltmore it was said she was ill at home with a cold.

Lederer was 44, a broker for two and one-half years with Edward B. Smith & Co., with whom he signed a new contract only recently.

Miss Leighton was asleep when the maid found the body. She called the superintendent of the building, who notified police.

In telling about herself at the time she wrote a biography of President Roosevelt, "My Boy Franklin," with Gabrielle Forbush, early this year, Miss Leighton said her husband gave her leave to make a career for herself.

She wanted to go on the stage, she said, and her parents had refused. Then she was married to Lederer—some 10 years ago—and he agreed that she should follow her inclinations. She had her start in "Deburau," starring Lionel Atwill.

GONE 20 YEARS, SON FOUND

International News Service.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Oct. 20.—Twenty years ago Edgar Leslie McCloskey, Jr., wrote his parents from Detroit that he was entraining for home.

E. L. McCloskey, then sheriff of Clearfield County, and Mrs. McCloskey prepared to welcome their son. Each day for a week they awaited the home-coming.

Days stretched into weeks, weeks into months; months into years—still Junior was unheard from. While there was nothing to explain the mystery, the McCloskeys and their friends reluctantly concluded, as the years rolled by, their son had met with tragedy enroute and gave him up for dead.

An air mail letter has just been received by the now aged parents, with the sender identified as their long lost boy. In the message, Edgar confirmed disclosures made by his family that he took up residence in Alaska.

The missing son wrote that today he is a member of a prominent family and doing well as a fur trader.

He is trying to arrange for an early visit with his folks.

NAME M'CLURE 'PAYMASTER'

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—For the first time since his trial started, State Senator John J. McClure has been named in testimony as the actual paymaster of constables and others involved in the alleged "protection" ring in Delaware County.

Thomas F. Conley, a former Chichester Township constable, testified yesterday that McClure personally paid him $25 a week to "lay off" speakeasies, stills and other places that were paying the "protection" levies.

On the witness stand for three hours yesterday, Conley resumes his testimony today.

He implicated 40 of the 76 defendants in his recital of the group's activities, including Chester ward leaders and a score of alleged bootleggers.

Among those named was Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the State House of Representatives and leader of Chester's Eighth Ward.

Conley also testified about fine-splitting among magistrates and raiding officers and the operation of slot machines "all over the county" by Edward S. Fry, Chester tax collector.

ELEVEN ROUTED FROM HOME BY FLAMES

Prize Racing Pigeons Suffocated in Coop

Hurtled from a porch on which they were fighting a fire that destroyed a dwelling in Lappe lane, atop Spring Hill, early today, three firemen were injured, two seriously. Another was cut by flying glass.

Eleven persons, including four children, were made homeless.

The three firemen, attached to Engine Company No. 53, and their injuries, were August Schram, 35, of 151 Fifty-fourth street, fractured ribs; William G. Thomas, 41, 3325 McClure avenue, hip injury, and John J. Downey, 28, of 87 Fountain street, injuries to his left side. Schram and Thomas were detained at the hospital.

OCCUPANTS ROUTED

Carl Koch, 35, of 1515 Hatteras street, of Engine Company No. 42, cut on the left hand by flying glass, returned to duty after receiving treatment at the scene.

The fire, starting from an undetermined cause, was discovered by Mrs. Margaret Furrer, 22. She awakened her husband, Max, and their 18-month-old daughter, Lois. Others in the house at the time were Bernard Furrer, 55; his wife, Marie; their son, Otto, 21, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ladesic, and their three children, Frank, 7; Walter, 6, and Dolores, 3. All made their way to safety. The fire had gained considerable headway when discovered, Mrs. Furrer said, and all left the house in their nightclothing.

PIGEONS KILLED

Eleven prized racing pigeons, owned by Max Fuller, a member of the East Street Homing Pigeon Club, which were in a coop in the rear, were suffocated. One of the birds, Fuller said, took first place in a recent meet at Newark, O., in which more than 400 pigeon fanciers of the Pittsburgh district participated. Eight birds being trained for a similar race next Sunday, escaped the blaze.

Three cats, family pets, could not be located.

Firemen were handicapped in reaching the flames. They laid 1,000 feet of hose from two fireplugs. Low water pressure added to the handicap, firemen said.

The damage was estimated at $3,000 by Batallion Fire Chief Lewis Stickle.

LEAGUE INSISTS GERMANY MUST OBEY BOND

GENEVA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—League of Nations officials emphasized today that Germany is bound indefinitely by the covenant of the league despite its resignation, since the covenant is a part of the Treaty of Versailles.

This point was emphasized while the officials awaited the text of the German notification, which was regarded in international circles here as more permanently serious than the departure of the reich from the Disarmement Conference.

Simultaneously, the league officials drew attention to the wide difference between Japan's bolt from the organization and Germany's withdrawal.

Japan resigned because the league assembly condemned her Manchurian policy. Germany announced her intention as a protest that the league has not done enough for her.

Hence, league quarters believe that it will be easier for the reich to return to Geneva than for Japan, but they admit this hinges on whether concessions are made to Germany.

League circles ascribed Chancellor Hitler's sudden decision to dispatch the resignation to the fact that the four-power conversations had not advanced.

It was reported that Premier Mussolini, of Italy, had stayed Hitler's hand while sounding out the powers, but that when the soundings failed, the German Chancellor decided to break with Geneva before awaiting the reich plebiscite of November 12.

It was explained that the view concerning Germany's league withdrawal was based on the expectation that political tension in Europe will be increased.

HUNT GARDENER IN SLAYING OF FARMER

The search for Steve Bauer, 35, one-eyed landscape gardener, was intensified today after a coroner's jury named him as the slayer of Robert Stilley, 24, Upper St. Clair Township farmer. Stilley was shot to death on his farm August 31.

Three alleged love letters, misspelled and scarcely legible, said to have been written by Bauer to Mrs. Ella Stilley, 43, Robert's stepmother, after he had been discharged as a hired man, were brought into the testimony at the inquest yesterday, but their contents were not submitted as evidence.

It was shortly after the finding of the letters that Mrs. Stilley attempted to end her life by slashing her wrists with a razor, the detectives said. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital.

A check of Bauer's movements followed the finding of the letters. After Bauer was discharged he worked on a neighboring farm and disappeared from there with a pistol and clothing shortly before Stilley's death, Ritz told the jury.

Bauer boasted that his marksmanship would help him to get rid of an enemy some day, Ritz asserted. Shoe marks on the cellar door of the Stilley home were identified as having been made by the shoes bought by Mrs. Stilley for Bauer before his discharge.

Robert Algeo, an employe of a barbecue stand not far from the Stilley farm, testified that on the night that Stilley was murdered, Bauer, extremely nervous, asked him to drive him downtown. Algeo said he waited until 3 a. m. when the barbecue closed and drove Bauer to the city.

A maid in the Stilley home, Helen Charnowski, 20, said that Mrs. Stilley had received three letters from Bauer after his discharge and that Mrs. Stilley answered one of them.

NOTED PASTOR SPIRIT GUEST, MEDIUM SAYS

Henry Ward Beecher, himself an unorthodox clergyman in his day, insisted on being heard last night at the convention of the National Spiritualist Association.

The Rev. Bessie Woodworth, medium from Chicago, was authority for the identification. She announced his spirit wished to communicate with "Margaret."

Among the large crowd, a woman delegate to the convention informerd the medium she was Margaret, a granddaughter of the noted Beecher.

Mrs. Woodworth interrupted the advice and information she was imparting to many persons who had sought counsel in written questions, to announce the spirit presence of the clergyman. She said he was quite insistent about being heard.

SPIRIT GUIDES

He and "Amelia," according to the medium, wished to convey greetings to Margaret. The latter identified Amelia as her mother. Later she said she was Mrs. Margaret Prettyman, of Wheeling, W. Va., and the experience was not new to her. She said Beecher was one of her "spirit guides." She herself is a medium, she said.

Mrs. Prettyman explained her father was a son of Henry Ward Beecher and that she was the last of the direct line.

Mrs. Woodworth professed also to have contacted a quite pugnacious spirit in one "Richard, or Richards" who wished to communicate with an "Esther." She explained the man was referring to a quarrel he had had with "Esther."

'BURIED THE HATCHET'

A woman in the audience identified herself as "Esther," and she, too, became verbose about the feeling between her and the man, who, she said, since has died. Anyway, "Richard" wanted to say "they had buried the hatchet."

The medium went into details concerning the differences, and "Esther" concurred in them.

There were many other demonstrations of the professed psychic powers of Mrs. Woodworth and the Rev. Ida Strack, of Washington, D. C., each appearing independently on the platform.

Preceding the "spirit greetings," the Rev. Victoria Barnes, of Chicago, Ill., spoke on the spiritualist conception of death. She said many persons were turning away from orthodoxy, because they were unsatisfied; that it did not fulfill their mental and spiritual needs. She said spiritualism is following closely the teachings of Christ, whom she described as "the greatest medium" of all.

NAZI TESTIFIES IN FIRE TRIAL

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A former Berlin Nazi storm troop leader, Count Wolf Heldorff, testified in the German Reichstag building fire trial today that he issued orders for the arrest of leading Communists and Socialist deputies at 11 o'clock the night of the fire last February on the assumption they had started the incendiarism.

He said:

"According to our view, criminal elements in the state are generally Marxists."

Today's session of the trial, in which five men are accused, marked the beginning of the court's campaign to clear Nazi leaders of "Brown Book" allegations.

(The Brown Book was published by a commission under the leadership of Lord Marley and listed a number of allegedly authenticated cases of Nazi mistreatments.)

JAP WAR GROUP WINS FUNDS

TOKIO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Japanese cabinet today issued a communique saying:

"The ministers agreed on the fundamental principles for coordinating the empire's foreign, national defense, and finannce policies."

This announcement followed a meeting of cabinet ministers, concerning which the communique was the only official statement, but of which the Japanese language newspapers stated they believed War Minister Araki and Navy Minister Osumi had gained their colleagues' consent to the priority of army and navy demands in framing the 1934-1935 budget.

It was said authoritatively that these demands consisted of an appropriation of 620,000,000 yen (approximately $168,175,000) for the army and 680,000,000 yen ($184,450,000) for the navy.

'Hard Guy' Slides Into Store on Barbed Wire

CALHAN, Col., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A mighty hard guy robbed the Calhan drug store of $20.

Then he slid down a barbed wire from the chimney to the skylight to enter the store. Officers couldn't find any sign that the sharp edges had even marked him.

DALADIER GAINS SOCIALIST HELP

PARIS, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The government's chances of surviving improved overnight as the supporters of Premier Edouard Daladier frightened the Socialists with the prediction that the right wing would gain control if the cabinet fell.

M. Daladier's fight for the cabinet's life and the protection of the franc will begin openly Sunday, when the Chamber of Deputies debate begins.

Despite the overnight improvement, the cabinet admitted the precariousness of its position in the face of the opposition to many of the budgetary measures, particularly the reduction of functionaries' salaries and pensions.

GENEVA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The League of Nations is sounding out Jewish organizations in the United States and England as to whether they approve of the choice of James G. McDonald, of New York, as commissioner of refugees.

At the same time, the league also is negotiating with McDonald to learn whether he would acceptt.

The name of Nicholas Roosevelt also has been mentioned and Lord Cecil, of England, continues to be talked as honorary high commissioner.

MEXICO UPSET BY RED RIOTS

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—Tension heightened here today as new troop movements and further Communist activities caused an outbreat of unrest.

While three regiments entrained for Vera Cruz and other detachments went to San Luis Potosi, Communists stoned the Japanese lagation.

Shouting "down with imperialism," they flung a shower of rocks which broke several windows, then fled before police arrived.

The war department remained silent on reasons for the swift dispositions of its forces. It was unofficially stated the government was taking "precautions."

Gen. Saturnino Cedillo at San Luis Potosi was credited with leading 15,000 armed irregulars. There were unconfirmed rumors he had frustrated a plot against his life by drastic action.

All trains moving toward Vera Cruz, especially those of the interoceanic railway bewteen Jalapa and the port of Vera Cruz, were heavily guarded.

RADICAL BOLT LOOMS IN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Threats of a new crisis faced the troubled regime of President Ramon Grau San Martin today.

They loomed in the prospect of an impending break away by the militant and powerful ABC radical society—one of Grau's strongest supporting arms when he took up the reins after the overthrow of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes.

They were intensified by reports of unrest bred of labor difficulties throughout the island, the spread to 84 of malaria cases in the city of Havana, trouble concerning the imprisonment of officers captured in the National Hotel battle.

Meanwhile, further emphasizing the government's difficulties, a spokesman for the Nationalists announced they refused "all participation and responsibility in this government."

Only a maker can give you such value for $22.50

If we didn't make our clothes but had to buy them . . . like most retailers . . . we could never give you garments like these for $22.50, or anywhere near it.

Among the million satisfied customers who wear our clothes are many men who could well afford to pay any price they wished. They prefer our clothes because they know from experience that we give them all the wear, style, fit and satisfaction that it's possible to get out of a garment . . . and we save them money besides.

With woolens up 75 per cent and production costs 47 per cent higher, we should sell our clothes for more money, and we may have to. This much is certain . . . Richman Brothers Clothes at $22.50 are cheap.

We don't advise you to buy more than you need, but if you are going to need a new suit, topcoat or overcoat this winter, we do advise you to buy it now.

Buy All You Can Afford at Lowest Prices of the Year

Dramatic circumstances lie behind this event . . . the feast day of Gimbel Month. We KNOW it's a great sale. We BELIEVE it to be the last line of defense against advancing prices.

Our department heads included Founder's Day in their regular October plan. Their proposed prices were low, but not low enough to satisfy the store executives. So the department heads were summoned to a parley. Stern executives spoke. "We own the goods. It was bought at the 'bottom' of last summer. Forget how much it will cost to replace it. On Founder's Day sell it at prices that will make the year's 'lows' sound like profiteering."

For three hours the men and women in that room competed with one another to see who could offer the best bargains. When the parley came to an end there was not enough profit left in the items that are advertised on these pages to pay the advertising costs.

It may be years before you will again enjoy such low prices. These good values will make you a Gimbel friend for life.

Because of the Nature of This Event—No Mail or Phone Orders Accepted on any Founder's Day Item

SCHRAMM GETS AID OF MAGEE, MRS. SMITH

Gustav L. Schramm, Democratic candidate for Juvenile Court bench, today was indorsed by former Mayor William A. Magee and Mrs. Templeton Smith, head of the League of Women Voters. Mr. Magee is a Council candidate on both the Republican and Democratic tickets.

Both Magee and Mrs. Smith declared that politics must be kept out of the operation of the ney court, and each believed that Mr. Schramm would see to that, picking his sides solely on the basis of fitness for their positions. In his statement Mr. Magee said:

"For the first time in the history of the county, unfortunate children are to be given the protection and aid of a court set up expressly for their benefit.

"The old system, under which each judge of the Common Pleas Court sat in a branch known as Juvenile Court for only a few months, proved unsatisfactory because its very nature prevented the court from being in the hands of one man thoroughly trained in that field of justice, and associated with the children long enough to know their needs.

"The new court will mean nothing unless it is under the direction of a judge thoroughly trained in its problems. Mr. Schramm has been indorsed by the leading civic and social agencies of the county after a thorough examinations of the qualifications of all candidates. His ability as a lawyer, moreover, is attested by the fact that he was indorsed by the Allegheny County Bar Association.

"For my part, I believe that his freedom of partisan obligations is his greatest recommendation."

Mrs. Smith said:

"I would like to appeal to the indeepndent voters to support Gustav L. Schramm for Judge of the Juvenile Court. Mr. Schramm is well qualified by training to fill this office creditably and to establish a court which will be run for the benefit of the children of Allegheny County, and not for the political patronage.

"Especially do I want to appeal to the women of Allegheny County and ask them to do everything in their power to see that Mr. Schramm is elected to this office. The court should be entirely divorced from politics and should be run for the children of the county."

VOTE MACHINE PROBE ENDED

Its work completed, the Harris committee investigating the failure of the vote machines in the primary election today had submitted its report to the County Commissioners. The report was given the County Commissioners last night and will be made public today.

Senator Frank J. Harris, chairman of the committee and the other members of the committee, Attorneys William B. McFall and Edward O. Tabor declined to discuss the report.

Candidates for Bench!

MRS. MARY LEHNER MRS. ANNA VAN ESSEN

FRIENDS AND CANDIDATES . . . . RUNNING FOR THE BENCH

Women Foes in Race Close Personal Friends

'So Few Socialists We Must Stick Together'

Two women candidates for judge of Common Pleas Court on the Socialist ticket have a friendship recipe all of their own. It is:

Run against your best friend for office.

They are Mrs. Mary Lehner, of 50 West Francis avenue, Brentwood, and Mrs. Anna Van Essen, of 1601 Princess avenue, Beechview. In the primaries Mrs. Lehner received 39 votes, winning a nomination over Mrs. Van Essen, who got 38. Their names were both written in on the ballot.

HAVE TO BE FRIENDLY

Mrs. Lehner, a gray-haired and kindly woman, said of their close competition:

"We are better friends than ever. There are so few of us Socialists we have to be friendly."

Mrs. Van Essen, wife of Dr. William J. Van Essen, Socialist candidate for mayor and chairman of the party in the county, said:

FOR EACH OTHER

"We are both for Socialism and each other. We consider that in view of the present economic crisis it is important that labor have representatives on the bench. Whether elected or not we shall carry on an educational campaign pointing out the class-character of our capitalistic laws."

The two candidates for judge met in 1912, they said, during the suffrage fight. Since then they have been the closest of friends.

Dr. Van Essen gave the primary reason for the two women running for office. He said:

Breaks Restaurant Window After Insult

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Universal)—Jack McNulty, a professional entertainer, paid $45 in court yesterday for throwing a pepper shaker through a plate glass window of a restaurant run by Samuel Hailpern because, McNulty said,

WOMEN VOTERS' LEADER OUT FOR M'NAIR

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, League of Women's Voters' leader, in a statement today indorsed William N. McNair, Democratic mayoralty candidate. She charged the Coyne-Herron organization with trying to block an investigation of the City Supplies Department during the Kline administration, and asserted that only recently the city had been discovered opening the way to the same kind of abuses which occurred before.

Mrs. Smith is a member of the executive committee of the Citizens' League, which last week decided that as an organization it would not support McNair and the remainder of the Democratic ticket.

Her indorsement today was confined to McNair, and did not include the entire municipal ticket, as did previous statements by Leslie M. Johnson, Grant Curry and Francis S. Guthrie, also members of the Citizens' League.

ONLY HOPE

She said:

"The only hope of overcoming the Coyne-Herron machine is to elect William N. McNair Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh. I personally am appealing to the independent voters of this city to rally to its standard and support him in the coming general election. We need a new deal for Pittsburgh.

"The voters of this city should remember how the Coyne-Herron machine at every turn blocked our efforts in the investigation of the Supplies Department, and that they have since made no effort to investigate other departments nor remedy the evils. Only recently we found the city putting out specifications for bids which allowed the same dishonest practice as the famous meat bids.

"Mr. McNair's election will change this situation. We need the change. Vote for McNair November 7."

CANDIDATE RAPS FOES

McNair in a speech last night at Arsenal High School, Fortieth and Butler streets, reiterated the charge that the Republican candidates would, if elected, represent utility corporations, but said he would insure a new deal. This new deal, he asserted, would remove from the city payroll every political parasite but protect the job of every conscientious employe.

McNair said:

"Thousands of city employes are today being intimidated and deceived into working for the success of the Mellon-Coyne-Herron ticket.

"On the one hand they are being told that if their districts do not return majorities for the machine candidates they will lose their jobs. On the other hand they are being told that if McNair is elected he is on record as saying that he will fire every Republican on the city payroll."

PLANS NO REPRISALS

He declared this argument was childish, citing civil service protection, and continued:

"Let me point out to the police and firemen that there is not a lieutenant, captain, commissioner or detective who owes his promotion to efficiency, executive ability or courage in the face of danger or to any other factor than his ability as a vote getter on election day—or his relationship to a vote getter. If I am elected Mayor the police and fire bureaus will be taken out of politics.

"No employe of Pittsburgh, no matter what his political affiliation, need fear reprisal, discharge or demotion because of that affiliation if I am elected."

Democratic headquarters announced that the Seventeenth Ward unit, United American Veterans' Association, had indorsed the entire Democratic ticket. Headquarters are open at 1803 Carson street. The Roosevelt Civic Legion gave a similar indorsement, according to a second announcement from the same source.

Indorsement of John J. Kane, Democratic candidate for City Council, has been indorsed by the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, which praised his record on labor bills in the Legislature.

PARTY RALLIES TONIGHT

Liberty Junior High School, Ellsworth avenue—William N. McNair, John M. Huston and Gustav L. Schramm.

Democrats Opening Brentwood Campaign

Representative Charles Harmuth, of the Twelfth Legislative District, will open the campaign of the Democratic party in Brentwood. Headquarters have been established at 2640 Brownsville road.

PLEDGES SLASH IN POOR COSTS

William S. Cooper, Jr., Democratic candidate for Director of the Poor, at a McKees Rocks meeting last night pledged himself to eliminate "gross waste" in the operation of the Poor Board if elected to fill the place now held by Mrs. Villa Henderson. She is a candidate on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Henderson, Cooper said, had obtained her position "by chance" and had "proved no qualification for the job." She succeeded her late husband on the board. Cooper said that two poor directors and the estate of a third "have been ordered to restore to the Poor Board more than $40,000 illegally taken by the board through real estate deals."

M'NAIR GETS MACKRELL SUPPORT

had a better chance of fulfillment if McNair should be elected. In his statement today Mackrell said:

"In keeping with my easily understood utterances in the recent Republican mayoralty campaign concerning progressive steps in city government which I then favored and mean to continue to fight for, this statement will place me squarely on record before all voters, irrespective of party, in the present general election. In brief it is a reiteration of the independent stand I have maintained in public life.

"The questions for the voters to decide two weeks from next Tuesday is whether Senator Coyne shall win the election of Mayor and other offices and the city remain in the rut or whether his political machine shall be defeated and the city move forward as a part of the New Deal. I am in the front line of the rapidly growing Independent - Democratic army that is supporting Mr. McNair for Mayor to bring about municipal reclamation.

'SUPPORT M'NAIR'

"I ask all my friends who supported me under the most trying circumstances to again fall in line and likewise all other free thinking men and women to talk, think and vote McNair.

"The Coyne proposition is the one to be considered. Do you want him to continue his methods, his machine, the assessment of employes and political bossism? Something has to be done to protect business; to invite new industries here and to make it desirable for industries now here to remain. We want the best type of government and to get that there has to be a radical change here.

"I opposed Coyne to the limit in the primary and was defeated. I have no excuses or alibis, but they know just how many votes they really got and how. Pardon me if I claim one political record in that primary when I called all my leaders together the Saturday before the primary and told them I did not have a cent for watchers to guard my interests at the polls and released them. That was unusual, I am told. Many remained firm, however, but from that time we were slowly taking the count, having been bowled over by hundreds of thousands of dollars.

PLATFORM CITED

"But our organization is still in there and is giving a great demonstration of how to take it and now is back ready for the second half.

"We are still for our primary principles—no person in wavering. Here are some of them:

"Old age pensions.

"Adequate consideration for ex-service men.

"Keeping the schools out of politics and in that way protecting the teachers.

"A real civil service.

"Taking the police and firemen out of politics.

"Non-assessment of public employes.

"A non-harassed City Controller.

"AND—a new one for all to think about is—

"Relieving all estates of $20,000 or under from inheritance tax."

Jack Good, Dancer, Weds Florence Lake

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Florence Lake, blonde screen and radio commedienne, and Jack Good, stage dancer, were married yesterday, climaxing a romance which began several years ago when both were in vaudeville.

Ten friends witnessed the ceremony in the Fourth Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Fred Waring, last week's bride of the band leader, and Arthur Lake, screen comedian and brother of the bride, attended the couple. They planned a honeymoon in Columbus, O., Good's home.

Hildebrand, Noted As Educator, Dies

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Frank Alonzo Hildebrand, 60, widely known as a teacher and lecturer, died at his home today.

He had been an instructor in the Washington high school for 14 years and conducted classes as usual yesterday.

5-Word Will Leaves 'Everything' To Brother

Very brief but to the point, was the will of J. D. Wall, 60, of West End, probated today, which directed:

"Everything I have to Dick."

The "everything" amounts to $500 and "Dick" refers to his brother.

On a William Penn Hotel envelope, in red pencil, the will is said to have been written by Wall, a bachelor, at a recent dinner of the Amen Corner, held at the hotel.

WOMAN BANKER RETURNS CASH

Apparently conscience-stricken, Hazel Weigel, the missing spinster, has not only returned $3,000 to the State Bank of Elizabeth, but has supplied directions which she seems to think will lead to the recovery of funds to cover the remainder of her alleged embezzlement.

In an unsigned three-lined note which accompanied the $3,000 in bills mailed from Tucson, Ariz., she named two persons whom she stated owe her money—one $50, the other $1,000. And she added:

"See my brother and get the balance."

Bank officials emphasized their denial that Miss Weigel, who was their assistant cashier before she vanished a month ago, had mailed them also the deed to her house in Pangburn Hollow. But it was learned that the deed was sent, and made out to an executive connected with the bank. To him, too, was sent the $3,000.

This was the $3,000 which disappeared on the same day Miss Weigel departed. An audit has revealed that a total of $16,000 is unaccounted for.

A charge of embezzlement has been filed against Miss Weigel, who had been for many years a trusted employe.

PUBLIC WORKS GET $5,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Public Works Administration today allotted $5,243,378 for 44 non-federal construction projects in 21 states which officials said would provide 33,807 man-months of quick, direct employment.

The work will include waterworks, sewers, hospitals, highways, buildings and other public construction.

A total of 24 were allocations on the basis of 30 per cent, representing that portion of the cost of labor and materials, being a direct grant, with the remaining 70 per cent being a loan.

The allotments included: Carlisle, Pa., sewage, $220,000; Franklin, Pa., water works, $1,500; Bedford Springs, Pa., school, $7,000.

Sewickley Nominee Of 2 Parties Dead

Republicans and Democrats of Sewickley within the next few days must select nominees for tax collector, as a result of the death Wednesday night of William G. Murray, the incumbent, who held the nominations of both parties. Mr. Murray will be buried tomorrow from his home, 517 Hill street.

At the election bureau, it was said, the parties' rules permit nominations for the office, but they must be certified to the bureau without delay.

Kelly's Speed Car Found in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The 16-cylinder automobile in which George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, fled after the Urschel kidnaping was found yesterday in Chicago.

Kelly had left it in a public garage when he fled on toward Memphis, where he and his wife were captured. With the machine he left a deed transferring its ownership to Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, his wife's parents.

3 Houses Robbed, Loot Exceeds $300

Thieves who looted three houses last night escaped with more than $300, according to reports to city detectives today. The adjoining homes of Ralph Taylor, 576½ Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, and L. M. Bupp, of 576 Peebles street, yielded $160, while $175 was taken from the home of Michael Mucery, of 1715 Fifth avenue.

Rector's Wife Dies By Pistol Bullet

SISTERSVILLE, W. Va., Oct. 22.—(AP.)—Mrs. George Wood, 43, wife of the Rev. George Wood, rector of the Episcopal Church, died last night from an accidental bullet wound suffered while handling a revolver in her home.

NAMES ON TWO TICKETS DIFFER

Dr. William J. McGregor and Dr. Vincent L. Marino, opposing candidates for the office of Coroner, will start their campaigns for the election next month, under handicaps. McGregor obtained the Republican nomination as William J. McGregor. When regular organization followers sought to help him by including his name on the Citizens Party, they listed him as W. J. McGregor, and for this reason he will not get credit for the combined vote of both parties.

Marino won the Democratic nomination as Vincent L. Marino. Friends wrote his name on the Liberal ticket and he also obtained this nomination, but as V. L. Marino. The same ruling will hold good in his case and as far as the elections bureau is concerned, there will be two individuals named Marino running in opposition.

LEAGUE SEEKS SCHOOL TAX CUT

The Allegheny Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League has sent to the Board of Public Education a resolution seeking a reduction in the 1934 school taxes. A special committee of 25 members approved the levy of 11¾ mills for 1933, but held that the rate should be cut for next year.

The action was taken early to give the school board time to draft its budget accordingly, it was said. The next budget is drawn up between the second Monday in November and the first Monday in December.

$25,000 Gifts Needed In Deficit Campaign

Approximately $25,000 must be raised by workers in the Y. M. and W. H. A. deficit campaign to offset accumulated obligations, Herman Passamaneck, executive director of the "Y," announced.

Further contributions will be reported by Hyman Rogal, general chairman, at a second rally and luncheon of campaign workers Monday at Kaufmann's.

SHOVEL DIGS UP OLD COFFIN

An old-fashioned wooden coffin, containing a human skeleton believed to have been buried more than a century ago, was unearthed yesterday by a gasoline shovel making a tunnel between the Pennsylvania Railroad station and the new postoffice.

The body was buried, it is believed, long before completion of the first railroad from Philadelphia in 1852. Veteran railroad employes were asked whether there was a graveyard at the spot, but none could remember.

An old map of the Pennsylvania canal entering Pittsburgh indicates a cemetary near the present location of the station.

The bones were taken to the morgue for cremation.

CONGRESS AIMS AT RUM LEVY OF BILLION

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A congressional policy of taxing liquor "all the traffic will bear" with repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was forecast today as the special House Ways and Means Sub-committee named to seek new sources of taxation prepared to open an official investigation.

Chairman Samuel B. Hill (Dem.), of Washington, of the sub-committee, announced the question of liquor taxation will be the first considered when the sub-committee begins new sessions Monday.

While Hill declined to predict the revenue which may be obtained from liquor and wines, Representative Isaac Bacharach, of New Jersey, veteran Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, predicted that liquor, wine and beer will yield $1,000,000,000 annually. Hill said:

"Our experts have been working on the question of liquor taxation all summer along with their work of aiding the committee in stopping up leaks in the revenue laws.

REPORT DRAFTED

"We expect to receive the liquor tax recommendation from the Treasury in the near future, and will try to make a report by the time the full committee meets early in December.

"There are two questions, what tax will produce the greatest amount of revenue, and at what point shall we stop to discourage bootlegging?

"I think Congress will want to levy a tax as high as we can, to produce revenue and to avoid encouragement of illicit manufacture of liquor. It really is an actuarial question."

Bacharach expressed belief that Congress may fix the tax about $3 a gallon, as compared to the existing tax of $1.10.

Hill forecast a determination on the part of Congress to use the tariff on liquor to prevent discrimination against American trade by Great Britain, Canada, the Irish Free State, France, Spain and Italy—all producers of whisky and wine.

EMBARGO ORDERED

A general temporary embargo on the importation of foreign liquors and wines has been ordered by President Roosevelt to enable the administration to retain a measure of control over the liquor situation, indirectly serve notice on France and other debt-defaulters that they cannot flood American markets, and to protect American producers. Hill said:

"The Tariff Commission is studying the question of traiffs. I see no objection to letting in liquor to supplement what we can provide.

"If foreign nations shut us out of their markets, however, we will retaliate. If they treat us fairly we can afford to engage in a measure of international trade through liquor and wines."

Hill expressed belief that liquor taxes and plugging up of loopholes in the general revenue laws will enable Congress to repeal many nuisance taxes.

RULING ON RUM 'ADS' NEAR

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Liquor advertisements not intended to promote violation of the law do not constitute a federal offense, it is announced by Attorney General Cummings.

Some recent advertisements, however, have "overstepped the bounds," he said, adding that the whole matter was being studied with a view to general clarification.

He said he would confer with the Postoffice Department and within a few days would issue a statement clearing up the situation. The exact wording of advertisements will determine whether the law has been violated, he said, so each case will have to be considered separately.

Cummings described the entire prohibition enforcement situation as being "very difficult," because of reduced enforcement personnel, failure of grand juries to bring in indictments on the eve of repeal, and failure of juries to convict except in most serious cases.

Distillers to Use American Grains

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(Universal.)—Agreement to use only American grain in distillation of whisky and other spirituous beverages, following repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was reached by a committee of distillers meeting here today to formulate a program.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar, stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly 90 per cent of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

Polly Betrothed

POLLY MORAN

Miss Moran, the movie comedienne and teammate of Marie Dressler in several hits, today engaged to Martin Malone, Los Angeles attorney whom she's to marry this month. She was married once, has been divorced since 1917.

POLLY MORAN TO WED LAWYER

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Although neither of the principles could be reached for a statement, it was reported by friends of the pair today that Polly Moran, screen comedienne, and Martin Malone, Los Angeles attorney, would marry this month.

Miss Moran and Malone have been seen together frequently in the past year. They first met about a year ago in the office of the actress' legal adviser, Patrick Cooney.

The marriage, if it takes place, will be Miss Moran's second, she having divorced her first husband in 1917.

Miss Moran was a teammate of Marie Dressler in several screen hits.

FAIR TO SERVE FREE BEER

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A Century of Progress Exposition will observe "Personal Responsibility Day" on November 8, officials announced today in anticipation that prohibition repeal will have been voted by 36 states.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly had suggested that the day be set aside as "Personal Liberty Day," and that free beer and barbecue be served to all comers. Fair officials agreed, but stipulated that the beverage and food be supplied by someone else.

Earlier President Rufus C. Dawes received a protest against the proposed beer party from Mrs. Margaret G. Munns, treasurer of the National W. C. T. U., who called the plan "an insult to thousands of people to whom repeal of prohibition is a symbol of lowered national standards."

SURVEY URGES RESTRICTIONS ON RUM ADS

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Reasonable restrictions on liquor advertising were urged today in a section of the report on control sponsored by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Raymond B. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott, who made the study, expressed the opinion that unless these restrictions are willingly accepted, there will undoubtedly be in the near future a complete prohibition of all kinds of liquor advertising under federal legislation.

In suggesting an advertising program they make these recommendations:

"Newspaper and magazine advertising to contain nothing beyond the name, the address, the date of incorporation of a manufacturer or dealer, a coat of arms or trademark, and a description in the simplest terms of the article or articles dealt in, such as 'Kentucky Rye Whisky,' or 'Cointreau,' or 'Italian Vermouth.'

WOULD BAN SLOGANS

"All additional advertising matter including slogans, to be prohibited except on approval of the state licensing board.

"All outdoor advertising except on the premises where sold or manufactured, to be prohibited. All outdoor electric or projecting signs to be further regulated by local fire, zoning and sign legislation. Content of advertising to be under the same restrictions as newspaper and magazine advertising.

"All advertising matter attached to vehicles owned by manufacturers, distributors and dealers to be subject to the same restrictions as publication advertising.

"All advertising through the use of calendars, pencils, golf balls, thermometers, free samples, cut-rate sales, etc., to be prohibited.

"Radio advertising to be subject to the general rules outlined for publications."

STIMULATES DEMAND

The report states that advertising artificially stimulates the demand for alcoholic beverages and calls attention to the flood of liquor advertisements already unloosed. It adds:

"This is but a foretaste of what is ahead of us. All this is inconsistent with any idea of restricting the sale of liquor to an unstimulated demand."

The report says it is difficult to see how such advertising can be definitely eliminated by state law under the license system, and suggests an authority plan for control of advertising. This authority could draft an advertising code and force its acceptance.

Half-Drunk Worst Peril, Says W. C. T. U. Analyst

Denial of Potency In 3.2 Brings Rejoinder

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The accuracy of University of Chicago chemists whose experiments recently found 3.2 beer to be non-intoxicating was challenged today by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which said there are stages of intoxication, of which some are more dangerous than "staggering drunkenness."

In an article prepared for the Union Signal, W. C. T. U. official paper, Miss Emma L. Transeau, research secretary of the Scientific Temperance Federation of Boston, charged that the Chicago chemists actually proved the opposite of what their report showed. Miss Transeau said:

"These investigators, so far as we can learn, showed that one to four bottles of 3.2 beer can produce as much as five parts of alcohol in 10,000 parts of blood."

Two parts of alcohol in 10,000 parts of blood; dizziness and willingness to talk.

Three parts in 10,000: expansiveness and willingness to loan money.

Four parts in 10,000: clumsiness and loud talk.

Five parts in 10,000: forgetfulness of inhibitions.

A. W. C. T. U. bulletin said:

"It is not the man who is staggering drunk, with 10 parts of alcohol in 10,000 parts of his blood, zigzagging his car along the road who is the worst menace. He advertises his condition and doesn't get far before he is stopped. The drinker the public has most to fear is the one in the lower stages of intoxication."

Not My Business, Billy Sunday's Repeal View

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(Universal)—The Rev. Billy Sunday, for years a vociferous foe of the demon rum, yesterday announced that prohibition is "none of his business."

The originator of the sawdust trail to salvation paid his respects to President Roosevelt at the White House yesterday and emerged beaming:

"We had a delightful time; perfectly delightful. Just a nice social chat. He's all right. He talked to me just as if I were real folks."

Asked if prohibition had been discussed, he barked:

"No, that's none of my business."

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—N. L. Patterson, Illinois Central Railroad dining service superintendent, says taxes will prevent railroads serving wines and liquors in dining cars should prohibition be repealed. Before the American Association of Superintendents of Dining Cars, he said:

"Taxes may be imposed by every state through which the car passes."

NAVY LEAGUE WARNS BRITAIN ON MEDDLING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—A warning to Great Britain that any further attempts to interfere with the American naval building program will endanger Anglo-American relations was issued today by the Navy League of the United States.

Criticizing Britain's recent unsuccessful effort to induce this government to postpone construction of the four 10,000-ton, 6-inch gun cruisers included in the present navy building program the Navy League in an open letter to the British Navy League, declared the British plan would make the American Navy dependent upon British naval bases in the event of another big war. The leter declared:

"Such a reduction would render us a negligible enemy but, with access to British naval bases, an efficient ally; an inducement to conditional vassalage that is far from palatable."

The Navy League added that Britain's action leads to the conclusion British statesmen, while declaring war between the two countries is unthinkable, continue to keep in mind such a contingency. It also said the move led to the belief that Britain apparently would not mind if the United States was defeated in a war in which Britain remained neutral.

Britain's suggestion that this government hold up construction of the cruisers in question was rejected by President Roosevelt last month. The British desire to limit the 6-inch gun cruisers to around 7,000 tons. With its far-flung naval bases, Britain does not need a vessel with as long a cruising radius as possessed by the 10,000-ton ships. The United States, on the other hand, has contended its lack of naval bases and long coastlines necessitates long cruising vessels.

Britain Fortifying Base In Pacific, London Stirred

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—A sensation was caused here today by publication in the London Evening Standard and the Evening Star of the following Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hongkong, British naval base in the Pacific:

"Owing to increasing naval tension in the Pacific, naval and military authorities at Hongkong are taking steps to safeguard the city, and as the first step naval and air forces will be placed on an improved basis."

The dispatch then gave the new defense plans in detail, pointing out that both Hongkong and Singapore, the principal British naval bases in the Far East, are open to aerial attack.

The sensation was heightened when the Star entirely eliminated the dispatch from its second edition appearing at 2:30 this afternoon. The Standard continued to publish the dispatch in its second edition, but also eliminated it entirely in its 3:30 p. m. edition.

Lord Beatty Pleads For Stronger Navy

LONDON, Oct. 20. — (AP.) — Lord Beatty, former chief of the naval staff, thinks it is a matter of "interest and of grave concern that the personnel of the United States Navy now totals 107,000, a 60 per cent increase over 1914, and that Japan had 88,000 in 1931 and has probably a greater number today."

He pointed out in a plea for a stronger British navy:

"Our personnel has been reduced to 90,300—a decrease of 35 per cent on 1914 numbers."

"Formal" Knits

"Formal" knitwear! Does the idea startle you? It's the freshest, most engaging idea old dame fashion has had in many a year. It is called "formal" because it invades the afternoon field, up to now so sacred to silks. It is bound straight for the storming of tea-times, casual supper parties, cinema palaces. It can't help winning, it's so all-American, different, easy-to-wear. And you can guess what Boucle-weaves do for heaven-born colors.

ABOUT CHICAGO NEWSPAPERS

Chicago's own retail advertisers gave the Herald and Examiner an increase of 60,719 lines in September, as compared with the same month in 1932. This is a larger increase than any other Chicago newspaper!

Classified advertisers continued to give the Herald and Examiner an overwhelming leadership for the fifteenth consecutive month.

Readers contributed a circulation total for the Sunday Herald and Examiner greater than that of any newspaper in the United States with the exception of New York. And the daily circulation is the largest of any morning newspaper in the nation at more than two cents a copy!

These figures on advertising linage, attested by the unquestioned authority of Media Records, Inc., clearly show the present pronounced trend in the Chicago field.

TION OF FOUNDERS' DAY

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Doing a Column

Mr. Archie Mayo, the Hollywood director and chairman of the committee out there to fight oppression of Jews, says that the movie men will not boycott German stars, as reported, but will only oppose those who join in the fight against them . . . This is uncommon sense and more like it . . . The newest feud between entertainers is that one between Mr. Holtz and Mr. Berle . . . While doing his act in a Chicago playhouse recently, Mr. Holtz was telling a joke only to be interrupted by an auditor out front who yelled: "Milton Berle told that here three weeks ago!" . . . Mr. Holtz halted his routine and said: "That's the trouble—when you are robbed you can go to the law about it. When we have our jokes pirated all we can do is punch the fellow in the nose, which is exactly what I'm going to do when I see Berle" . . . And then he sent a similar wire to Mr. Berle, who gets a little pale, but who always has an answer, no matter whose it is . . . Richy Craig, Jr., another of Berle's critics, was at the World Fair and enjoyed Ripley's "Believe It Or Not Odditorium" . . . It would be much better, he says, if Mr. Ripley would feature something unusual — such as Milton Berle's gall.

The workings of a gambler's mind certainly are difficult to savvy . . . There is the story of one who dropped $60,000 at dice last August without batting an orb muscle—and then got into his car and raced a train to Saratoga on a $10 bet! But he won it—and was thrilled . . . Interesting item that one about the French government—which is planning a wine shop in every large city in the United States . . . They will also feature California wines—a smart move—to stand in right with the local citizens . . . The newly-coined expression, "Where's Elmer?" which has aroused so many readers to ask the source, is explained by one of them in this manner: It was spread at the recent American Legion convention in Chicago by a group of vets from Kings County, N. Y. . . . It has no gag meaning, it appears, but is an affectionate greeting and a salute in honor of one Elmer Neilsen of that county, a popular restaurateur . . . Elmer Neilsen, they say, is not a vet, but they take him with them wherever they go for their parties, affairs and conventions—because when many of them—were strapped—Elmer Neilsen never failed them with vittels at his place—hence "Where's Elmer?" an affectionate phrase for a good guy.

The Vanity Fair Club, one of the new entries in the sector, has several entertaining items, including the comical insanities of Ben Blue . . . He will rate a line in history, it seems to me, because he is the first jester in a night club who refuses to bother patrons by introducing celebrities . . . Funny about Diane Bourget, the show girl. When Broadway recruited her from Eddie Cantor's "Whoopee" movie—the papers here called her a Hollywood beauty . . . When Diane returned to Hollywood (after being discovered on Broadway) the papers there listed her as a Broadway charmer! . . . You get a little dizzy trying to be accurate in such matters . . . Now that the fan dance is no longer a novelty in Chicago—the new fad is "shawl dancing" they say . . . And that Faith Bacon, one of the girls who popularized the fan dance before Sally Rand got $2,500 weekly for it—is now among the also-rans with that routine there . . . Sad about that waiter, who is in a critical condition after that attempted hold-up in that 8th Ave. restaurant . . . Only the day before he had to give up his insurance so he could send his child to the hospital for another operation, and now he isn't expected to survive.

Hollywood and some of its peasants have a way about them to show their jealousy . . . The papers from there tell how Mae West drew the snub of most players when her newest picture "I'm No Angel" opened the other night . . . Besides the regular stars of the same studio—the only other major star to pay his respects, it appears, was Will Rogers . . . It marked the first time in the history of Grauman's Chinese temple, they say, that so few players attended a premiere . . . I'm glad the jury completely exonerated Alice White and Cy Bartlett, her groom-to-be—of those charges.

The response to the cafes which brought back Paul Whiteman (to the Paradise) and Rudy Vallee (to the Hollywood) has given Broadway that much needed "shot-in-the-arm" . . . The ropes are up at both spots for the first time in seasons . . .

Bugs Baer was reminiscing about the old rendezvous that made Broadway popular—such as Rector's . . . And the reason Rector's failed when it reopened, said Mr. Baer, was that the feminine patronage had to walk up stairs, instead of down. . . . In those days, it appears, the ladies, after the long climb, were out of breath and weren't at their best—making their entrances in their finery . . . And that a lady in her finery only goes to cafes to "make an entrance" . . . Nowanights, however, at the leading places the approach is made by climbing long flights of steps—and the ladies do not appear uncomfortable . . . Yet one of the most popular rendezvous in New York, during its season, is Mr. Rumsey's Mayfair room in the Ritz—and while the menu and other attractions are first-rate—it is the long stairway leading down to the room proper that entices the peacocks . . . Making "an entrance" down those carpeted stairs at the Mayfair is the big show there on Saturday nights—and most of us pay the premium—to dine and dance—and hope this or that snob stumbles.

Costume Role Considered By Mae

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—You'll be seeing Mae West back in period costumes for her next picture. The star isn't finally set upon her story, but she'll probably play the belle of a Mississippi River showboat either of the post Civil War period or of a few years later.

James Timony, her manager, says that one of the important stops on Mae's forthcoming personal appearance tour will be New Orleans. And it is interesting to hear that a good part of the new picture may be shot on location in the southern city.

Mae is writing her next story just as she did "She Done Him Wrong" and "I'm No Angel." She lies in bed and dictates to a secretary.

Chiquita, 18-year-old dancer and psychic, whose predictions are sought and listened to with respect by plenty of Hollywood celebs, has been working with Joan Crawford in "Dancing Lady."

Here are her newest forecasts: That a brilliant marriage is in store for Greta Garbo. That the Swedish actress will not return to Europe for two and a half years. That Joan Crawford will marry again, this time happily, and may star in a New York play. That John Gilbert's comeback will be a sensational success. That Max Baer will become world's champion and will score in two more films besides "The Prizefighter and the Lady." That Ramon Novarro will not marry for eight years.

Here's one that the gossips will leap on with glee. Richard Dix went to the opera Monday night with Lois Wilson. Remember when they were Hollywood's most romantic couple? And Lois has never been engaged to anyone since she and Rich broke it up.

* * *

Wolfgang Lert, eldest son of Novelist Vicki Baum, plays on the polo team of the Urban Military Academy here . . . Telephoning to a friend in Hollywood, Sidney Fox says she has a picture offer and may be coming West in a couple of weeks. The tiny Universal actress retired from the screen a year and a half ago, when she married Charles Beahan . . Even when Max Baer came over to the studio to see her, June Knight would not make it up with the boxer . . . Stepin Fetchit read the story in this column and made a belated appearance at the Fox studio, where he is under contract. The colored boy with the funny drawl had no purple liveried chauffeur and footman this time. He drove his own car and went into confab with Jack Gain, big Fox executive, who is acting as his manager without pay . . . Still bothered with a touch of laryngitis, Jack Gilbert will go to the desert to bake out for a couple of weeks as soon as he finishes "Queen Christina" . . . What was Jesse Lasky doing trying to hitchhike a ride from the Santa Monica gate of the Fox studio to his offices, which are more than a mile away? . . . Al Jolson is back to get ready for "Wunderbar," but Ruby Keeler is staying two more weeks in the East with her folks.

Davis Movie 'Gets You'

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Three youngsters manage to "get" you in "Wild Boys of the Road," now showing in the Davis and Sheridan Square. Get you and start you thinking.

It isn't a pleasant thing, this story of a situation which is becoming increasingly serious. The picture is undoubtedly a problem one with its theme centered on the unfortunate young, who, like their parents, have been helpless victims of the depression.

The schoolboy bravado of Frankie Darro's Eddie, the almost wistful patience of Tommy, played by Edwin Philips, and the charm lent to Sally by Dorothy Coonan, portray an evil of which most people are as yet only subconsciously aware.

Opening with a high school hop, "Wild Boys of the Road" begins by presenting the usual side of the life of today's young. Then lost jobs, food from the community chest, "Leapin' Lena" sold for helpful dollars at the cost of tears, combine to introduce a despondent note.

The subsequent action — Eddie and Tommy hopping freights for Chicago where they "know" they'll get jobs, their meeting with Sally, dressed as a boy, whose family is glad to have her leave for Chicago and a long-unseen aunt, because then there will be one less to take care of—accentuates the grim seriousness of the child gang's plight.

You are shown these boys and girls developing a protective antagonism against all law. You go with them when they desperately fight the railroad "dicks" who try to chase them from their one means of travel, the freights. You see them in the "Sewer Pipe Town" and are vividly reminded of our own "Shanty Town."

You will especially remember Tommy, his leg cut off by a train, trying to walk on the too-big wooden leg which Eddie has stolen for him.

The directors, wisely, make no attempt at a wholesale "happy-ending" solution of the problem. Things are eased up for the three, Tommy, and Eddie, and Sally, but you realize nothing fundamental is remedied.

Jessel Heads List For 'Big Top'

George Jessel, stage and radio star, will head the list of entertainers at the Variety Club's annual "Big Top" banquet in the Hotel William Penn Sunday night. Jessel last appeared in Pittsburgh with Eddie Cantor in a vaudeville revue in Syria Mosque. The bill will include Mary Small, 13-year-old radio artist; Bob Hall, the rhyming monologist; the Landt Trio and White, of the air waves, and the Brown Buddie revue.

This year's "Big Top" banquet will be in honor of John J. Maloney, the Variety Club's retiring president, who will be succeeded by Harry Goldstein.

Opera Tonight In Mosque

If Pittsburgh has not become thoroughly opera-conscious the blame cannot be laid at the door of the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Grand Opera Company, which, after months of preparation, will present its first group of classical musical works tonight and Saturday. Its promoters are Pittsburgh people, William Maisch being president of the organization and Chev. A. Certo the general manager. The plan of organization divides the work into vocal, choral, ballet and orchestral groups, all under competent direction.

The result will be reflected tonight when Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" will be given in Syria Mosque. Saturday's bill will include Verdi's "La Traviata," as a matinee, and "Norma," by Vincenzo Bellini, in the evening. Guiseppe Creatore will conduct all three works, which are under the general direction of Nino Ruisi, maestro.

A last-minute change of the cast of "La Traviata" will have Jose Fujiwara in the role originally assigned to George Trabert, Pittsburgh artist. Fujiwara is a Japanese tenor and his appearance here will be his second in any city outside of New York. Other members of the casts are artists from the grand opera stage, including Nino Ruisi, Pasquale Amato and other internationally prominent singers, as well as Dorothy Jackson, Josephine McGrail, Caroline Hilmer, Maria Hauser and Percy Dorrington, of Pittsburgh.

O'Neill Tale In Fulton

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Eugene O'Neill's "Emperor Jones" has reached the screen in the person of Paul Robeson, noted Negro baritone, and in the elaborated form customary to the photoplay, and, as such, it is the interesting, impressive principal film of the new program in the Fulton, where it opened yesterday.

Indeed, the screen does better by Brutus Jones than the original stage play did, for it attracts sympathy to the small-town smart Negro, who is too clever for his own good. The play was confined to the limits of a powerful psychological study showing the mental degeneration, through fear, of a fugitive murderer, who has overplayed his hand among Negroes of an island to which he has fled. He has, by trickery, made himself emperor, but his arrogance has brought on a revolution, and he flees, expecting to make his way through a jungle to a port from which he can depart. The terrifying rythm of the tom-tom of pursuers, and his own imagination, lead him to a tragic end.

That feature of it is still preserved in the picture, but it is only the finale, the preceding part showing Brutus Jones as a quick-thinking Pullman porter, ladies' man, who loves 'em and leaves 'em, crap-shooter par excellence, as a killer (not unjustified, you may think) and as the nervy, intelligent chiseler who first makes himself a trader and then a ruler whose own power destroys him.

The only other person of consequence in the picture is played well by Dudley Digges, the only white actor in it, who makes the traitorous Smithers a paragon of sneakiness.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Walter Slezak, featured player in "Music in the Air," coming to the Nixon next week, is a Bavarian, son of Leo Slezak, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera. Young Walter was sent to medical school in Vienna, but it only took him one semester to discover that this was not his life's work, and he abandoned it to enter a banking house. That didn't last either. Machael Curtiz, the German picture director, offered him a chance in the movies, which he immediately accepted. In all, he had played in 49 pictures and a number of operettas and had made a very considerable name for himself when J. J. Shubert imported him to this country to play in "Meet My Sister" two years ago.

Katharine Cornell, who has spent her vacation in the Bavarian Alps, will sail Saturday from Bremen, Germany. On arrival in New York she will begin rehearsal of "Romeo and Juliet," "Candida" and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," in which she will tour this season.

ALL IN A DAY

By Mark Hellinger

Odds and Ends

IN A thriving little community not far from New York lives a young gentleman who has been doing quite well in his chosen profession. Said profession is nothing more nor less than the gathering of race bets from various taxi drivers who congreagte around the railroad station.

According to the stories, the young man seems to have been a hustler in his field, and he turned all his collected bets over to the bookmaker with complete regularity. From the bookmaker he drew the usual fee. That is to say, he was given 50 per cent of all the taxi drivers' losses each and every month.

The youngster was earning a fairly good living and the drivers trusted him implicitly. What came over him, I do not know. But for reasons best known to himself, he began to hold out bets on horses that he thought would lose. The bookie was none the wiser, and neither was the player. And he pocketed the complete bet himself.

Now that's a fine system so long as the horses keep losing. And the progressive young man had an unusual streak. His judgment was good, and every bet he pocketed finished out of the money. He was making money fast, but not quite fast enough. So he finally dug up a little scheme to help matters along.

He sent himself a telegram that was signed by the trainer of a famous stable. In it a horse was mentioned as a sure winner the following day. The young man, of course, picked a nag that would go to the post at least forty-to-one and had hardly any chance at all.

His scheme worked beautifully. In turn he showed the telegram to each of the cab drivers and urged them to secrecy. They all got down heavily and the young man soon had more than $200 in his pocket. What a cinch it all was!

If you don't know the answer, you should. The horse won, and paid a price of $52.70 to two dollars. The progressive young man hasn't been seen in town since. But if you ever read of ten or twelve cab drivers being arrested for one murder, you'll know he went back just once.

It is Eddie Paul who remembers the story of the eloquent woman who was addressing a gathering.

"Can anyone imagine the character of a man," she cried in stentorian tones, "who can stand by and let his wife be slandered?"

She paused dramatically to observe the effect of her question. To her amazement, a meek little man in the middle of the room rose to his feet and wavered there. She glared at him viciously.

"Do you mean to say," she thundered, "that you would stand by and let your wife be slandered?"

He sat down with an embarrassed laugh.

"I'm sorry," he apologized. "I thought you said 'slaughtered'."

Broadway seems to be booming again. The town now nurses seven or eight smash theatrical attractions, and night clubs are springing up all along the line. Evidently the boys expect the present winter to bring back plenty of prosperity.

Both the Paradise and the Hollywood, the two largest night clubs on Broadway, are playing to absolute capacity. They should—for the Hollywood holds Rudy Vallee and his orchestra, and the Paradise is the proud possessor of Paul Whiteman, N. T. G., and an extremely lavish show.

I attended the opening of the Paradise show and I was thrilled by the reception that Paul received. He is still what he has always been, the greatest orchestra leader of them all. Thousands of bands have come and gone since Paul Whiteman revolutionized modern music, but he still stands alone at the head of his class.

Incidentally, among those who welcomed Paul to the Paradise was Rudy Vallee. They are fast friends, although business rivals at the moment. Vallee made an excellent little speech in which he congratulated Paul—and never once mentioned the name of his own club across the street.

It was a class move on Rudy's part, and it demonstrated keen judgment. The man rates congratulations for it . . .

I don't ask you to believe it, but I know it happened. Two of the boys who make their living the easy way stood in front of the electric sign on the Times Building the other night. The sign flashed the news that the dollar had dropped to 78 cents.

"Look at that," growled one of the men. "The buck is down to 78 cents. It's a crime, that's what it is; a rotten crime."

"Aw," returned the other, "what are you squawqin' about? You ain't got no stocks or bonds, and you never drew down a day's pay in your life. So where does your beef come in?"

The first one shrugged his shoulders in disgust.

"Everything's gotta be explained to you," he retorted coldly. "In other days, a buck was a buck. Now every time I steal a hundred bucks, I'm getting gyped out of 22 cents on the dollar!"

ARCHIE SELWYN and George White gave a cocktail party the other night for Winnie Sheehan, head man of the Fox outfit and one of the grandest guys in the film business. When I walked in, the huge room was crowded with people. At the door, I met Selwyn.

"Nice party, Arch," I assured him. "How do you, as the host, feel that it's going?"

"Great," he replied. "But maybe you can tell me something, Mark. Who are all these people?" . . .

QUIZ ON BOND FOR COLLECTOR

Wilkinsburg's Council will hold a special meeting tonight, according to Attorney J. Clark Stewart, borough solicitor, to ask Walter K. Elder why he has not been bonded for the last two years. Elder, who has been Wilkinsburg's tax collector 20 years, said:

"I dropped my bond because of the high cost."

Attorney Stewart said he discovered Tuesday that Elder had no bond. His bond was formerly $50,000.

The Morning Musical at Hotel Schenley yesterday morning introduced again two attractive soloists and, especially on the part of the singer, gave us more music that is not overworked in these parts.

Mr. Lissfelt

Lucile Bauch, soprano, is another newcomer in our music colony and doubtless a young lady of considerable talent and schooling. Her Bach aria proved her a musician of sincerity and her other songs showed her acquaintance with a variety of schools in song.

The voice itself is fresh and of good quality; technically she is on the right track and there is not an offensive trick in its training. Diction might be cleared somewhat, and the slight vibrato in certain few notes can be eradicated to make the scale even throughout her range. It was quite a satisfactory performance.

Harry Azinsky is known through his association with our orchestra and is one of the better of our young violinists. He plays well, and that he chose to give us a Brahms Sonata so early in the day shows what a compliment he could pay his audience.

Miss Lefridge played the piano part and together they gave the work a straightforward reading. To make it the thoroughly rich music as Brahms conceived it would require months more rehearsal than these players are able to give for these programs.

Miss Lefridge also played accompaniments for Miss Bauch.

Divided Opposition May Aid Lane Again

By MARK SHIELDS

Attorney Charles G. Lane, Jr., who profited in the Republican primary contest for nomination as candidate for judge of the Juvenile Court, through a divided opposition, may be in the same pleasant position in the general election next month.

Lane defeated Mrs. Lois D. McBride and Gustav L. Schramm. Mrs. McBride secured the Independent and Socialist nominations, and Mr. Schramm, indorsed by the Democratic organization, was nominated by that party, though Mrs. McBride was a primary candidate there as well.

So far Mrs. McBride has not determined whether she will make an active campaign with the two minor party nominations she has. Even though she does nothing, Lane will gain somewhat because she did not withdraw. Her name on the ballot in any position is certain to mean some votes, in view of the strong support she received in the Republican primary, when she was defeated by Lane by only slightly more than 4,000 votes.

Many of those who were for her in the primary will take the occasion to continue that support. However, this vote will be inconsequential beside the total she might receive should she campaign actively. Most of the votes she secures would be taken away from Mr. Schramm, and the result might be defeat for both. It is extremely doubtful that Mrs. McBride would have much chance for success.

It is said on her behalf that many of her friends are insisting that she go on the stump again. But today Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the League of Women Voters, who was friendly to Mrs. McBride in the primary, indorsed Mr. Schramm.

Mrs. McBride's Decision May Determine Victory

There is much doubt whether Mrs. McBride in a campaign for the general election would receive the support she was accorded by District Attorney Andrew T. Park and his county detective force in the primary. That office went the limit for her, as did the County Commissioners and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley.

Mr. Park, however, is regarded as a regular Republican, and Mr. Lane as the regular Republican candidate would look much different to Mr. Park and his subordinates than did Mr. Lane the candidate for nomination in the primary.

The whole proposition is up to Mrs. McBride, and upon her decision may depend the victory in the Juvenile Court fight.

William A. Magee indorsed Schramm today, though Mr. Magee is on the Republican as well as the Democratic councilmanic ticket. This may be the extent of Mr. Magee's participation in the present city and county campaign. He has no intention of attending the Republican mass meeting tonight in Carnegie Hall, North Side, and by his friends, is represented as not intending to make any speeches between now and November 7.

What Mr. Magee's personal preference is between Mayor John S. Herron and William N. McNair, the rival candidates for the mayoralty, may not and probably will not be disclosed through any public statement. It is considered a certainty that he will not indorse Mr. McNair, the Democratic candidate, despite the fact he was put on the Democratic ticket after the primary election.

Primary Friend, Foe All Asked to Attend

Tonight's Republican rally will be accepted an an index of party alignment for the general election. Friend and foe from the primary have been asked to declare peace and accept and support the Republican nominees.

County Commissioner William D. Mansfield probably will go. Clerk of Courts Topley has been invited. Both supported Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell in the primary. Councilman P. J. McArdle, third aspirant for the Republican mayoralty nomination, also has been asked by County Chairman William H. Coleman to be present.

The judicial ticket will be on the platform, and each candidate will be asked to say a few words. The only councilmanic nominee missing will be Mr. Magee.

Senator David A. Reed is reported to be out of the city. But Senator James J. Davis will be present, and will have something to say on behalf of the ticket.

It is a reciprocal gesture. Mayor Herron went to New York to act as a character witness for the Senator in his trial, and now the Senator comes back to Pittsburgh to act as a character witness for the Mayor in his trial by the people.

Walter Huston's Son Freed in Car Death

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A county grand jury investigation of the traffic death of Mrs. Tosca Roulien, wife of a South American film actor, who was killed when she was struck by a car driven by John Huston, playwright son of Walter Huston, motion picture player, ended yesterday with the jury voting to take no action.

Huston told the grand jury and a coroner's jury his car was traveling between 25 and 30 miles an hour when it struck Mrs. Roulien, September 23. The coroner's jury absolved him from blame. Mrs. Roulien was the wife of Raoul Roulien.

ALEXANDER J. KOSTELLOW'S 'AFTER DINNER' . . . MENTION

The first Pittsburgh canvas to win honors in a Carnegie International: an honorable mention by Mr. Kostellow, member of Carnegie Institute of Technology's Fine Arts School faculty.

Second and Third Awards Claimed By Americans

By PENELOPE REDD

Pittsburgh receives its first honor in a Carnegie International with an honorable mention awarded to Alexander J. Kostellow's "After Dinner."

A Frenchman, Andre Dunoyer de Segonzac, was given the first prize award of $1,500 for a French landscape, "St. Tropez," but John Steuart Curry's "Tornado" swept th second honor and $1,000 for America, while Henry Varnum Poor's "March Sun" marched off with the third honor and $500 for the home land.

The $300 prize contributed by the Allegheny County Garden Club was conferred upon Max Peiffer-Watenphul's "Still Life With Flowers," in the German section.

Spain took two honorable mentions with Jose Gutierrez Solana's "Procession," and Mariano Andreu's "Harlequin."

The eighth honor was annexed by Stanley Spencer's "Sarah Tubb and the Heavenly Visitors," in the British group.

THE FIRST PRIZE

"ST. TROPEZ," by Segonzac, is a well nigh perfect archetype of the best in contemporary French painting. The canvas recapitulates the marked clarity t at attends the work of one who successfully images his own concept of the world. Thereby, creating a spirited painting which photographic representation could not possibly produce.

Rarely do paintings attain this existence in themselves wherein they are not mere references to time, place, or incident which might be equally well served by photographic reproduction.

Segonzac's color is somewhat bleakly autumnal, gray, cold blues, and greens, brown and dulled red-browns. His composition depends upon the eye to assemble the tapestry into a whole. He leaves the fancy free to roam about in the crystalline autumn air. It is an intellectualized pastoral and does not compromise on the side of the travel poster to stir extrinsic association.

Segonzac, 49 years old, studied with the conventional Laurens and the decorator, Desvallieres. His career, interrupted by four years of war service, has been a preoccupied one of etching and illustrating carried along with his intense concentration upon painting as an intellectual exercise.

FROM TORNADO LAND

"TORNADO," by Curry, like Segonzac's canvas, stands for the best of an entire group. Probably the success of this particular painting and other incidents of American life also depicted by Curry, will hasten the revival of a Currier and Ives School.

Curry has called upon the resources of the artist to fortify his American version of Father Noah. An unearthly green-blue light envelops the land. The drawing is convincing and the impression of fearful haste powerfully transcribed.

Curry, 36 years old, comes from the tornado land of Kansas, where he farmed until he went to the

With representatives of many labor groups in attendance funeral services were held today for Patrick J. McGrath, Western Pennsylvania labor leader, at the Thomas Payton funeral home in California avenue. Requiem high mass was sung in St. Francis Xavier's Catholic Church.

Mr. McGrath, who died Tuesday, was vice president and recording secretary of the Central Labor Union and long identified with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railways Employes of America.

1 DEAD, 4 HURT, AUTO TOLL

Mrs. Alma Johnston, 26, of 303 Mt. Troy road, died last night in Allegheny General Hospital from injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile near her home Sunday, the Coroner's office reported.

George J. Simon, of 117 Highland avenue, West View, driver of the automobile, was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office, the report said.

A woman, her daughter and granddaughter and another woman were injured when an automobile driven by Charles Vey, of 8 Ivory place, collided with a coal truck and another car and then rolled over three times in Sawmill Run boulevard at Enside street, last night.

The injured were Vey's wife, Josephine, 49; his daughter, Mrs Ruth Dowden, 17, of Bradford Woods, and the latter's daughter, Constance Dowden, seven months, and Miss Gertrude Cost, 18, of 227 Robinson street. They were taken to Mercy Hospital.

Vey's machine collided with a coal truck driven by Fred W. Bowes, of 708 Warrington avenue, and swerved across the road into the path of a machine driven by Mrs. Victoria Rotunda, of the Robinson street address.

The two cars collided and Vey's was rolled over and wrecked.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 20.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Vice President Garner, Postmaster General Farley, all the Democrats in Washington that amount to anything, Gov. Ferguson, and everybody in Fort Worth yesterday at opening of racing and to attend Amon Carter dinner.

Will Rogers.

Twenty or thirty thousand people at a beautiful race track in a state where the horse was responsible for making it what it is is a lovely sight. Texas is full of Democrats, full of resources and full of confidence. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

J. V. Thompson Auction Not to Aid Family

Not one cent realized from the auction of the thousands of items in the Josiah V. Thompson mansion at Uniontown can be claimed by the widow and step-children of the one-time multi-millionaire.

Just a few days ago some of these possessions, many of them imported by Thompson, were sold in a private transaction preparatory to the auction, which will be conducted by C. Lawrence Cook next week. Several years ago the Piedmont Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Union Trust Company, acquired the furnishings as a creditor of Thompson.

Representatives of Mrs. Thompson, who was the third wife of the coal baron, are finding difficulty in untangling the disordered affairs of the estate.

But even more difficult has been the search for any tangible assets. So far, no practical assets have been located, although Mrs. Thompson does have a $100,000 insurance policy. A spokesman for the estate said the reputed autograph of Button Gwinnett, which has been pronounced a fraud, has not been found. Mrs. Thompson said Tuesday she was confident this could be located.

Meanwhile Mrs. Thompson and her children are living in the East End in a house which was hers before she married the elderly Thompson.

'False Economies' In Schools Rapped

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Dr. W. E. Wenner, Ashtabula (O.) school superintendent, today was on record with a vigorous denunciation of attempts to undermine the educational system through "false economies."

Addressing 250 odd delegates to the Venango County Teachers' Institute, Dr. Wenner lashed out at "deceptive retrenchment in the conduct of public schools, under the guise of helping taxpayers."

Chevalier Sued In Auto Accident

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Damages of $10,450 were asked yesterday in a suit filed against Maurice Chevalier, film actor, by Charles Miller, a cook, and Jack Dyer, an actor, in connection with a motor car accident last September 15.

Police Doubtful Coast Suspect Is Slayer

City detectives today doubted that a sailor held in San Pedro, Cal., is George C. Skidmore, wanted here for the murder of a crippled gasoline station attendant three years ago.

The man under arrest is Ashley Skidmore. He was turned over to naval authorities for being absent without leave from his ship October 2. Police first arrested him on a morality charge, but the case collapsed.

Detectives here requested that pictures of the suspect be sent by airmail.

The search for Skidmore spread throughout the United States, South America and even China after, police said, he had been named as the killer of Charles Hammond, crippled attendant at a gasoline station at Warrington and Boggs avenues.

A companion of Skidmore's, Eugene Batsdorf, is now serving a term in the penitentiary. Another, Henry Uccelino, alias Henry White, is still at large.

Although police records gave Uccelino's address as 130 Oneida street, Walton L. White, a city fireman, who lives at that address, said he was no relation to the hunted fugitive. He declared that Uccelino never resided at that address.

TEACHERS END SCHOOL STRIKE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—One of Lackawanna County's two vexing strikes of school teachers apparently has been settled, but the other remains deadlocked.

Sixty-seven teachers in Jessup Borough received two months' pay yesterday and announced they would resume their classes Monday. They have been on strike since October 11, demanding at least partial payment of their 10 months' overdue salaries.

In Old Forge Borough, however, 116 teachers continue their refusal to conduct classes, their representatives having been told at a conference with officials of the Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg yesterday that the state can do nothing to aid the district financially. The district owes the teachers six months' salary and borrowed $30,000 in September to pay salaries due last January.

Civic Bodies Back Metropolitan Plan

The Greater Pittsburgh amendment, supported by the newly organized committee on metropolitan plan for Allegheny County headed by Joseph T. Miller, has been indorsed by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League of Allegheny County.

100 TEACHERS TO GET RELIEF JOBS HERE

Application of part of Pennsylvania's $250,000 federal emergency teachers' relief fund in Allegheny County will give approximately 100 unemployed teachers at least five months' work at a basic rate between $60 and $65 a month for a 22-hour work week.

Announcement of this activity, which is expected to start about November 1, was made by Dr. Ben Graham, superintendent of city schools, and Dr. C. E. Dickey, county school superintendent.

COUNCIL FORMED

Dr. Graham is chairman of the Allegheny County Emergency Educational Relief Council set up by Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction. Other members of the council are: Dr. Dickey, Miss Nell Scott, supervisor of relief; Harold Bucher, manager of the federal state unemployment office here; Norman L. Glasser, Carnegie school superintendent, and Charles F. Young, superintendent of schools in East Pittsburgh.

It will be up to the council to determine upon the types of special educational training for which the 100 teachers will be employed, according to Dr. Graham.

Three types of volunteer classes for the unemployed will be formed under present plans as outlined by Dr. Dickey: Classes in organizations such as the Y. M. C. A.; classes for high school graduates to be held in the high school buildings afternoons and evenings after regular classes, and vocational groups for the rehabilitation of the unemployed and for household economic courses for the wives of unemployed men.

RECEIVE APPLICATIONS

Teachers will be selected from unemployed teachers making application to the federal-state employment office, 622 Grant street. Those receiving emergency teaching positions within the city will receive $65 a month. In the county the pay will be $5 less.

All of the $250,000 federal grant to Pennsylvania is to be spent exclusively for payrolls to teachers in actual need, Dr. Graham stated, adding:

"This is part of a federal policy of work relief. All materials and classrooms are being donated, and the immediate supervision of the plan will be left to the local school authorities."

Europe Equips Bridal Bowers With Artillery

By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER

Each home has a two-tank garage with a bomb-proof cellar and a guest room lined with concrete.

She's glad it ain't the enemy.

All you require in a setting like that is a spark. And the fire will get worse when the firemen dash up wearing celluloid collars.

PITTSBURGHER WINS HONOR IN ART EXHIBIT

QUIET PLEASURE IN SUN

"MARCH SUN," by Poor, successfully unites landscape with figures to point up the mood of quiet pleasure in the spring sunshine. The landscape beyond the window with wind-blown clouds, warm grey and fugitive greens enveloping the tree-filled valley by the creek is an attractive foil for the substantial forms of the interior with brown woodwork, ruby draperies, and the pure, high color of the still life against the white tablecloth. The luminosity of the bright sunlight radiates the canvas. Like the Curry, the Poor is strongly native.

Poor, 45 years old, is also a Kansan. Slade School in London, Walter Sickert, and the technical disciplinarians at the Julain Academy in Paris were his teachers. Perhaps our greatest ceramist. Poor has also designed furniture. This award is harmonious with these times when an artist may be as versatile as 24 hours a day permit.

A DRAMATIC ESSAY

"AFTER DINNER," by Kostellow, is entirely self-contained without reference to psychology, illustration, or accidental mood. There is a "livingness" about this painting which makes it for me, the most vital canvas in the entire exhibition.

Kostellow has deepened the old lure of pattern to orchestrate a melodic line into the many voices of a symphony. He entraps the eye, not by showing you form, but by making you conscious of the plastic quality of space. He does not merely place figures to fill space, but he makes them to grow out of space. Thus his four figures are juxtaposed to compose a unity emphasizing the mother-space enclosing them. This effect is reinforced by his chromatic unity which is also essential to the entity. Frrom a distance the masses of the composition command concentration. At close view, the contrast of textures moving from dull to lustrous, to dry and over to rich impasto, are in themselves a dramatic essay in the art of painting.

PASSION FOR PERFECTION

Dealing with the picture as a communication of feeling, it becomes one of the most impressive in the exhibition. The subject of the family group is treated with a tenderness that has always seemed the especial secret of the old masters. There is a spaciousness about the concept, the technical method, and the human appeal in this picture which should go a long way towards making Kostellow's reputation.

Kostellow, dominated by that passion for perfection which is the mark of the master, was probably more surprised than anyone else at the honor. Working at the height of mid-summer, with the twin obstacles of hay fever and noisy building alterations going on about him, Kostellow says:

"I worked two or three hours a day for three weeks. Every stroke was irrevocable, for I started the whole thing at once and finished it at once. Most of the time after the first week was spent enriching the textures. Now I could sit down and paint a picture three times as good.

"Five years ago I stopped painting because I realized what I painted was imitative and not creative. My coming to the Carnegie Tech was important to me. I found so much of sympathy and helpfulness in my colleagues. I feel close to traditional painting, not as a formula to be copied but as an inspiration. To me painting is religion."

Kostellow, 36 years old, was born in Southern Persia of French ancestors. He was educated in France and Germany, and continued to study in New York at the National Academy. He taught in Kansas City and has also had considerable experience in designing for the machine. He has been in Pittsburgh as a member of the faculty at the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Tech, since 1929.

A BRITISH "PUZZLER"

"SARAH TUBB AND THE HEAVENLY VISITORS," by Spencer, is a typical British "puzzler" until one has the artist's literary key to the picture. Spencer remembers "Granny Tubb" of Cookham vividly.

His father related to him the tale of Sarah Tubb's religious ecstasy on the night the "Northern Lights" shown in Cookham to the terror of the folk. Sarah regarded them as a manifestation from heaven and Spencer has shown his imaginative visualization of Sarah's vision, wherein dwelt peace. Even the green grocer participated and all came bearing the gifts of her heart's wish to Sarah.

Spencer, 41 years old, has been taken into the fold of the Royal Academy and otherwise honored in proper British fashion.

CLASSIC COMEDIAN

"HARLEQUIN," by Andreu, is an exhibition pastiche compound of blue, rose, chartreuse, and orchid triangular in the background color. Strong accents of black in mask and cloak, and grotesque posturing pique the eye. Amusing but not compelling.

Andreu, 45 years old, has availed himself of the direct communication that one may establish with the masters through their works in the museums of the world. His diligent apprenticeship is being rewarded by the inclusion of his own works in them.

BROODING LANDSCAPE

"PROCESSION," by Solana, organized by an experienced composer of paintings, is direct in descent from the masters of his native land. In somber grey, black and brown, the Good Friday atmosphere is deepened by brooding landscape and solemn village houses. The moving mass of men with their quenched tapers and the figures of the cross-laden Man of Sorrows and the Mater Dolorosa, towering above them, are mordantly rendered.

Solana, 47 years old, is immutably Spanish.

THE FLOWERS CONFUSE

"STILL LIFE WITH FLOWERS," by Max Peiffer-Watenphul, will probably perturb others than the good ladies of the Allegheny County Garden Club, who gave the prize. The picture is somewhat Matisse and somewhat Persian and completely inchaotic. Arabesque patterned fabrics, fans and flowers are inextricably confused.

The color, as is to be expected, is the painting's justification. Some of the expert arrangers of flowers in the neighborhood will itch to renovate this picture.

Peiffer-Watenphul, 37 years old, should know better. But perhaps, inasmuch as he studied both medicine and law, he will do less harm in his present profession of painting.

However, the popular prize selection later will enfranchise all who yearn to cast a ballot for their own choice of the best.

Winning Paintings at International Bring Whispered Doubts From Public

But Loud Protests Of Other Years Are Missing

By MARGARET RUSSELL

Mr. and Mrs. Public are not so vigorous in their denunciation of the prize-winners at the thirty-first International Exhibition at Carnegie Institute this year as they have been in former years, it appears. Two years ago Vox Populae shouted loudly against the "grotesque quality" of "Suicide in Costume" and "The Fisherman," whose legs were "like trunks of trees," they said.

Remember?

Last night, opening night for the public, solid citizens could even recall with enthusiastic disgust what they dubbed the "caterpillars" on the curtains and the "cats paws" on the tablecloth of a first-prize Matisse five years ago.

But of Andre Dunoyer de Segonzac's "St. Tropez," this year's first prize picture, they had little to say last night. Of course, they didn't like it. But it was a whispered, half doubtful dislike, not a shouted denouncement.

PUZZLED, NOT REPELLED

They were puzzled, rather than repelled.

They stood close; they moved farther away; they studied it from different angles, as if determined hopefully to like it if they could. But they couldn't. Almost apologetically they admitted to each other that perhaps it was because they didn't understand it.

One serious, portly gentleman gazed long and hard at the first prize through a pin-point hole in his cupped fist. His father in Germany had taught him to look at pictures that way, he said.

THEY LIKE PICTURES!

A father and mother tried earnestly to understand the pictures because "their daughter was studying art," they said. Several lone middle-aged gentlemen were there "because they liked pictures, although they didn't pretend to understand them," they admitted.

Two men stood before John Kane's "Industry Increase." One said to the other:

"The trouble with John Kane is that he paints scenes right here at home that everybody can look at. Then he gets criticized if he gets a house or a tree out of place."

'NOTHING WORTH SEEING'

If the "man of the street," the teacher, the housewife, the businessman was shyly inarticulate and reluctant to be quoted on art last night, visiting artists were not. Adolphe Cherwin, New York artist, said of the exhibtion:

"What did I like best? I saw nothing worth stopping to look at. If modern art is expressed by the paintings here, art is minus any creative leaders. They all borrow from one another instead of adding any of their own personality by giving line a new meaning or color more sensitivity. The first prize is one of the best pictures here, but it lacks any real feeling or creative impetus."

"I admire her profound superficiality."

'TOO MANY ACROBATS'

Esther Phillips, Pittsburgh woman artist and prize-winner at the Associated Artists' Exhibit last year, said:

"I thought the show had too many acrobats and flowers. I am dreadfully tired of them. I think the prizes were fairly awarded. The first prize picture had satisfying composition, a nice feeling for texture, beautiful tonal quality and a rich sense of color."

Dr. Edward Saeger, Jenkins Arcade dentist, who professes to know nothing of art outside the human mouth, would have given first prize to Eugene Speicher's "Cowboy" if he had been on the jury of awards, because, he said:

"He looks so natural, like he just got off his horse."

But he was sure, he said, that Speicher's "Cowboy" never had a dream like John Carroll's "Cowboy Dream," a picture of a reclining nude on the back of a steer, which attracted much attention in the same gallery.

MEADE MADE COLLEGE HEAD

Dr. Gilbert W. Meade, a native of Duquesne, who will be installed as president of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., today, will confer upon President Roosevelt immediately afterward the honorary degree of doctor of laws, the first time a President has been so honored by Washington College since a similar degree was given President George Washington.

Dr. Meade was a son of the late Rev. Dr. Wesley G. Meade, pastor of the Duquesne Methodist Episcopal Church. A sister, Mrs. W. J. Osborne, of 8 Norman street, and her dauhter, Elizabeth Osborne, will attend the ceremonies.

RABBI FEARS FASCIST TREND

Only three members of President Roosevelt's cabinet are wholly in sympathy with the NRA, program, Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, declared at a membership meeting in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. last night. The three are, according to the speaker, Secretary of Labor Perkins, Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. He said:

"Franklin Roosevelt is essentially a humanitarian, but it remains to be seen whether the American people will continue to support his humanitarian policies or respond to the leadership of hard-boiled reactionaries who are beginning to challenge his program.

"If the NRA fails, and it is up to the American people to see that it does not fail, I fear we will have a movement toward economic Fascism."

Winning Paintings Saint-Gaudens' Talk Subject

What does Homer Saint-Gaudens, Carnegie Institute's director of Fine Arts, think of the selections?

He will answer this all important question Monday evening in Carnegie Music Hall when he gives the first of three lectures on this year's International.

Others who will give expert opinions will be Royal Cortissoz, of New York, October 30, and Frank Jewett Mather, of Princeton, on November 6.

BORICH APPEAL LOSES IN COURT

Frank Borich, alleged organizer and secretary of the National Miners' Union, has lost his appeal from a United States Department of Labor order for his deportation to Yugoslavia.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals sitting in Harrisburg yesterday dismissed Borich's appeal, asserting that Borich sought the help of a government "he seeks to destroy."

Borich came to this country in 1913 and was arrested in March, 1931, at the Pittsburgh headquarters of the National Miners' Union. A year later he was arrested on a deportation warrant issued by the Labor Department. He brought the case before Federal Judge Robert Gibson, of Pittsburgh, who refused his plea.

Musicians Barred In Pitt Broadcasts

The Pitt student symphony orchestra and band are not permitted to broadcast in the weekly Pitt programs until the university gets campus facilities for broadcasting, M. S. Rocereto, music and drill coach, announced today.

The band must stay off the air because union musician rules prevent unpaid bands from appearing in competition with regularly employed musical organizations, Rocereto said.

Challener, counsel for the Pittsburgh Railways Company, has filed a motion for a new trial in the suit of Mrs. Martha Olah, North Versailles Township, awarded an $8,000 verdict against the railways company for personal injuries, received when a street car in which she was a passenger collided with a truck.

North Side Fire Ties Up Traffic

Street car traffic in East Ohio street was tied up for half an hour this morning by a fire in the basement of Stewart's Market, 600 East Ohio street. RELIEF HEADS APPEAL FOR AMENDMENT

A plea for adoption at the general election of amendment No. 8, to provide $25,000,000 for state relief, was made at the Regional Relief Conference in Hotel Schenley yesterday. Representatives of 11 relief organizations in southwestern counties attended.

The conference was called by Eric H. Biddle, executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board. The program was outlined by Mr. Biddle from the standpoint of federal and state administrations.

He pointed out there existed only enough federal and state funds to provide relief at the present rate until December. Assistance to the needy will cease in Pennsylvania about December 1 if the amendment is not passed, he said.

The amendment was also discussed by J. W. W. Hallock, University of Pittsburgh Alumni Association; Miss Jessie Turnbull, Pennsylvania Hospital Association, and Maj. Philip Mathews, Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.

Of the $25,000,000, about $20,000,000 will be used for direct relief and approximately $2,500,000 for hospitals and educational institutions.

It was pointed out the amount of federal aid depends on the amount raised by the state. It was said the federal government had already stopped grants to one state because it had raised no funds of its own.

Miss Turnbull declared the defeat of the amendment would cause 163 hospitals in the state to lose 30 per cent of their appropriations.

ILL BOY'S SONG GREETS DEATH

FORT COLLINS, Col., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Robert Salaz, 16, died with a song on his lips.

Nurses at Larimer County Hospital, in hushed voices told about it today. They told how, ever since he had been brought seriously ill to the hospital last Friday, Robert had sung for them.

His illness grew worse, but still he sung on with all the strength he had. And the last words he uttered yesterday were the words of a song.

Hoover Was Right! Grass Grows in City Street

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—True to the Republican campaign cry of the last presidential elections, "Grass is going to grow in city streets."

Bert McCarthy asked the City Solicitor's office yesterday if the municipality had any objection to the use of Burke avenue here by him and his neighbors for a garden.

Upon investigation, William S. Edgemon, assistant solicitor, learned that the portion of the street has not been developed, so he told McCarthy to go ahead and raise his garden.

SUNDAY SCHOOL OF OLD PASSE

ST. PAUL, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—That good old-fashioned Sunday School where "you sat and were told something and then told it to your teacher again" was relegated to the limbo of unnecessary things by Miss Hazel A. Lewis, editor of Children's Publications, Christian Board of Publications, St. Louis.

She spoke before the Minnesota Sunday School Convention yesterday.

She said, in describing the former type of Sunday School:

"You were a good child. You sat and were told something. Then you told it again to the teacher."

Miss Lewis found that children take a great deal more interest in religion if they are permitted to share in the conduct of the Sunday School class.

She warned the session to exercise moderation, however, in letting the youngsters express themselves. She said:

DISABLED VETS' PLANS IGNORED

Charges that the Disabled Veterans of the World War had been ignored in arrangements for this year's Armistice Day parade apparently will not be considered by the Federation of Veterans' Societies, leaders indicated today.

Two requests of the disabled vets—that it was "their turn" to head the parade, and that the line of march be rerouted to pass the Disabled Veterans Home on Ridge avenue to permit crippled men to review the parade—were voted down. The action, R. M. Keogh, executive secretary of the organization said, was taken because of the friendship of the disabled veterans and the National Economy League.

Neither Col. W. R. Dunlap of the American Legion, nor Capt. John Bingham, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, named to the post of grand marshal, would comment upon the charges.

Other leaders however indicated the incident, as far as they were concerned, was closed.

Use Aspirin?

Then Look At These Pictures

They Show Why Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN is Rated the Fastest Safe Relief From Pain

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts To Disintegrate and Go To Work

Drop a Bayer Aspirin Tablet Into a Glass of Water

By the Time it Hits the Bottom of the Glass it is Disintegrating

What Happens in These Glasses Happens in Your Stomach

Quicker Relief Now From Pain

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence, to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glasses, above, tell the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headache, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

In all our feverish excitement about debutantes and their entertainments and brides and their weddings, we shall have to start our Christmas shopping soon.

One favorite place for Christmas shopping with many is at the annual Christmas sale of the Women's Exchange. And in buying gifts at this sale, you aid the women who make the articles sold by the exchange.

This year the sale is to be held November 28 in the home of Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., Devonshire street.

Sale on Nov. 28

Who'll serve on the many committees will be decided at the meeting of November 8.

The home of Mrs. Jones will be ideal for the sale—it's in the heart of Shadyside, and its many spacious rooms will permit a notable display of the Exchange's most attractive stock.

Although the sale's a Christmas sale, it's held always several days before Thanksgiving so that goodies of all sorts for the Thanksgiving dinner can be sold, too.

D. A. R. Pays Tribute to Heroine

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Members of the Pennsylvania Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution are paying tribute to Elizabeth Gilmore Berry, a Revolutionary heroine.

They commended yesterday the erection of a memorial tablet on the heroine's grave at Robinson Run Cemetery. As Elizabeth Gilmore she served as a nurse at Valley Forge, and then after marrying John Berry, a soldier, in 1780 she continued her nursing and at times shouldered a musket.

The couple settled in Washington County after the war. Margaret Isobel Forrest, a descendant of the Berrys, was presented to the convention.

On the recommendation of Mrs. John Brown Heron, of Pittsburgh, the name of the organization was changed from the Pennsylvania Conference to the Pennsylvania Society of the D. A. R.

Self-Respect One of Finest Things in Life

Are you a "Thrill Hound"—and do you think that the folks are just old fogeys when they warn you about that "fling" you are having?

Then listen to the story of another girl who thought that playing with fire was a "Big Bang."

My dear Elsie:

Can a girl who has made mistakes ever live them down?

Will people always condemn her for the foolish things she has done, even if she really wants to win back the reputation that she threw away?

Why should they hold it against her, when she wants so much to "come back"?

It's the story of my own sister, Camille. Perhaps Mother and I were wrong when we decided to let her make her own mistakes. We realized she was headstrong and difficult to manage. She disregarded our advice, said we did not understand; so we decided to let her learn to live through making her own mistakes.

It was not until I overheard three fellows discussing her—using filthy language—that I realized how she had lived during what we had not taken very seriously as "her fling."

Please understand, she wasn't really bad. Not at heart. She loved life. She wanted love—and in the effort to see all and know all, she fell.

PAYING HIGH PRICE

I went to Camille herself when I heard this talk, and told her all I had heard; not unkindly, but with a desire to help. She cried and wanted to go to "her Tony." "He'll know what to say. He'll stop that talk," she said.

And it was then that I had to tell her that her Tony was one of the three. That woke her up. It was not long before she understood just what she had done to herself, and she was ashamed.

She has fought hard to come back, but somehow people have her classed, and have lost respect for her. Is that the price she will have to pay, always? Will no one love her and respect her for what she is now, and forget what she has been?

She is not rotten. She made mistakes through foolishness and high spirits. I take off my hat to her now, for I have seen her suffer. I have seen her hold her head up, when she felt she could stand more.

She is young. She has said, "I am sorry," and has proven it. Why won't people understand? Is there no chance for her?

Please help me to help her. What more can she do to win her way back? DEE.

MUST FIGHT ON

What more can she do?

Why won't people understand? That's obvious. She showed them one picture of herself. Now the only thing she can do is to wipe that picture out and show them a finer one.

She'll have to prove to the world, as she has proven to you who know her, that the fine picture is the true one.

And that will take time, Dee. The way back is never so short as the way down.

But has she a chance? Of course she has. She has real decency. She has learned sense. Now all she needs is steady courage. So help her, Dee, to turn her back on the past, to look ahead, and to build herself into a new, fine woman.

Will the world honor her some day? It surely will. But tell her not to become too morbid on this subject of "public opinion." It's a great thing to have—but it isn't everything. The main thing in life is one's own self-respect.

There will always be doubters and sneerers. But if she is sure of herself, she need never fear the doubt of others.

So tell her to fight on, Dee. And here's one new friend who is betting on her a million.

Fay King Pities Lot of Girl Who Misplaces Her Affections

By FAY KING.

If it were not so sad it would be utterly ridiculous to see a girl adoring one man who neglects her, and not appreciating another man who adores her.

Anyone but the girl herself can see how little the one man really cares for her. He breaks his promises, he is indefinite about everything, yet she will wait in vain believing and hoping and making all kinds of excuses for him.

Family and friends rarely have the heart to come right out bluntly and tell her that he doesn't really care a bit about her. So, instead, they say other things about him, hoping in that way to change her feelings, and she takes it all as unjust criticism.

If she could only snap out of it and save herself heartache!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Cures" Are of Little Benefit in Sciatica

If you ever had sciatica you will agree with me it is a painful affliction and one to be dreaded. We hate all pain but this seems to be particularly severe.

Dr. Copeland

Recently a man talked with me about his sciatica. In his eagerness for a quick cure he had resorted to all the well-known remedies but had obtained little relief. His pain was intense and he was desperate for a cure.

The victim of sciatica must realize that this ailment may be due to one of many things. In order to obtain a cure it is necessary first to undergo a complete physical examination. The man I mentioned had failed to do this, instead he had resorted immediately to patent medicines, home remedies and "cures" recommended by everyone but a doctor who had found the real cause.

This disease is an inflammation of the sciatic nerve which is the largest nerve in the body. It runs down the back of the thigh and is embedded between the deep muscles of the thigh. At the knee joint it divides into two branches which supply the parts below the knee.

Because of its large size and position in the body, the sciatic nerve is extremely susceptible to blows, infections and inflammations. The trouble can often be traced to localized infection somewhere in the body. The toxins or poisons of this infection are carried to the sciatic nerve, where they set up inflammation.

Infected teeth, gums, nasal sinuses, tonsils, gall-bladder or appendix may be the seat of the disturbance. When the diseased organ is removed or properly treated, the inflammation of the sciatic nerve subsides.

Occasionally sciatica can be traced to a constitutional disorder, such as diabetes or tuberculosis.

The victim of sciatica first complains of a backache. The ache or pain soon travels downward along the course of the nerve. The pain is "shooting" in its nature and may extend from the buttocks to the thigh. In some cases it may even reach to the heel.

Sciatic pain may be so severe as to completely incapacitate the sufferer. He becomes bedridden and even then contact with the bedclothes causes pain. The symptom is usually worse at night.

There are many drugs that relieve the pain, but none that will cure. Cure is only possible when the underlying cause is determined and removed. After this is accomplished complete recovery can be hastened by heat applications, massage and certain exercises. This treatment prevents shortening of the nerve and further disability.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. T. R. T. Q.—My husband is losing his beard in patches on both sides of his face. The trouble starts with a little water blister and then the hair comes out. There is no redness or roughness of the skin. He is strong and healthy. The spots seem to have increased in size lately. What would you advise?

A.—This may be due to ringworm. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. O. M. Q.—What would cause one to yawn excessively, especially when reading during the evening?

A.—This may be due to lack of proper ventilation, to poor light or to auto-intoxication. Make sure that you are getting proper outdoor exercise and keeping your system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

To avoid eating lip coloring with the soup, get an indelible pencil of rosy loveliness. You put it on the same as any ordinary rosebud tint. Wipe some of it away; the rest stays put until soap and water are applied. There's no need then of dragging out the purse mirror, slapping on the lip health, getting fingers tinted and messing up a hanky. Also, the mind is at rest, since ordinary rouge comes off in patches.

If a gal must hang onto her long bob, have locks sweeping over her shoulders, she should take extra pains to have the hair beautifully groomed, so it isn't bouffant and bouncy. The bushed effect isn't any prettier now than it was when the permanent first arrived and the "floor mop" coiffure was the popular joke. Fashion says, "Show a clear cut outline of the head." Shaggy manes are not suitable for this season's hats, nor do they conform to the style of frocks that are being worn. Neatness is imperative. Even curls are being somewhat subdued.

Madge Avoids a Meeting With Her Husband

As I walked out of the dining room with Katie's cheery "I feex" sounding in my ears, I felt my spirits unaccountably lightened, as always, by my little maid's cheeriness and devotion.

I went warily through the dining room and corridor into the living room, listening for any indication that Mother Graham had changed her mind about taking a nap. When I found no sign of her in the living room I breathed a relieved sigh and was able to answer equably Lillian's questions concerning the happenings of the last few minutes.

"Congratulations upon having come out alive and with no loss of limb," she said with a grin, when I had finished. "Your world is safe for democracy, also for Philip Veritzen; and mother Graham will be fully restored to good humor when she is finished with her nap, so 'what care you if death be nigh?'" she paraphrased airily. "Take a look at this stairway, and see if it's the way you want it."

"I don't need to take a look to tell you that, but I am most anxious to see it, nevertheless," I said as I moved toward the door; but Lillian made a dash at me, grasped my arm and effectually stopped me.

"Where's your stick?" she demanded sternly.

"I don't know," I answered rebelliously. "I don't need it anyway."

"And I suppose we're going to let you be the judge of that," she gibed. "Come, now; tell mamma; where did her leave her little cane?"

"In Mother Graham's room, I fancy," I told her with a malicious grin, " and she's asleep."

BORROWS CANE

"That's out, of course; but it doesn't let you out, Harry!" She raised her voice, and her big husband lounged into the room from the hall.

"What's wouldest thou, adored of my soul?" he queried with a face like a "hanging judge's." "Please note that the word is 'What's,' not 'what.' It's more impressive that way."

"I am duly impressed," his wife told him nonchalantly, "or will be when you tell me where I can find your best go-to-meeting stick—the one that goes with the spats and the doeskin gloves."

"I'll be back in a jiffy," he promised, and was as good as his word, returning with a walking stick which he prizes as a memento of theatrical associates who gave it to him long ago.

"There you are!" he intoned, presenting it to me with a flourish. Then we all went into the hall, where I exclaimed with genuine admiration at the graceful loopings and twistings of oak leaves and laurel around the delicate mahogany curved railing of the stairway.

"It's perfect," I said, and Lillian echoed my encomium.

"It won't be bad when it's finished," Harry said deprecatingly. "We're waiting for your good-for-nothing husband, who volunteered to go after more laurel and oak leaves, but who, I'll wager a cookie, has stopped somewhere to exchange sweet nothings with some pretty girl. We can't go much farther until he comes back; we're almost out of greens."

HUSBAND RETURNS

Was it my fancy, or did his eyes react to some warning signaled him by Lillian from behind me? They are both so poised, such masters of facial expression, that I could not be sure; yet I certainly had received that impression of a swift, furtive warning.

"You know how he hates fuss of any kind," Lillian said smoothly—too smoothly, my hectic fancy decided. "He'll be himself again, once this wedding's over."

"I shouldn't worry whether he's himself or the reincarnation of Caesar," her big husband growled. "What I craves is laurel."

"And laurel's what you're going to have nothing else but, you wild ass of the pampas," Dicky said from the doorway. "Junior, you and Rod may help Jim bring it in from the car, if you like."

"Well! Tom Sawyer whitewashing the fence," he declaimed. "I hope you're calm and peaceful and ready for work, because we're going to finish this stairway before old Phil Veritzen gets here."

I found myself holding my breath for Dicky's reply, in an anxiety out of all proportion to the occasion. But I could not banish the query which kept repeating itself in my brain.

Why was Dicky "all hot and bothered?"

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Go to dinner and wear a smart dinner dress. A good model, suitable for afternoon or dinner wear, is a long-sleeved formal length gown of brown transparent velvet, with the bodice section in gold and red brocade. The bodice has a broadened shoulder silhouette without any actual treatment of the shoulder.

Be mysterious, with soft feathers framing your face. A very lovely theater hat is a new model made of stitched black velvet. It is a beret and has two sweeping aigrettes of burnt peacock that fall from either side of the hat, sweeping to the shoulder. With it are worn velvet gloves with bow cuffs and stitching to match the hat.

Gold star dust will make beautiful many a winter night this coming season in the form of a charming new frock. It is of lustrous black satin closely flecked all over with tiny gold stars woven into the fabric. It has a wide flared shoulder line, and on one shoulder is a bunch of shaggy chrysanthemums in gold lame.

Be a picture in black velvet and lace! A most delightful new evening frock of black velvet has long shoulder wings of starched white Venetian lace—shoulder crests that extend right down to the waist in back, where they are joined by a large square brilliant buckle. The skirt has low-placed godets and a short train in back.

Old Blankets

Save the old piece of blanket for covering the ironing board; there is nothing better. Wash them, then tack firmly over the board. Cover with a piece of unbleached muslin, stretched tightly, and you have the finest ironing surface possible.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Rare Force

Mr. Newman Lee Fitzhenry, of Stinson Beach, Cal., remarks that the Culbertson System of bidding seems to cope with any combination of holdings that it is possible to deal at the Bridge table, provided the holder of the cards has a reasonable flare for deducing distribution and psychological situations.

In support of this contention he submits the hand below, and remarks that it contains a bid which he doubts has often been used under the same circumstances. The hand was played in a set game between Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Goodsell, of Berkeley, Cal., and Mr. Fitzhenry and his wife at their home.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

Mrs. Fitzhenry
♠ A 10 3
♡ A K 6
◇ K J 4 3
♣ 9 5 4

Mrs. Goodsell	North	Mr. Goodsell
♠ 2		♠ 8 7 5
♡ Q J 3	West East	♡ 9 7 2
◇ A 8	South	◇ Q 10 9 5
♣ K Q 10 8 7 3 2		♣ A J 6

♠ K Q J 9 6 4
♡ 10 8 5 4
◇ 7 6 2

Mr. Fitzhenry

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣ (1)	Double (2)	Redouble (3)
2 ♣ (4)	4 ♣ (5)	Double (6)	Pass
4 ♠ (7)	Pass	Pass	Pass

I give Mr. Fitzhenry's notes on the bidding, which are quite interesting and original.

"1—A sound vulnerable Opening in second position.

"2—Even with a passing partner and a vulnerable Opening, this Takeout Double is warranted.

"3—A slight overbid, but considering the situation to date, and it being, no doubt, his last chance to 'talk,' the bid is justified on the theory that it may slow up the opponents and avert, as he suspects, a game contract.

"4—Just consider the following combination of circumstances: — This player has passed as Dealer; vulnerable opponents have opened the bidding; they have redoubled the Takeout Double of a vulnerable opponent; and yet this player wants a game contract for his side—in something. How can he secure it without fail in his own spade suit or his partner's theoretical heart suit? There is but one bid that will do it—an Overcall of the opponents' suit. When and where was this Forcing bid ever used under such a combination of circumstances?

"5—Alert Mrs. Goodsell is well aware of the rare situation developed to date, and, correctly analyzing her partner's 'redouble,' sticks in a right smart bid in an effort to gum up the communications between North and South.

"6—Mrs. Goodsell's bid has put my wife in a tough spot. My Forcing bid is still a complete mystery to everyone; she knows I have something good in addition to a probable void in clubs—but what? She wants to encourage me by indicating that her first Double was more than justified in honor strength, so she makes a safe bid, leaving it to my judgment as to whether it shall stand at penalty or game.

"7—From my distribution it does not look as though the penalty can be more than one trick, and the game looks like a cinch. Both conclusions proved correct."

Today's Question

I bid one notrump. Second Hand doubled, and my partner and Fourth Hand both passed. I redoubled. My partner had a weak hand and said he could not possibly bid. Was he right?

Answer: Your partner was forced to bid, and the weaker his hand the greater the obligation on him to take you out of one notrump redoubled. Your Redouble in that position is for a Takeout and means that you are willing to play the hand at notrump.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Signing the Register

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I are going away on a trip in a few days and I have been wondering how we should sign the register at the hotel as we are both single? Should we each sign it, or would my sister sign it and put the word misses before our names?

2—How should my mother sign the register if she goes away? Is Mrs. J. A. Thomas correct?

3—How should the register be signed if three of us went away together?

1—It is better for each to sign the hotel register . . . and remember that you always write the title before the name: Miss Mary Traveler, New York City.

2—Yes, this is correct, or, better is: Mrs. John Thomas, New York City

3— Mrs. John Thomas, New York City
Miss Mary Thomas, New York City
Miss Joan Thomas, New York City

Replying to Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Please tell me how to answer a wedding and reception invitation which takes place in two weeks, and how to word the reply.

2—Do I send a gift, and if so, what can I send? X. Y. Z.

1—I take for granted that the invitations are the formal, engraved kind. The invitation to the church, the invitation that "requests the honor of your presence," need not be acknowledged. It is the invitation to the reception, the invitation that "requests the pleasure of your company," that must be acknewledged. And it must be acknowledged "in kind," formally, and in the third person. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Zoll accept with pleasure Mr. and Mrs. (bride's parents)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of October, at five o'clock.

2—It is, of course, proper to send a gift if you wish. And the gift is sent to the bride-to-be . . . something for the new home, something in silver or glass or china or linen.

HATS AND GLOVES FOR DINING OUT

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Not so sea-going, the doughty little dinner hat, top left, though it is made of fish net as well as velvet, and follows a snail design. (Not escargot—snail!—it's American!) Below it is a skull turban of velvet, with lines accented by Paradise flues. Lower right, a velvet head band trimmed with Paradise. Top center, black suede with feather curls at high-low angles; top right, black antelope with Paradise which stands up like the tail of a lyre-bird.

Patou designed the mitt which the first lady at the right is showing off. It has a satin ruching of cherry red around it, which just matches the finger nail tint of the hands.

The second lady wears a six-button kid glove with a V cuff, which is stitched with color, Paul Chanut's idea. Both models are intended for wear with the dashing evening hats of the moment, as the sketch shows.

IT is true enough that the long opera glove of white glace kid is back with reckless abandon in the style scene, but it is not the only glove that enlivens the fashionable picture after dark. The vogue for coquettish little evening hats has brought out another type of glove better adapted to its own uses. It is the smart little novelty gauntlet or mitt, far, far too formal for plain daytime wear.

This new style has been like a tank of oxygen to the velvet glove which is really a very attracive gadget if it is worn with the proper things, and which was much too good to be relegated to the limbo just because it got off on the wrong hand, as it were.

BUT to get back to the evening hats, which must have gloves, and the right ones at that, they are a boon to the smart woman whether she lives in the center of urban life or uses her commutation ticket to go places and do things.

For it looks very much as if a lot of gay restaurant life were just around the corner, and toilettes that rate the name, rather than titivated street costumes, are to be most important in a woman's wardrobe. And what more helpful thing than a good-looking, flattering, extravagant hat can any woman put on when she is going out in wintry blasts that don't give a hoot for any hairdresser's art?

SOME of the models are solid little hats that cover all but the sculptured fringes of the coiffure. Others make a great play of cut-outs and the use of transparent sections to show off the tint of the hair as part of the model's effectiveness. Black, of course, is one of the most useful and popular colors, but the berry shades, the greens and the grays that are used for the new dinner suits of woolen or velvet all have a place in the scheme of things just now.

Through the Spyglass
Viewing the New

We've managed to get several big surprises together for you here today. A few items which will be helpful over the week-end. For information on where to find them, call Grant 6500 and ask for the Spyglass, or send a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

Olives . . . great big, fat fellows with chubby cheeks you'll want to bite first thing! These (large green ones) come in big jars now for 29c . . . if you know where! The largest jar of them for their size and price we've seen . . . and we are ALWAYS watching for these, our favorite fruit!

Also some cake mix . . . which in itself is not so exciting, but which when packed four cans to a box at 87c instead of $1, becomes an item worth exclamations! Devil's Food, Gingerbread, Spice, and Molasses Cookie mixtures—add water, stir, and you're ready to bake!

And with our mind still in the region of our tummy, we hasten to add the dope on glace fruits which are arriving daily. We spied one box of them for only 39c . . . cherries, apricots, figs, and pineapple (other of those queer looking green bites too)! If you are classed amongst the lotus-eaters, these are for you! Incidentally, you know they keep practically "forever!"

Fuss 'n' feathers might be the title of this little dissertation . . . it's feathery enough at any rate! Fashion's way of tickling her fancy, we suppose!

Feathers in large whorls on three sides of beautiful evening 'kerchiefs of chiffon . . . black, white and pastels . . . and a good brain wave on your part would be to put these aside for gift-giving (they're very apt to be more then!) $2.25.

"Cowls" to hang 'round your neck in monkish fashion . . . and with coq feathers to make them unseemly for a mere monk! The one we liked was black satin with black coq . . . $5.98. Nice way to youthify a drooping last year's dinner gown! And there are bags to match these . . . feather edged . . . at $3.25!

Black and white as any domino . . . the season's smart vogue is found in this comprehensive new grouping of frocks we chanced upon! As far back as we remember black and white has been "good" . . . and today is no exception as proved by these $19.75-ers! Black crepe for one, with satin bands at bottom and crisp white grosgrain ruching at throat and wrists in a manner that would be very maiden-lady if it were not for its quirk of sophistication!

And others . . . one with a large white pique inverted triangle smacked square against your whole frontage, both chinwards and shoulderwards! And new, sparkly, square buttons! All the silks are pure dye . . . fabrics include some faille crepes . . . and there's a snooty marblelized cire satin over which we could become droolingly praiseful! Sizes 12 to 20 (note all "whitenesses" are detachable . . . thank fortune!)

What the well greased girl will wear—toilet preparations we know about for $1.10 the whole set! Made by a famous personage in the cosmetic world—and offered in combination with what would ordinarily be a $3.30 facial masque—ALL, we repeat, for this really retiring sum! Boxed, cleansing and velvet cream . . . making a prize of three excellent creams!

And a word in your ear just now . . . huck towels beloved of every dishwashing heart, are putting in an appearance for 19c . . . . pure linen huck and 33 inches long! Did'st ever hear of such abandon on the part of a shop? Giving them away, we'd call it!

Prepare for a laugh! We have been holding our sides ever since casting eyes upon the new game played with fortunas! For a fortuna, if you must know, is a queer little shell creature which lives in Hawaii, and now here one of the stores has them for sale in connection with a game . . . a GAME, we screech!

Firstly, you place your fortuna (brilliantly colored red, or blue, or green, by the way) on a runway or racetrack . . . then bets are placed! Pretty soon (unless he is balky) Mr. Fortuna puts out his crab-like nose and starts to walk up the racetrack whilst you become breathless! If he reaches the end first . . . pick up the marbles! It's the game of a lifetime and one guaranteed to be the life of the party! 2 fortunas for 75c . . . including racetrack, $2.25.

His proclamation follows:

"Whereas, by concurrent resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives, in 1926, the President was requested to issue a proclamation for the observance of Armistice Day:

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the said resolution, do hereby order that the flag of the United States be displayed on all government buildings on Saturday, November 11, 1933, and do invite the people of the United States to observe the day in schools and churches, or in other suitable places, with appropriate ceremonies expressive of our gratitude for peace and our desire for the continuance of friendly relations with all other peoples."

N. Y. SOCIALIST TO SPEAK HERE

Other speakers will be Patrick J. Fagan, president of the Central Labor Union; Aaron Levenstein, of the Young People's Socialist League, and John Slayton, of the Socialist party of Allegheny County.

Burgettstown Man Wins Ballot Place

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—On unofficial returns, C. W. Tope, of Burgettstown, won the Democratic nomination for county recorder. The official count showed J. J. Cleland, of Buffalo Township, won.

A recount in two districts gave Tope a lead of one vote and his name has been ordered printed on the ballots for the November election.

Pinchot Asks Aides To Back Relief

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—All state employes received a request from Gov. Gifford Pinchot today to support drives for relief funds in their local communities. Pinchot said:

"These local drives are the real basis for this winter's battle against starvation and misery."

Roosevelt Names Lowery Budget Aide

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today appointed Frederick W. Lowery, of Arizona, to be the assistant director of the budget.

Lewis Douglas, the director, also is an Arizonan, having formerly been that state's lone representative in the House.

League-Backed Legislation Successful

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Miss Belle Sherwin, president of the League of Women Voters, today reported to the national executive committee "unusual success" by the league last year in supporting and opposing legislation.

Of 293 bills supported in the state legislatures, she said 145, or 49 per cent, were enacted. Of 130 bills opposed, 103, or 79 per cent, were killed.

She reported 71 measures relating to child welfare and industrial conditions of women enacted and 51 bills "to improve the nature and functions of government."

She said:

"Forty bills seriously crippling educational facilities were opposed, 26 successfully. Scarcely a state league escaped the necessity of defending educational standards.

"More than one-half the leagues reporting supported appropriations for maternity and infancy hygiene work.

"In eight of the nine states which ratified the child labor amendment the league actively participated in its passage.

"Ten state leagues defeated bills breaking down the direct primary laws. In nine states the league successfully fought against bills providing for the discharge of married women workers."

4 BANKS HERE GET STATE'S APPROVAL

Eleven more state banks, four of them in the Pittsburgh district, have had reorganization plans approved by the State Department of Banking, according to word from Harrisburg.

New banks on the approved list here are the Brentwood State Bank, the St. Clair Savings and Trust Company, the First Bank and Trust Company of Jeannette and the Imperial State Bank, of Imperial.

They can be opened for unlimited operations as soon as they conform with the reorganization requirements, which in most cases involve sale of new stock.

A new Lawrenceville bank, to be known as the Central National Bank, has been revealed through purchase of $100,000 of its preferred stock by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The new bank has an option on the building and equipment of the Pennsylvania Savings and Trust Company, Penn avenue and Butler street. Dr. A. L. Lewin is president.

The Freehold Bank has approved two commercial loans under the plan set up by the NRA and has submitted them to the Cleveland offices of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. James C. Chaplin, president of the bank, said 75 applications for such loans had been received.

PINCHOT BALKS BANK TAX FOES

HARRISBURG, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—After conferring with bankers who urged repeal of the four-mill tax on money at interest, Gov. Pinchot yesterday said such a step cannot be taken unless money is provided from another source.

The tax is provided by the 1933 Einstein act which the administration contends transfers the collection of the tax from counties to the state and makes banks liable for payment. The Legislature, which approved it, also passed a bill to repeal it. Gov. Pinchot vetoed the repealer, saying the state must have the $8,000,000 revenue which it was estimated the levy would yield in two years.

A committee from the Pennsylvania Bankers' Association urged Pinchot to include repeal of the Einstein act in his call for the November special session of the Legislature. They said the tax, previously paid by depositors, will work a hardship on all banking institutions.

The Governor said the $8,000,000 expected from the tax has been incorporated in the state budget and has been spent.

M'KEE ASSAILS MILLS' STAND

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Presidential ambitions for 1936 were ascribed to Ogden L. Mills today by Joseph V. McKee, independent Democratic candidate for mayor, who characterized the former cabinet member's support of Fiorello La Guardia as a subtle attack on President Roosevelt.

McKee's assertions and Mills' publicly announced support of La Guardia, Progressive Republican seeking election on the Fusion ticket, threw wide open the national aspects of the New York City mayoral campaign.

McKee declared that Mills, secretary of the Treasury under President Hoover, knew La Guardia "is a communist at heart" and "unworthy" of election. He added:

"He sees in the campaign an opportunity to set up the Republican machine here in this city as a vehicle for Mills' candidacy for President in 1936."

OLD-TIME BOUQUET PATTERN 577

A Nosegay in Embroidery

There is something about an old-time bouquet that has a special charm for us, whether it is of real flowers or of quaint embroidery. This simple bouquet, made of dainty lazy daisy, French knots, and single stitch flowers, can be carried out in just that riot of color that was used in the bouquet of long ago. The ribbon that ties this nosegay has the effect of picot ribbon—a very smart touch—and is surprisingly simple to make, for just a running stitch with the picots in French knots form the ribbon. The motifs are effective on a light or dark material, and lend themselves to a variety of articles, such as: Scarfs, tea cloths, bridge sets, handkerchief or lingerie cases, towels, pillow cases, pin cushions, sachets and countless other small articles that make most acceptable gifts.

Pattern 577 contains four motifs 5x12 inches; four motifs 1¾x2 inches and four reverses; six motifs 1¼x1¾ inches, and six reverses; illustrated directions for making the stitches; suggestions and yardages for a variety of articles that can be made of this pattern, and a color chart.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Boy Asks $100,000 For Loss of Hand

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—George Alexander, 14, appeared in Superior Court yesterday seeking damages of $100,000 from the Hal Roach Studios, Inc., for the loss of his hand on August 4, 1932. The youth was injured by the explosion of a bomb which attorneys said he found in a field where the film company had staged a battle several months previously.

AIR ROUTE OVER ATLANTIC FADES

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Prospects of a North Atlantic air line via Greenland next year faded today as British aviation experts discussed the results of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's Arctic survey as disclosed to them by the American airman.

From their conversations with the pilot, now on a visit here with his wife, the experts have reached the conclusion that Lindbergh's summer survey led to his forming the opinion that summer service offers no difficulties which could not be overcome.

The idea of winter service, however, is considered out of the question for the present and there would need be a test of winter flying before a definite conclusion on this point could be reached.

Just How Is It Pronounced Anyways?

DALLAS, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, revived by a speech here the old argument over whether the word "conservator" should be pronounced "conserv-vay-tor" with the accent on the "vay" or should be accented on the "serve." He stressed the "serve."

Byrd Can't Sail Until Tomorrow

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Jacob Ruppert, flagship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition now at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company plant where a special boom for handling the expedition's planes is being installed, will not be able to sail for Little America before tomorrow afternoon, it was stated here today by members of Admiral Byrd's staff.

Admiral Byrd was described today as almost completely recovered from the attack of pharyngitis, that confined him to his bed at the Monticello Hotel.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

A FINE CASE can be made out for the one-dish meal. Choose something, if possible that's new to your family and make sure there is plenty of it. Hearty soups and chowders, stuffed baked vegetables, eggs in numberless ways, stews and rarebits, not to mention the substantial salads, allow much opportunity for ingenuity in using up odds and ends and in providing variety for the light noon or evening meal.

PANCAKES WITH SAUSAGES—½ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 1 egg, cooked sausages, applesauce.

Mix flour and salt, add milk and stir until perfectly smooth. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Use griddle or frying pan, greased or rubbed over with a cut turnip. Heat pan thoroughly and drop mixture from tip of spoon onto griddle; it will spread to make a very thin cake. Cook on one side until delicately brown, turn and cook other side. Put a cooked sausage on each pancake and roll up. Serve with applesauce, hot or cold.

STUFFED TOMATOES—Four large tomatoes, ¾ cup cooked spinach, salt and pepper, ⅓ cup cooked ham, few grains mustard, buttered crumbs.

Remove tops and centers from tomatoes, sprinkle with salt and invert. Chop spinach, season with salt and pepper and put into the tomatoes, pressing to sides and leaving open space in the center. Chop ham, moisten with tomato pulp, add mustard and put into center of tomato. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 10-12 minutes or until crumbs are brown in a moderate oven, 350-400 degrees F.

LIMA BEAN CHOWDER—One cup dried limas, 3 cups water, 1-inch cube fat salt pork, 1 small onion, 2 cups potato slices, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 4 cups milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 6 crackers.

Cook 1 cup soaked dried limas or 2 cups fresh limas in 3 cups water until soft, or use 1 can limas. Cut pork in dice, try out and add onion cut in slices. Cook 5 minutes, stirring often to prevent burning. Add potato slices and 1 cup water and cook until potatoes are soft. Then add limas drained. Scald 3 cups milk in top of double boiler. Melt butter, add flour and when well blended add the scalded milk. Stir until mixture boils, then add to limas and potatoes. Season with salt and pepper and add crackers which have been soaked in remaining milk until soft. Serve very hot.

VEGETABLE LOAF—3 tablespoons melted fat, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 cup chopped celery cooked 10 minutes, 1 cup diced cooked carrots, ½ cup chopped walnut meats, 1 cup cooked or canned peas or string beans; 4 tablespoons liquid from vegetables, 2 eggs, beaten, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper.

Mix fat with bread crumbs, reserve ¼ cup and to remainder add vegetables and other ingredients. Mix thoroughly, form into a loaf on a sheet of greased paper, cover the top with reserved crumbs and garnish with whole walnut meats. Place on rack in

Chicago Man Hurt In Freak Accident

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The blow that Miss Sophie Michon, a salesgirl, received when she was struck by an automobile, caused John Oehlsen to be injured also. Miss Michon was thrown against him so violently that Oehlsen, waiting for a street car, was tossed in front of it and struck.

Phila. Policeman On Water Guard

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Three policemen, used to guarding and searching for stronger stuff, are keeping a 24-hour watch over water.

They've been assigned to guard an artesian well which is the sole source of water for a suburban section. The owner of the well has threatened to dismantle it unless the city buys it.

14-Year-Old Horse Kills Rattlesnake

CRESSWELL, Ore.—Dan, a 14-year-old horse, suddenly jumped into the air, twisted and landed with feet bunched in the best rodeo fashion. Observers thought perhaps Dan had entered his second childhood. Investigation disclosed, however, the old horse had fought a battle with a rattlesnake and won.

Sauerkraut Is Recommended As Year-Round Food

Early Egyptians Recognized Value of This Food, Says Health Authority, Who Suggests Both Fresh and Canned Varieties

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

When planning a dinner menu there arises often the question of what to serve for an appetizer. Perhaps the hostess overlooks the simple and tempting things and serves something difficult to prepare. She will find a simple, palatable and stimulating appetizer in the sauerkraut juice cocktail.

Sauerkraut has always been a popular dish, its use as a food dating back to the early Egyptians. It was first introduced into this country by the Germans. It has always been regarded as an important part of the diet in Germany and Russia.

Sauerkraut and sauerkraut juice have recently become very popular. This is probably due to the recent investigations which have resulted in a growing interest in vitamins. Sauerkraut contains vitamins, particularly vitamin C, as well as lactic acid and valuable mineral substances.

Though everyone knows about sauerkraut, few realize that it does not differ from cabbage in its food values. Indeed, it is merely pickled cabbage.

The close heads of white cabbage are cut into fine shreds after the outer leaves and cores are removed. Salt and sometimes pepper and other spices, such as caraway seed, are added and the combination is thoroughly mixed.

PACKED IN CASKS

The mixture is packed in casks and allowed to stand. Fermentation soon takes place and various acids, particularly lactic acid, are formed.

Another form of sauerkraut is made by packing chopped cabbage into barrels of salted vinegar and allowing it to ferment. It is a valuable food and is used as a broth with meat.

There are many ways of serving sauerkraut. As a hot dish it is delicious and stimulating. It may be served as a vegetable or relish, or cooked with spareribs, pork or corned beef. When lemon juice is used with it instead of vinegar, the vitamin C content is increased.

ALWAYS AVAILABLE

It is now possible to purchase canned sauerkraut. The canned variety is of excellent flavor and contains all the nutritive elements found in fresh sauerkraut.

Sauerkraut is in season all year round. It is an economical food, easily prepared, palatable, nutritious, and has a pleasant flavor, popular with everyone. It gives variety to the menu and contains more nutritive elements than some other more expensive vegetables.

Sauerkraut juice is an excellent beverage for the housewife to use as an appetizer. It induces appetite and stimulates interest in food. It is sometimes difficult to get an invalid to eat. I can think of no better appetizer than a sauerkraut cocktail. It is easily digested, nourishing, and appeals to a jaded palate. In addition, it prepares the stomach for the meal to follow.

Autoist Brings Fire to Fire Chief

PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 20.—Fire bells clanged in Sierra Madre. Chief D. W. Richards picked up his telephone and a voice told him a fire was on its way to his station. A few minutes later a smoking automobile dashed up to the fire house. Firemen turned the hose on it.

CLOTHESPIN CRULLERS—A dollar to a—well, to a cruller, to be exact, that you have never seen clothespins used in just this way! Maybe these old-time twisted crullers won't make a hit at a Halloween party served with hot spiced cider or grape juice or iced ginger ale.

The clothespins must first be cooked in the hot fat before the dough is wrapped around them. This saturates the wood with fat and prevents sticking.

To make the crullers, beat 4 eggs until light and add gradually ⅔ cup sugar, ⅓ cup melted shortening and ⅓ cup milk. Sift 3½ cups bread flour with ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, and add to the first mixture. Roll the dough ¼ inch thick and cut in strips 9 inches long and ½ inch wide. Wrap strips around inch clothespins, starting just above the division in the clothespin. Slip the end of the dough between the two tips of the pin. Fry the crullers in deep fat heated to 375 de-

"Ach, dis cheese it make me homesick"

How Herr Keller loves his Borden's Swiss Cheese! Every time he eats it, his memory carries him back to the little village where he was born—for the flavor of Borden's Swiss is exactly like the cheese he ate at home in that peaceful valley in the Alps.

Yes, Borden's Swiss Cheese is made right here in America. But even the Swiss admit that it's as rich, as nut-sweet, as delicious as any cheese that ever came down from the Alps.

And its special Borden package not only keeps it fresh, but brings it to you without rind or other waste.

Meet these Borden Cheeses

Try Borden's Swiss. Order some from your grocer today. Serve it tonight. And let its goodness be the recommendation for other Borden favorites: Borden's Cream Cheese, Borden's Chateau, Borden's American, Borden's Pimento, Military Brand Camembert, and Liederkranz.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Lots of letters in the Mail Box today, fellows. They tell all about what patrols and Junior Patrol members all over the country are doing, and we hope you like them. We like to get letters, fellows, and any time you have news, let us know.

Billy Lightbody, of R. D. No. 2, Freeport, Pa., writes the first letter today, and is a new captain. He writes: "Our patrol colors are blue and gold. Our meetings are held on Saturday of each week and Wilbert Woods has been appointed first lieutenant. Since four of our members play instruments, we have formed an orchestra which we call the Lone Star Ramblers."

They're pretty colors, Billy. How would you like to have your orchestra play over the Junior Patrol program some Wednesday? Maybe we can arrange it.

Johannah Jarrell, of 236 Phillips avenue, Pittsburgh, has been elected a captain, she says in a nice note. She sends two pledges. But you should send the number of the membership cards for your other members, Johannah.

William Russell, Howard Batch and Alfred Carter are just some of the new members we have from the John Morrow school. Just the other day we got six pledges all in one envelope. How about starting a patrol in John Morrow school, fellows?

Russell Hiles, Jr., who lives at 35 Wilson avenue, McKees Rocks, is a new captain today. In his first letter he didn't send pledges for his members, but he saw the notice in the Mail Box and sent them today. That's the spirit, Russell. Every Patrol member should read the Mail Box daily.

Genevieve and La Verne Cassidy, of 312 Sloan street are new members today. Their colors are blue, and they have seven members toward starting a Patrol.

Junior Lehman Holds Young People's Night

Evangelist Junior Lehman, of Wheeling, W. Va., will tell the story of his life at Young People's night this evening in the evangelistic campaign he is conducting at the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street.

A rally Sunday night will bring the campaign to a close.

POLISH GROUP MARKS BIRTH

A jubilee ball, at the organization's hall tomorrow evening, will open the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the Polish National Alliance, Group 1013, of Ambridge.

Sunday the members of the alliance will participate in a high mass at the St. Stanislaus R. C. Church. Following the morning ceremony, a program will be held in the Ambridge Junior High School auditorium.

Attorney F. X. Swietlik, of Milwaukee, cenzor of the Polish National Alliance and dean of the Marquette University law school, will be the guest speaker.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexions, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

grees F. Drain on soft absorbent paper, take out the clothespins and sprinkle the crullers with powdered sugar. This recipe makes four dozen crullers.

VEAL PIE—1½ lbs. veal rump, 3 tablespoons shortening, 2 onions, minced; 1½ cups diced celery, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 hard-boiled eggs, sliced.

Trim veal. Cut in small pieces. Brown in fat. Add onions, celery, water. Cover closely. Simmer until meat and celery are tender (about 25 minutes). Add salt, pepper. Add flour, smoothed to a paste in a little cold water. Stir until sauce thickens. Pour half of mixture into baking dish. Add a layer of egg slices, then rest of meat and remaining egg slices. Cover top with—

Pastry: Sift 1½ cups flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Add ½ cup shortening. Cut into coarse flakes. Add 4 to 6 tablespoons cold water, using only enough to hold ingredients together. Roll out ¼ inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut a small hole in center. Wet edge of baking dish. Fit on pastry. Bake in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 20 minutes.

CHEESE PUFFIT—1 cup leftover cooked ham, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 half-inch slices soft bread, ¼ pound fresh yellow cheese, 2 eggs, separated, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups hot milk, 1 tablespoon fat (additional), 1 tablespoon minced parsley.

Put ham and onion through grinder. Pan-fry gently 3 minutes with 2 tablespoons fat. Arrange in a layer in deep baking dish rubbed with fat. Break bread (crust, too) into small pieces. Sliver cheese into small thin slices. Combine bread, cheese, beaten egg yolks and heated milk. Add additional tablespoon melted shortening, salt and paprika. Let stand 20 minutes, or until ready to bake. Add parsley. Then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into baking dish containing ham. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until silver knife inserted in center comes out clean.

PEACH WAFFLES—1-3 cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, 1½ cups diced peaches.

Blend shortening with the sugar and eggs. Stir briskly. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Then add the vanilla, lemon juice and diced peaches. Cook on a waffle iron, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve hot. Or, if desired, serve with sliced fruit or whipped cream.

Jimmy Long Gives Sports Review

James J. Long, editor of the Sun-Telegraph "Sports Comments" column and one of the world's keenest sports observers, reviews the athletic events of the week over WCAE tonight at 6.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the day's news over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15 and 2:15 p. m.; over WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

Famous Violinist In Radio Drama

John McCormack, Morton Downey, Nino Martini, Barbara Maurel have sung it time and time again—Vincent Sorey's composition, "Song of My Soul"—the melody that has inspired this week's outstanding radio drama.

And Sorey, the renowned violinist-composer, himself, plays the leading role in the dramatization heard over 11 stations in the Pittsburgh area today and tomorrow.

Adapted from a feature story appearing in next Sunday's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "Song of My Soul" is a romantic tale of a wandering Gypsy minstrel, charming women wherever he goes, and leaving behind him a trail of broken hearts.

Friday—WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., 1:30 p. m.; WHBC, Canton, O., 2; WALR, Zanesville, 5; WJAC, Johnstown, 5:15; WOBU, Charleston, W. Va., 5:15; WADC, Akron, 7:45; WAIU, Columbus, 8, and WLBW, Erie, 9 p. m.

Saturday — WWVA, Wheeling, 5:45; WMMN, Fairmont, 7, and WCAE, Pittsburgh, 7:45 p. m.

Humor, Pathos in Messages Broadcast to Far North

By AIRCASTER

When you hear of radio engineering cranks trying, as they often do, to send and receive messages to and from distant stars, don't sit up all night waiting to hear the results.

The answer, if any, won't come back for something like 100,000 years.

Radio waves which have been 40,000 years on their way to the earth from milky way, are being picked up with an antenna by Karl G. Jansky of the Bell laboratories.

The waves are electro-magnetic indulations about 50 feet long. On a radio set tuned at 14.6 meters, they register as a faint sizzling sound.

For more than a year Jansky has been picking up these celestial signals. They are not calls from intelligent beings somewhere else in the universe.

They appear to be a newly-discovered type of radiation from stars.

Like a wind which never varies, they come the year round from the same fixed point in space—the massive center of the Milky Way, 40,000 radio years away from the earth.

I have no statistics on the speed of spirit messages, but they're going some if they're any faster than radio!

Between the Lines

If you have any imagination, you'll find humor, romance, tragedy between the lines of the letters KDKA broadcasts to listeners in the Far North every Saturday night.

A recent message from Dundee, Scotland, relayed to a father in one of the Arctic outposts last week, told a pathetic story in a few words:

"Heartfelt sympathy," it said, "the children will be well cared for until you return. Have no fear, only courage."

And there's the brighter side of the short-wave correspondence.

There's a regular weekly letter from a lass in Llandaff, Wales, to her lover down east in Labrador, that has become so much a habit that they keep a lookout for it over at the station.

If the letter doesn't reach KDKA by Wednesday Lyn begins to worry about it, and ask his secretary:

"I wonder what's the matter with Mary this week? Her letter to Jack hasn't come yet."

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen!

Just when we were wondering what happened to Officer J. W. Thompson, who used to report police doings for the globe trotter, along comes a letter from his wife telling us that he has joined the group of lonely firemen and policemen sojourning in the Mercy Hospital.

Officer Thompson's leg, all encased in a plaster cast, prohibits him temporarily from mounting a mortorcycle. He was injured in the line of duty and not from cheering for the traffic division's mushball team.

I'm open for suggestions for a program stunt especially for the hospitalised police and firemen.

* * *

W. L.—What you want to do is to get in touch with Frank Harper's office at the Chamber of Commerce.

I'm sure he can furnish you with the code governing the meat packing industry.

Make a personal call instead of a phone call.

Dan Lynch,—Received your note.

It was Founder's day again at Carnegie Institute. In 1927 President Coolidge was here for the function.

I never forget that day because it was my first appearance on the network.

NUDIST PEEPER 'INITIATED'

Universal Service.

KENTLAND, Ind., Oct. 20.—Initiation of an involuntary nudist into their ranks may bring further court difficulties for the nudist colony maintained near here by sun-loving Chicagoans, it was learned today.

Culturists of both sexes are alleged to hove seized one Roy Taylor, 16, of neighboring Roselawn, when he invaded the settlement, stripped him of his clothing, and given him a ducking which he didn't want.

Alois S. Knapp, lawyer-head of the colony, will appear tomorrow in Newton County Court where a date will be set for his trial for assault and battery on charges brought by Mrs. Pearl Gouty, aunt of the alleged victim.

Miss Agnes Molter, Indiana's only woman state's attorney, said Taylor and other farm youths had climbed the barbed wire fence which surrounds the cultists' settlement and were staring wide-eyed at nudist activities when irate men and women members, forgetting to don clothing, seized the boy and ducked him in a pond.

Three-year Sentence In Counterfeit Case

Thomas Lee, alias Thomas Martin, 34, of Eighth avenue, McKeesport, was sentenced by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar, to serve three years in jail when he pleaded guilty to passing counterfeit $10 notes in Pittsburgh and Homestead. The defendant said he came here from Forth Worth, Tex.

The court was told Lee has a criminal record and has served penitentiary sentences.

Boston Merchant Drops Extra Name

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Abraham Lincoln Filene, Boston merchant, yesterday was given permission by Judge Arthur W. Dolan in Suffolk Probate Court to change his name to Lincoln Filene. Filene did not appear at the hearing, being engaged, his counsel said, in NRA work.

Filene's petition said he was generally known to acquaintances and in publications as Lincoln Filene or A. Lincoln Filene.

Aged Pair Renews Childhood Romance

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Renewing a romance of 60 years ago, Mrs. Mary Jane Cotton, 75, of Richmond, Cal., and John Henry Sullivan, 77, of Huntington, Ind., plan to marry next week, they announced here today.

Sullivan said he read of the death of Mrs. Cotton's husband in a newspaper three years ago, a year after his wife had died, and renewed correspondence with his childhood sweetheart. They will reside in Richmond.

BREAD RECIPE PROVES POPULAR

Will Be Repeated And Given Special Prize of $5

There have been so many requests for the recipe for five loaves of bread—a recipe that seemed to meet a popular demand on account of the current economic conditions in the home—that it will be reprinted in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. On top of this, owing to the practicability of this recipe and the interest that it has created among the women readers of the Sun-Telegraph, the judges are giving it an added award of $5.

This bread recipe originally received a $1 prize but the judges now believe it should have been awarded a first prize. It was submitted by Mrs. Morrison Smith, of Smithton, Pa.

Eleven cash prizes totaling $15 are awarded every day for the best recipes submitted by the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity—66 prizes every week. The first prize every day is $5 in cash and there are also 10 other $1 daily awards. All prize winning recipes are printed. If you have a favorite that has been enjoyed by your family and friends, send it to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MRS. F. E. UNCLES,
1254 McClure Ave., E. McKeesport.
ORANGE MARMALADE

Twelve oranges.
Two grapefruits.
Sugar.
Cold water.

Method—Cut oranges, lemons and grapefruit into quarters, and slice very thin, removing all seeds. To each pound of fruit add one quart of cold water and let stand 24 hours. Then boil until very tender and all is pulpy. Again allow it to stand 24 hours. Weigh and to each pound of fruit add one and one-half pounds of sugar. Boil hard about 20 minutes or until it begins to jell. Pour into jars or glasses. This marmalade is so good that everyone tasting it wants the recipe. I have made quite a lot of money for the church by making and selling it.

TEN $1 PRIZE WINNERS

MARGARET J. M'WILLIAMS,

Wipe pickles dry and cut into chunks an inch thick and scald in weak vinegar and piece of alum big as walnut. Drain pickles and throw away the liquid. To seven pounds of chunks use three pounds granulated sugar and one ounce each of whole allspice, stick cinnamon and celery seed with vinegar to more than cover chunks. Boil above mixture three minutes and pour over the chunks. Next day pour off syrup, boil down rich and pour same over chunks again. These pickles do not need to be sealed.

Put butter in sauce pan and melt; add flour, mix and, boiling slowly, add cream; when thick, add catsup and sauces; let boil, add salt, celery, a little chopped onion, let boil, add oysters. Serve as soon as oysters curl, in toasted bread cases. Toasted bread cases are simply slices of small round loaves of bread cut about two or three inches thick, scooped out, buttered and toasted in a hot oven until brown.

QUICK TEA ROLLS

One pint milk.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Three-fourths cup butter.
One teaspoon salt.
Two eggs.
One and one-half cakes yeast.

In morning heat milk (not too hot) and dissolve butter in it. Add sugar, salt and eggs and dissolved yeast. Beat thoroughly while adding enough flour to make a rather stiff batter. Let rise until frothy and light. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough, let rise until it doubles its size, then knead down. Mould into rolls and flatten them a little on top as they are laid in bread pans. Lay far enough apart so they do not touch. Let rise in pans and bake in moderate oven (350 to 375) for about 20 minutes. This recipe makes four dozen rolls.

BANQUETS END BAPTIST MEET

Two banquets last night closed the two-day convention of the Pennsylvania Baptist Association, in the Sandusky Street Baptist Church. One for women was addressed by Mrs. H. A. Pyle, of Philadelphia, and the other, for men, by E. H. Rhodes, Jr., of Toledo. The Rev. Harold C. Phillips, of Cleveland, spoke later on "The Business of Religion."

At the afternoon session the Rev. A. W. Beaven, Rochester, N. Y., said:

"The competitive spirit in home missions of the Baptist church is a pagan attitude, and the needs of the country can be met only by its abolition, with so-operation substituted. The missionary societies in the Baptist church overlap. They must be reorganized and co-ordinated."

These officers were elected:

President, W. Porter, of Pittsburgh; vice presidents, the Rev. Ralph L. Mayberry, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Pyle; recording secretary, the Rev. H. G. Smith, of Norristown, and treasurer, John W. Will, of Philadelphia.

State Water Works Group Elects Heads

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—John H. Murdock, Jr., of Washington, Pa., was elected president of the Pennsylvania Water Works Association at the thirty-eighth annual convention here last night.

Nathan B. Jacobs, Pittsburgh, was elected a vice president, and James A. Beck and J. N. Chester, Pittsburgh, executive committee members.

66 FEARED LOST AS SHIP SINKS

KOBE, Japan, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Sixty-six persons, including an Englishwoman, were feared to have perished today when the coastwise steamer Yashima Maru foundered in a typhoon off Suma near here.

Owners of the vessel said their figures showed that of the crew of 58 and 59 passengers, 51 survivors had been reported. She was en route here from Beppu, Japan.

The Yashima Maru, formerly the British mine sweeper Sunflower, at first was reported to have burned, but later it was learned she succumbed to the storm, almost within sight of her destination, according to survivors.

The typhoon also carried death to fishing fleets. Several ports reported that craft foundered or missing with their crews totaled nearly 100.

RETAIL SALES LEAD YEAR AGO

Total dollar sales of 507 retail stores in September in Pittsburgh were 4.0 per cent below those in August, but 18.7 per cent above those in September last year, according to the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh.

Between August and September in the past four years, sales of Pittsburgh stores increased three times and decreased one, the average gain being about 6.5 per cent. There was one less selling day in September than in August; average daily sales of the 507 stores, therefore, showed an increase of 3.7 per cent in September.

The average August-September increase in daily sales in the four years, 1929-1932, was 14.2 per cent. These percentage changes are not adjusted for price changes. It should be noted, however, that prices were strengthening this year, whereas in the past four years they were generally tending downward. Sales of all groups except grocery stores and jewelry stores were larger in September this year than in September last year, sales of some groups being substantially larger.

TOTAL DROPS

Department stores in Pittsburgh reported a decrease of 4.8 per cent in the total volume of business from August to September, but an increase of 2.9 per cent in their daily average sales. There was an increase of 25.3 per cent in the average daily sales between August and September last year, 1.6 per cent in 1931, and 19.6 per cent in 1930. September sales exceeded those in September last year by 20.1 per cent.

Department store sales in the United States in September were only 2 per cent larger than sales in September last year, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Combined sales of Pittsburgh department stores in the first nine months were 6.0 per cent smaller than the total in the first nine months of 1932; in the first two weeks of October sales were running about 8 per cent above those in the same two weeks a year ago.

TOTAL GAINS

Combined sales of all reported wholesale firms in Pittsburgh were 5.8 per cent smaller in September than in August. Despite this decline the total volume of business of wholesale firms in the district was 30.3 per cent larger in September than it was in September, 1932. Aggregate sales of all wholesale stores in the first three quarters of the year were 7.4 per cent above those in the corresponding period a year ago. Part of the rise, of course, was due to higher wholesale prices. There were fewer selling days in September than in August. Consequently average daily sales showed an increase of 4.7 per cent in September. This increase compares with a gain of 19.2 per cent between the two months last year and an average August-September increase in the four years, 1929-1932, of 8.4 per cent.

BANKS TO SELL NEW STOCK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—After many conferences and discussions over the past several weeks, leading New York banks yesterday announced their decision to participate in the administration's nation-wide credit expansion plan to the extent of some $200,000,000.

According to the vote of approval of the New York Clearing House, the financial institutions will expand their capital by issuing capital notes or preferred stock which will be sold, largely, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Under the leadership of the New York banks, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation hopes that at least $1,000,000,000 will be added to the total of the capital structure of the country's banking houses.

While late yesterday the boards of directors of five banks had voted to issue additional capital, it was understood others would take formal action soon. The five banks are the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, the Guaranty Trust Company, Bankers Trust Company, Bank of the Manhattan Company, and the Chase National.

RESERVE CREDIT EXPANDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Total reserve bank credit outstanding during week ended October 18 showed an increase of $36,000,000 over previous week. The reserve system ratio on October 18 stood at 65.5 against 65.7 a week ago and 63.3 a year ago. The New York bank ratio was 59.8 against 58.1 and 60.7 respectively.

The Cleveland ratio was 62.8 as compared with 63.9 a week ago.

STOCKS WEAK ON MARKET HERE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Some support came into the securities markets today, but restless traders apparently were still in the grip of indecision and prices dipped, rallied and dallied confusingly.

Stocks were turned over at a fast rate in the first hour, with minor declines and advances about even. There was a later sagging movement and a fairly substantial recovery, with many of the leaders getting up a point or more. The activity diminished noticeably after the inaugural rush. Grains provided little stimulus, most of them drifting irregularly. Cotton was fairly steady and other commodities were mixed. The dollar was somewhat firmer in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds were spotty.

An increase of 9,630 freight car loadings for the week, ended October 14, was about according to expectations. The gain was a bit more than seasonal, though, and was attributed principally to heavier shipments of coal and livestock.

Although many shaky margin accounts toppled in the early hours, and there was spasmodic liquidation by nervous investors, Wall street sentiment was not as bearish as might have been expected after the recent sharp declines. Some commission houses reported the reappearance of "bargain hunters" and numerous orders were received for stocks just under the previous closing levels.

Week-end business reviews were scrutinized closely by market observers. Dun & Bradstreet found that, while retail distribution seemed to be making a fair showing, the trade situation continued spotty. A slowing down of productive operations, it was said, appeared in the leading indices. Due chiefly to the "buy now" campaign, the agency added, the sales volumes of the chain and department stores showed an increase over the previous week.

Nothwithstanding denials of the French authorities that suspension of the gold standard was under consideration, discussions were heard in Wall street regarding the probable action of the markets in response to such a development. In some quarters it was felt prices would react drastically, at least for the moment. In others, however, the belief was expressed that if the gold countries were to abandon the metal base, it would mean world-wide currency inflation and a consequent buoyant advance of equities.

TRADE BUYING AIDS COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 3 lower to 1 higher with southern selling partially offset by trade buying. October, 8.97B; December, 9.13; January, 9.20; March, 9.34; May, 9.45; July, 9.62.

There was some liquidation of December contracts at the opening, but there was also arbitrage buying here against sales in Liverpool and the market steadied after the call on covering and trade buying. December rallied from 9.12 to 9.17, while May sold up from 9.44 to 9.49, making net advances of 1 to 4 points on active months.

However, demand was limited and a little buying on the steadier early tone of the stock market was supplied by slightly increased offerings after the opening of the wheat market. After the first half hour the market was quiet within a point or two either way of yesterday's close.

Very little southern selling was in evidence after the first half hour and the market was steady later in the morning on trade and commission house buying or covering which seemed to be encouraged by the action of the stock market and continued reports of a holding movement in the South. At mid-day December was selling around 9.24 and May 9.56 or 8 to 11 points net higher.

WHEAT BREAKS ON SELLING

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Grain prices underwent material setbacks early today. Sellers of all grains were in a majority, and there was a noticeable curtailment of aggressive buying support. Opening unchanged to 1¾ cents lower, wheat afterward showed losses all around. Corn started ⅛-⅞ off, and subsequently receded further.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

PENSION DRIVE FOR BLIND PUSHED

Utilizing the movies, meetings, mail, and radio, the Pennsylvania Association for the blind is entering on the final intensive stage of its campaign for the passage of Amendment No. 1, to be voted on in the general election.

An affirmative vote would amend the state constitution to permit the Legislature to appropriate money for pensions or gratuities to blind persons above 21 years of age.

Chief speaker in a series of addresses for the Pittsburgh branch of the association—there are 14 in the state—will be W. W. Hague, advertising counsel and past district commander of the American Legion.

BACKED BY HERRON

Mayor John S. Herron yesterday advocated the amendment's passage before a meeting of Pittsburgh city post No. 59, American Legion.

If passed, and favorably acted on by the Legislature, the amendment would affect 8,500 blind persons in the state, according to Eugene Morgret, salesmanager of the Pittsburgh branch of the association. Of these, 4,500 are over 50.

Morgret stressed the particular benefit the amendment could bring to blind persons in the country, unable to receive aid in workshops for the blind.

HELD 'NEW DEAL'

Appropriation by the Legislature would undoubtedly remove the need of having blind beggars on the streets, he stated.

Morgret also advanced the amendment on grounds that the "new deal" be extended to persons not possessing normal faculties.

The amendment has been indorsed by a number of church and civic organizations.

U. S. TO MOVE QUIZ TO CHICAGO

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Senate Racket Committee will move its hearings to Chicago Monday for a two-day period of discussions and conferences with law enforcement and public officials.

Col. F. S. Hutchinson, chief of investigation for the committee, said yesterday that much of the time will be devoted to police problems and remedies, followed by open forum discussion of prosecutions, criminal procedure, judicial procedure and remedial legislation.

Senator Copeland (Dem.), of New York, chairman, has invited more than 1,200 persons to the hearing, the third divisional sitting of the committee in its inquiry into racketeering and kidnaping. Previous meetings were held in New York and Detroit.

Among those invited to participate at Chicago are Gov. Henry Horner, of Illinois; United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings; Mayor Edward Kelly, of Chicago, and Col. Edward Randolph, of the Chicago Secret Six.

Knock Out that COLD!

Give It No Chance To Get Going!

A cold once underway is a cold hard to drive away! Let no cold endanger you. At the first chill or sneeze, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. ARRIVAL OF NOTRE DAME'S FOOTBALL HEROES FOR CARNEGIE TECH GAME TOMORROW . . . . COACH ANDERSON AT EXTREME RIGHT IN FRONT ROW

Local Pros Ready For Cincy Game

The Pittsburgh Pirates will leave for Cincinnati tomorrow morning for the game Sunday afternoon with the Cincinnati Reds at Redland Field. The Pirates will not have the services of Brovelli or Holm, two of the most dependable men of the backfield. It is doubtful if Brovelli will be able to play in the Boston game at Boston one week later.

Franklin Hood, the former fullback, who can toss a pass plenty far probably will accompany the Pirates to Cincinnati. He has been working out with the locals for the past few days.

SOCCER LEAGUE STUDIES REFS

By TOM BIRKS

The Keystone Soccer League will hold its first monthly meeting of the season at Bridgeville this evening, with a number of interesting matters to discuss.

One thing that the managers will have to take up is the referee question.

For some reason or other the league adopted a system of selecting certain referees to work the games this season, which so far has been far from satisfactory. In the first place the idea was not fair to other leagues that have to be handicapped with the officials that the Keystone League did not want.

The Western Pennsylvania Soccer Commission held its usual weekly meeting last night at headquarters, the high spot of the confab being the protest of Clan Douglas against a decision by Referee McArdle last Saturday in the game with Arsenal.

Arsenal scored a goal that Referee McArdle ruled was legitimate. Douglas protested and left the playing field before termination of the scheduled 90 minutes of play.

REDS SIGN BAUSCH

Michigan Offers Willaman Choice Of Pigskins

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Coach Sam Willaman will have his choice of two varieties of football for use during the game between the Ohio State and University of Michigan elevens tomorrow.

One is the common "smooth" variety of ball while the other, used by Michigan in practice this year for the first time, has shallow depressions running in helter-skelter lines across the surface.

Coach Harry Kippke has submitted both types to the visiting coaches prior to games played this year. Coach Charley Bachman, of Michigan State, chose the new ball; Coach Gil Dobie, of Cornell, the old type.

Billy Greenwood and Jack Barnard will clash tonight in the final match of the sectional elimination tournament for the national three-cushion billiard championship at Crookston's parlors, East Liberty, the winner to claim the right to represent the section in the eastern prelims in New York City.

Greenwood has won five matches and lost none in the local tourney, while Barnard has won four and lost one.

FALCO DEFEATS KID BERG

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The unexpected defeat of Jack (Kid) Berg led boxing experts to take another hurried look today at the relative fighting merits of Billy Petrolle and Sammy Fuller, who will clash at the Ridgewood Grove here tomorrow night.

Berg, an odds-on choice when he stepped into the ring against Tony Falco, of Philadelphia, at the Broadway Arena last night, dropped a split decision. The British whirlwind took the first three rounds and the last two but Falco, landing the heavier punches captured the other five and won the referee's nod after the judges had disagreed.

Nurmi's Wife Aims To Obtain Divorce

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Paavo Nurmi and his bride of less than two years have separated and, despite denials, it has been learned Mrs. Nurmi already has taken steps toward obtaining a divorce and custody of their year-old boy, Matti.

The Associated Press correspondent interviewed the wife at Turku, native town of the world famous foot-racer, and verified the reports that the couple disagreed on Paavo's interest in athletics as well as on the future of their son, whose feet caused disappointment to a father anxious to develop another runner in the family.

DUKES PRIMED FOR BATTLE WITH DETROIT ELEVEN

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Defense to Count Tonight.
Rivals Use Same Attack.
Notre Dame Still Magnet.
Irish Due to Cut Loose.
Panthers in Tough Spot.
Landis Rumors Doubted.

DUKES SEE CICCONE AS BARRIER TO FOE

With the Notre Dame system pitted against itself in the Duke-Detroit football fray at Forbes Field tonight, both teams using that style of play, victory is likely to go to the eleven that has figured out the more effective means of foiling its own method of attack. And with defense counting for so much, the Dukes hope to have one of the trump cards of the night in Ben Ciccone, their star center from New Castle, Pa. Not that Ciccone isn't equally good on offense. Consistently accurate passing makes this hard-working senior the most dependable center, bar none, that Elmer Layden and Joe Bach ever had.

Ben Ciccone

But it is on defense that Ben is particularly valuable. He is, of course, the key man of the line on that side of the game, and he is alert always. His ability to diagnose the enemy's plays, and an almost uncanny faculty for smelling out forward passes make him the star that he is. Ciccone spends more time in action than any other man on the Bluff squad, and the snappy and peppery chatter that he keeps up goes far toward maintaining team spirit and morale.

SEASON REACHES HIGH SPOT TOMORROW

As usual, the coming of Notre Dame marks the high spot of the local football season. Some cities might show a waning of gridiron interest after witnessing as many college and professional games as Pittsburgh has seen this fall—the Duke-Detroit contest tonight will be the thirteenth in five weeks—but nothing can crab the big Notre Dame act.

Changed teams from year to year take nothing away from the drawing powers of the South Benders. When one great eleven is broken up, the fans know that another, with new stars, will rise immediately in its place. Notre Dame has continued after the death of Knute Rockne to be the biggest name in football and to represent the highest standards of the sport.

LOOK OUT, TECH! EARLY SCORES MISLEADING

There isn't much at best on which to base any hopes for a Carnegie victory, but the Tartans can help any outside fighting chance that may exist for them by disregarding entirely those earlier Notre Dame games of 1933. Hunk Anderson's gridders were held to a scoreless tie by Kansas, and they defeated Indiana only 12 to 2, trailing 2 to 0 in the first quarter. Taken at face value, however, those unimpressive showings might prove misleading, with disastrous results.

Hunk Anderson

For it is strongly probable that the Irish have had the brakes on to date, and have not yet displayed anything like their real power. In all likelihood they'll be ready to turn it on tomorrow in an effort to keep up their Pittsburgh record, which shows only two defeats in 11 previous games with the Panthers and Skibos on local gridirons. Refusing to be misled by the early scores, and bracing themselves to combat the full force of an old-time Notre Dame drive, Howard Harpster's Tartans, with their fast-charging line and the best passing game they have had since the playing days of their present coach, may make a far better showing than some of the best football minds are conceding to be possible.

PITT APPEARS EQUAL TO BIG JOB IN WEST

In the Minnesota tussle at Minneapolis tomorrow the Panthers will be up against the hardest test of the season so far. The Gophers are pronounced a team quite likely to be one of the outstanding elevens of the year, even though they have lost since 1932 a great fullback in Manders, a pair of unusual tackles in Wells and Gay, and a star end in Robinson.

Those players have been replaced satisfactorily, three fine backs are retained in Lund, Proffitt and Tangler, and the sophomore squad is rated as being close to the best that Minnesota ever had. To beat that machine, and at the same time save something for the Notre Dame struggle one week later, will be a hard job for the Sutherlands, but with the power and new spirit they showed against Navy they look equal to it.

WOMAN FAN AMONG CRITICS OF GIBSON

"Recently you published a letter from Mr. Nixon, in which he said Mr. Gibson 'finished second with a sour pitching staff, an infield that got the heebie-jeebies, and an outfield that went haywire.' This is one of the reasons why many fans think there should be a change of managers. They feel that, even though Mr. Gibson may know all about baseball on the field and from the front office, he does not know how to manage his men and keep them fit.

"Physical unfitness appeared to be the only reason why such men as French and Birkofer couldn't stand up and pitch a nine-inning game in that last double-header in Cincinnati. Both know how to pitch, and, I believe, have it in them to be as good as Hubbell if they would only set themselves to it.

"The question is, would a playing manager, such as Pie Traynor, get closer to his players and work them into a stronger, more cohesive body, capable of better team work? I do not want to be unfair to Mr. Gibson, but it seems that something certainly is lacking in the present arrangement. Do our Pirates have an inferiority complex?

"I think the secret of Terry's success is that he not only knows baseball, but knows his men and knows how to keep them working for him. He is smart enough to ask for their ideas, and to use the latter when arey are good."

MAGNATES DOUBT RUMOR LANDIS WILL QUIT

Big league magnates, including President W. E. Benswanger, of the Pirates, deny having any knowledge of the reported intention of Commissioner K. M. Landis to abdicate his throne as czar of baseball when his present term expires at the end of 1934. One rumor said he might withdraw even before that time from the post that has paid him something like $700,000 since he took office in 1921.

K. M. Landis

Club owners, however, say the Judge never has intimated he intended to retire, and insist there has been no movement among themselves to unseat him at the end of his term. Any cry that might have been raised against the burden of his big salary was forestalled by the Commissioner's action in voluntarily cutting his pay this year from $65,000 to $40,000, and as far as failing health or a growing dislike for his job might be advanced as a reason for his reported desire to quit, the magnates report that at the recent World Series he appeared greatly improved physically and as ardently fond of baseball as ever. Most of the club heads are believed to be in favor of re-electing Landis a year hence.

A LITTLE OF THE '26 BRAND AND A LITTLE OF THE '28 MIXTURE . . . . AH! MAYBE THOSE TECH MAGICIANS CAN MAKE NOTRE DAME PLAY DEAD AGAIN IN GAME TOMORROW

IRISH ARRIVE FOR CONTEST WITH TECH

Coach Heartley (Hunk) Anderson and a squad of 39 Notre Dame football players arrived here early this morning, primed for their battle tomorrow in the Pitt Stadium with Carnegie Tech.

The Irish squad went immediately to Shady Side Academy, where they will remain until game time tomorrow. The team will drill on the academy field this afternoon.

Coach Anderson said that he planned to start his shock troops in tomorrow's contest, with Dan Hanley in at fullback and Don Elser, the 215-pound sophomore star, held back as the regular fullback.

Carnegie's Tartans, primed for their biggest game of the year, completed their heavy work last night, and Howard Harpster, youthful coach of the home varsity, said that the men merely would limber up this afternoon.

Tomorrow's clash will be the eleventh between Carnegie and Notre Dame. Notre Dame has captured eight of the previous games, while two went to Carnegie.

TARTANS CONFIDENT

Last year's game was the most decisive in the history of the series, but Carnegie is positive that there will be no repetition of the 1932 debacle.

Harpster will send his team out to win. Notre Dame will have the advantage of numbers, weight and experience. The Tartans will start two sophomores, Steve Trbovich at center and Steve Terebus at left halfback. They will be two of the smallest men on the field, too, Trbovich weighing 164 pounds and Terebus 148.

SKIBOS' PUNCH WEAK

The splendid defensive play of the Tech line to date is causing some of the more cautious to hesitate before they predict an overwhelming triumph for the Irish. Carnegie has shown little punch, except in the Temple game, when Pop Warner's 10-man line forced Tech to uncover the best part of its attack.

The game is the feature attraction of Carnegie's annual alumni homecoming, and Tartan grads from all over the country are in town for the game and the other festivities.

YAROSZ HONORED

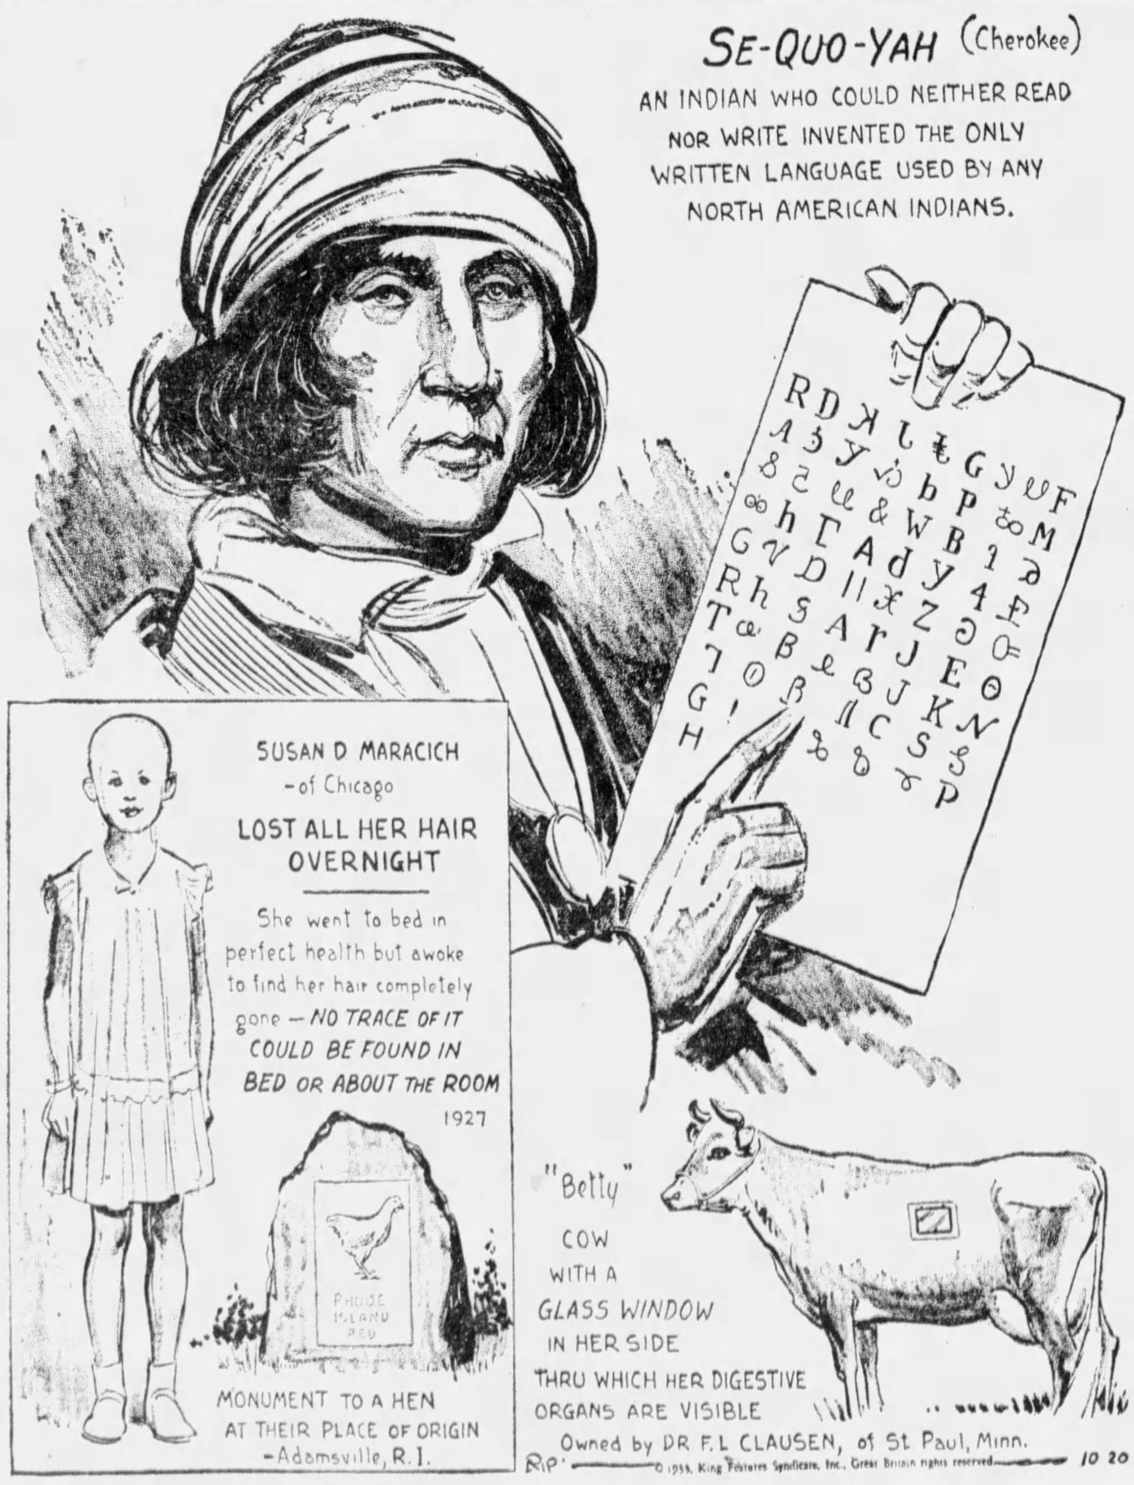
(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE WONDERS OF SALMON—The salmon which is hatched in a river goes to sea at the age of two years, but returns to the river of his youth to spawn and to die. The adult re-entering the river from the sea makes his way upstream to the head of the river with extraordinary power and persistence, overcoming swift rapids, climbing cataracts and leaping unbroken falls as high as 12 feet. This leaping power is the most wonderful thing about the salmon. He can make his way upward through a sheer fall of water as long as the water is in a solid mass. But, when the water is mixed with air, his broad caudal fin is unable to gain a sufficiently firm hold and the salmon must clear the fall in a single leap. There are well authenticated instances of salmon clearing a fall of 20 feet. LIVING ON CASTOR OIL—N. Luftius, an apothecary of Colmar, Alsace, in reacting to the oft-repeated pun that apothecaries must live on castor oil, wagered that he could make this statement literally true, and won after living on nothing but a diet of castor oil for 10 days, in 1905.

By JESS CARVER

Duquesne University sends forth its young men of football to face their sixth contest of the current season under the lights at Forbes Field tonight, pitted against the University of Detroit's Titans, who, while they are justly held in high regard and doubtless are no small potatoes as footballers, nevertheless do not figure to beat the Dukes in tonight's tussle.

To date, the locals have rambled over five opponents. In their two major tests, against West Virginia and Bucknell, they came through with colors flying. They beat the Mountaineers with ease and while they won by only a touchdown over Bucknell, looked at least two touchdowns better than their opponents.

DUKES ARE READY

Coach Elmer Layden has been drilling his men behind closely barred gates all week, and while George (Whirlwind) Kelly, who has been the liason officer between the team and the public, has been telling of mysterious goings-on behind the Bluff gates, it is this observer's opinion that all Messrs. Layden and Bach have been doing is putting the old polish on football machinery already perfected. The Dukes have shown enough stuff to date to beat Detroit (if they work right) without adding any hocus-pocus, and your correspondent expects to see the home boys come through with their colors fluttering more or less proudly this evening.

Detroit undoubtedly has the stuff, mut so far, it has shown itself to be almost strictly a defensive team. The Titans beat Wash-Jeff last week, but the Presidents were seriously handicapped by injuries in the backfield, which slowed down to a considerable degree the team's attack.

A week ago, the locals drew a good break when they were able to use their shock troops to a great extent against Western Maryland. Unless for strategic reasons he changes his mind at the last minute, the regulars will get the first call tonight. In that event, Captain Al Krankota and Baker will be at the flanks, Sinko and Niccolai at the tackles, Rado and Weinberg at the guards, Ciccone at

SCHOOL LEADERS RISK TITLE HOPES

WESTINGHOUSE, SOUTH BATTLE HEADS CARD

By JULIUS LEVIN

Leaders in both sections of the City League risk their chances for the local football championship in important battles carded this afternoon.

Section I provides the most attractive game on the program with South, present leader and favorite to win the crown, opposing Westinghouse High School in the Westinghouse Stadium.

South has chalked up victories in its first two games, defeating Schenley and Fifth Avenue, while Westinghouse shows one victory and one tie game. The Silver Lakers defeated Fifth Avenue and were tied by Schenley.

CARRICK AT LANGLEY

In Section II, Carrick High School, holding undisputed possession of first place as a result of two victories and no defeats, invades Langley Field to meet Langley. Perry, the defending champion, entertains Allegheny at Perry, and South Hills is the attraction at Oliver in other Section II duels.

Section I also offers a full program of games, Schenley tangling with Allderdice at Allderdice, while Fifth Avenue is host to Peabody.

Fifth Avenue, while failing to score a point during the last five seasons, has been showing steady improvement with each game and should give Peabody quite a battle at Schenley High Field. Peabody took a 42-0 lacing in Canton last Saturday.

Realizing that a victory over Westinghouse today will just about clinch the Section I crown, the South High gridders are set to give all they've got against the Burton charges. Last season Westinghouse barely managed to emerge with a deadlock, a recovered South fumble in the dying moments of a game at Langley Field enabling the Silver Lakers to tie the score.

LEADERS IN GAMES

The district schedule is headed by two important tussles, one involving two contenders for the class B championship, while the other is a contest between two staunch rivals, one of them the leader in the race for the class A crown, now held by Ambridge.

The attention of the class B supporters will be focused on East Pittsburgh, where Johnny Coleman's Terracemen clash with the undefeated Elizabeth High aggregation, a school that has chalked up six successive triumphs, including five class B opponents. Elizabeth has not been scored on so far this season.

Out at Scott High Field, North Braddock, the Reedmen, undefeated in five class A engagements, face an old rival in Homestead tonight. While Homestead has not been playing up to expectations, the Campbell-coached eleven always manages to display its best form when opposed to the Scott machine.

The Arnold School football team will play its first game of the season tomorrow in Columbus, O., when Columbus Academy is met. The second and final game will be played November 18 with Western Reserve Academy at Hudson, O.

DUKES ON EDGE FOR DETROIT

center and DeCoster at quarter, DeLuca and Strutt at the halves and Zaninelli at fullback.

TITANS DRILL HERE

The Titan squad, 28 strong, arrived in town late yesterday afternoon and went through a workout under the Forbes Field lights early in the evening. Coach Gus Dorias, a contemporary of the great Rockne, has announced a tentative starting lineup, which calls for Storrie and Reisterer to go at the ends, Barrett and Helmer at the tackles, West and Burns at the guards, Maki at center, Captain marsh at quarterback, McCracken and Young at the halves and Rajkovich at full. This lineup, like a woman's mind, is subject to change at any moment.

Graduate Manager of Athletics John Holohan, who had better either reduce or run for alderman, has been extremely busy handling the advance sale of tickets, which points to a turnout of 20,000 or more fans.

Three other games of high import to district varsities are on the board for tonight. West Virginia, beaten thrice and tied once in four games to date, takes on Temple in Philadelphia. Geneva meets Waynesburg in what may develop into the most important Tri-State Conference clash of the season at Beaver Falls, and Wash-Jeff is in Cincinnati for a setto with Xavier, the same eleven that gave Tech such a ball game last week.

LOCAL HURLER STARS

Walter Ammons, of 2051 Veronica street, Troy Hill, a pitcher well known in local sandlot baseball circles, turned in 22 victories for the baseball team of Forest Army Company 320, at Kinzua, Pa., during the season just closed. He suffered three defects and participated in one tie game.

Carnegie Tech Football Coach. All-American Quarterback, 1928.

The Notre Dame football players must have received a good laugh when they read Hunk Anderson's story in the papers this week in which he predicted that Carnegie Tech would beat Notre Dame at the Stadium tomorrow. Using psychology is being done by coaches every day in an attempt to stir the emotions of their players, but for Anderson to make Carnegie the favorite in tomorrow's game is so fantastic that it is funny.

Carnegie's record to date is not exactly what any ordinary team, least of all Notre Dame, would get excited about. We managed to beat Temple in the opening game of the season by throwing the ball around. Last week, we were fortunate in nosing out a fourth-quarter 3-to-0 victory over Xavier, a small team in Cincinnati. We have been accused of holding back in the Xavier game. A team which is purposely holding back doesn't play its regulars the entire game. Neither does it wait until the last quarter to score, and then have to depend on a 35-yard field goal for victory.

READY FOR FIGHT

Knowing this, Coach Anderson picks us to a beat Notre Dame team which by his own admission contains some of the finest material of recent years. What an imagination!

Until last season, none of the former Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame games has been a runaway for either team, and all have been hard-fought, interesting battles. The game last year was a 42-to-0 victory for the Irish, and was the only exception. Our players are well aware of the fact that tomorrow they face one of the strongest teams in the country, and are setting themselves to put up a strong fight.

It is our earnest desire to make a creditable showing and to give the South Benders some good opposition, but it is hardly fair for anyone to say that we should win.

I was interested in a headline on a story this week setting up Tech as a good "hunch bet" against Notre Dame. Reading on I discovered that hunches require no reasoning and the author very cleverly covered himself by saying that anyone who followed this hunch and didn't have a surplus of cash would end up in the poorhouse. Do you have those "hunch" dreams very often, Mr. Carver?

SPORT VIGNETTES

With a William Shakespeare on its squad, Notre Dame naturally expects to bring home the Bacon in its game with Carnegie Tech here tomorrow . . . The boys around town are all on edge for the Variety Club dinner at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow night, an annual blue ribbon event which carries a $10 top . . . The Pitt team that beat the Navy so easily last Saturday should not have a great deal of trouble tomorrow beating a Minnesota team which has been held to a 6-6 tie by Indiana and a 7-7 tie by Purdue in its last two starts, after beating South Dakota State, 19-6, in its opener.

Newark (N. J.) promoters have promised the winner of the Ted Yarosz-Young Terry fight there next Wednesday night a crack at Marcel Thil, the N. B. A. middleweight champion, who will make his American debut in January. . . . Jack Scarry, the swimming coach at the Carnegie Library in Homestead, has invented a device to do away with the toss of the referee on a center ball in basketball. . . . It was demonstrated at his clinic last night.

Three years ago Primo Carnera won a decision over Paulino Uzcudun in Barcelona and began to be considered a championship threat. . . . Next Sunday afternoon, in his first defense of the crown, Primo meets Uzcudun again, this time for 15 rounds in Rome, Italy. . . . James (Red) Mason says in a letter from Chicago that he has lost upwards of $8,000 betting on Jack Sharkey, dating from his losing fight with Jack Dempsey and culminating in his recent defeats by King Levinsky and Tommy Loughran.

Dex Very and Cal Bolster, local officials, will be the referee and field judge, respectively, of the Penn-Dartmouth football game in Philadelphia tomorrow. . . . Mose Butch has been signed for bouts with Pee Wee Weghorn at Wheeling next Monday night and with Tony Leone at Dover, O., next Thursday.—HARRY KECK.

PITT LINEUP SET FOR MINNESOTA BATTLE

HOWDY O'DELL MAY CAPTAIN PANTHERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 20.—With his starting lineup for the game against Minnesota tomorrow definitely set, Coach Jock Sutherland brought his Golden Panthers of Pitt to town this morning. The Panther squad arrived here from Chicago, where it spent yesterday viewing the Century of Progress Exposition and drilling on Stagg Field, home of the University of Chicago.

Coach Sutherland planned a light workout for this afternoon in Memorial Stadium, home of the Gophers. Yesterday, a threat of rain forced the Pitt mentor to resurrect some of his wet weather plays, but weather indications today pointed to a dry field for tomorrow. A crowd of at least 30,000 is expected to view tomorrow's clash, double the number that saw Minnesota and Purdue play a week ago.

O'DELL MAY LEAD

While Sutherland remained noncommittal, those close to him believed that the captaincy for tomorrow's big intersectional game would go to young Howdie O'Dell, so far this year the inspiration of the squad. His being a Westerner helps in this belief.

GOPHERS HOPEFUL

Minnesota optimism has the analysts stumped.

Here is a green football team, featuring six starting sophomores and only one senior, that expected to stop Purdue and did last week and that now is ready to talk back to a strong Eastern team.

Horses Made Addicts By Drugging Practice

CHAPTER X—Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Before the drugging of horses became almost a universal practice among owners and trainers of the cheaper class of animals, it was a custom for one owner to put in a claim for an animal which had been performing well for another owner, and then add to his increment with the winnings of the new member of his stable, obtained at a bargain price.

But the claiming system has lost favor. Too many horsemen learned that a runner was useless to them unless they had the "prescription" that would make the horse step to frenzied limits.

If Horseman No. 1 in these days notices that Horseman No. 2 has entered an animal worth about $2,500 in a $1,000 race, he rarely puts in a claim, even though the horse sizes up as a bargain. The reason is this:

Must Know Horse

Horseman No. 1 realizes that he does not know how much of this and how much of that "medicine" to use to make the animal run his wildest best. If he secures the horse, without the prescription, his investment usually is bad. He must do plenty of experimenting with different narcotics in different dosages before he strikes the correct formula—if ever.

The horse thus costs him money for upkeep, is worthless as a racing tool and the man usually welcomes the act when some other owner—often the original—claims the animal back from him.

One horse, a consistent winner for a certain owner, was claimed at different times by four other owners—and reclaimed by the original—without ever winning for the foreign owners, even though he ran to repeated victories whenever raced in the colors of the man who apparently knew the proper ingredients for the "speed tonic."

Dose Fails to Work

One of the agents reporting to Ralph Oyler, of the Federal Narcotic Squad, said:

"They 'hit' (doped) a horse (he mentioned its name) this afternoon and we understand they bet on him heavily. The odds showed plenty of money action. The horse was off slowly and the form chart will say he 'never improved his position.' That seems due to the fact that the 'shot' was poorly timed. It didn't affect the horse until after the race while they were walking him around. He began to sweat, his eyes became wild-looking, he lost all appearance of having animal intelligence, and began tearing around like something gone crazy.

"The trainer was cussing and saying something about too light a dose. He was raving over the money that was lost in one breath and vowing to win it back and plenty more the next time the horse ran. He was telling two men standing alongside that he wouldn't miscalculate the dose the next time."

Filly Almost Killed

Apparently he didn't. The horse ran three days later, jumped quickly to the front and won by several lengths. After the finish line was crossed, the frenzied horse wanted to keep on running to get away from the maddening action of the narcotic, and was checked down by the jockey only with difficulty after he had run nearly a half-mile beyond the prescribed distance.

The other agent said:

"Looked as if they were going to kill a 2-year-old filly yesterday. Baby racers rarely are drugged. But the trainer of this one was an exception. An hour before the race, his Negro stableman pulled open the filly's mouth and the trainer sprayed in a solution which he had mixed in the stall.

"I don't know what is supposed to be the dose for immature 2-year-olds, but, whatever it is, they must have given this little racer too much. She was highly nervous in the paddock, buck-jumped on the way to the starting line and nearly went crazy at the post. There was quite a delay and it seemed that the effect of the stuff wore off before the barrier was lifted. Anyway, this little thing leaped into action, ran with the speed of a rifle bullet for about a quarter of a mile, then slowed down and practically staggered the rest of the way.

'Drug Store Horse'

"They gave her a big dose of what looked like olive oil as soon as they got her back to the barn, but it was more than an hour before they could quiet her.

"Then she seemed to collapse and they put her into the stall. She was alive the next morning, but her eyes were half-glazed, her head drooped and she had difficulty standing up."

Oyler noticed among the reports the name of a horse which had been reported "doctored" at other tracks. He explained:

"This is the kind that is called a 'drug store horse.' Been doped so often that he cannot run without it. There are many like him. Horses become addicts like humans. The narcotic practically ruins them physically and the only time they can run at anywhere near their former normal speed is when they have been given an extra-heavy dose.

Engineer 'Cleanups'

"These animals are the real racing tools. They are run quite a few times without any doctoring and finish far behind. The betting public decides that the horse has lost its speed and no longer bets on it. That makes for long odds against the animal in each new start. When the trainer or owner is ready for a 'cleanup' he bets heavily away from the track, gives the horse plenty of 'doctoring' and, unless that horse meets a 'drug store' companion full of more electrifying 'hop,' he usually runs to victory."

Sport of kings.

To improve the breed of horses!

MICKEY WALKER LAUDS GREB AS FIGHTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Mickey Walker, the Toy Bulldog from New Jersey, may be getting old as fighters go. Ring lights have glared down on him as welterweight champion, middleweight king, heavyweight title contender.

The bright lights of other places have shone on him just as long, leaving him an expert both in the ways of the ring and the wayward. He fights Maxie Rosenbloom, who likewise has achieved some fame in both directions, for the light-heavyweight title in Madison Square Garden, November 3.

Now Mickey is willing to concede Rosenbloom's reputation as a prize-fighter. A champion, naturally, stands for progress among the cauliflowers. But, as a flowering bloom among the primroses, Rosenbloom, he insists, cannot qualify.

THERE WAS A MAN!

"Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh—there was a man."

Mickey sighed reverently as he said it.

"I fought him 15 of the toughest rounds anyone ever lived through in the Polo Grounds in 1925, I thought I won, but they gave him the decision, and, when it was over, I headed for Broadway and a lobster shop I knew. I was all bunged up.

"In walked Greb as soon as I was settled, and he had a girl with him. He insisted that I join his party. Then, when we were through, he wanted to go dancing. I had to go along. Either that or fight him all over again.

"We must have danced for hours. In fact, we danced so long Harry's girl disappeared. Finally it was getting light and we stumbled out into the morning air.

"All of a sudden, Harry grabbed me by the back of the neck. Up to that time we hadn't even mentioned the fight.

"'Just to show you I can lick you any time, anywhere, I'm going to give you another walloping right now,' he said. Before I could even argue, he squared off and made a rush for me.

COP BUTTS IN

"I stepped back and let him have a left hook on the chin as he came in, and he staggered some, but came right back winging both hands. In a second we were all over the street. A cop came running down the sidewalk, swinging his night stick. I saw him lift it high over his head.

"'Hey,' I yell at him. 'I'm Mickey Walker and that's Harry Greb. We're just kidding a little. Don't hit us.'

"Well, there's the morning newspapers full of the fight we'd had the night before in the ball park, and of all the people in New York who hadn't heard about it we have to pick one, this policeman. He didn't hit us, but he bundled us off the block. Before Harry could get at him, I shoved him into a cab and told the driver to take him home.

"I was just getting into bed when the phone rang.

"'Mickey,' says Greb at the other end, 'I'm sorry for what I just did, but don't forget I can always lick you.'

"I guess maybe he could, at that. But this Rosenbloom . . . pay no attention. He doesn't either smoke or drink."

YOU CAN'T JUDGE Bayuk "Phillies" BY ANY 5c CIGAR

Bayuk "Phillies" was not made to sell for 5 cents. It was made to give smokers the best 10c cigar value in America—and they recognized it as such for years. It was the largest-selling 10c brand.

Today — Bayuk "Phillies" gives smokers this same 10c value for 5c. The same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper . . the same fine Domestic and Havana long-filler. Bayuk guarantees it.

This explains why Bayuk "Phillies"—in nine months at 5c—has become the largest-selling cigar in America at any price.

Remember . . . Bayuk "Phillies" is NOT a 5c cigar. It's a proven 10c cigar value now selling for 5c.

Your dealer will tell you that more men like Bayuk "Phillies" than any cigar he sells. We tell you that never in history has a cigar so completely met the taste demands of experienced smokers.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (Familiarly known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine Imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER X.

This wasn't the bald-headed, elderly Mr. Hiram whom Mrs. Judson had depicted!

Nollie's heart missed a beat as he leaned over and whispered to her: "Mr. Hiram asked me to come and take his place. He didn't feel very well. I drove him home. We were both guests at the same dinner party."

"Yes-es?"—faintly.

"And you—" —with a smile that showed white, even teeth in a sunburned face—"you are Mrs. Judson?"

She started to stammer out an explanation of the situation but a violent "shush, shush!" from the rear froze the words on her lips.

"We'll talk later," whispered the newcomer cheerily, again with that heart-warming grin of his.

Nollie gave an apologetic smile at him, then turned her face to the stage.

But she was acutely conscious of the nearness of this handsome, gentlemanly youth.

NOLLIE EXCITED

In that first quick, comprehensive glimpse she'd had of him, she'd seen that his eyes were a striking gray under his black and smoothed back hair. His head was finely set upon his shoulders. It was a handsome, clever head, beautifully sculptured.

And he was tall. She'd noticed that, as he came in. He moved easily, effortlessly, with a gay sort of sparkle about him as though life had always been good to him.

Oh! try to think about the play. Listen to the lines, and don't be excited like a silly schoolgirl about the nearness of him!

He had settled himself comfortably in his seat and his arm touched hers for a second as it rested on the elbow.

He removed his arm immediately. But from that point of contact a queer thrill had rushed through the girl.

The young man thought: "She's quite a beauty. Not a bit like the description of her I've heard."

At the first joke they mutually heard, they turned and laughed at each other.

YOUNG MAN PLEASED

Oh! he was handsome. Such a winning smile he had! Such a sunburned face, and a humorous mouth, and—she was sure of it—a kind way with him . . .

But he wasn't of her world, she told herself. She was nothing but a little dressed-up Cinderella out for the evening . . .

"Let's go out and have a cigaret, shall we, Mrs. Judson?"

She rose, and as she did so, her elegant chiffon wrap with its high fur collar and its La France rose fell back from one shoulder.

He adjusted it at once, with a proprietary air. She was quite lovely ,and Tony O'Brien was an Irishman, and he was impressed and touched by the fragile beauty of this girl.

"Say, I'm a lucky divvil to have this unexpected pleasure, Mrs. Judson," he began, the moment they were in the aisle and he had fallen into step with her.

"Oh, not at all. It's a—a new experience for me—I'm taking Mrs. Judson's place—a substitute like you are!"

But he didn't catch the last few words. People were talking noisily in the house. There was a loud buzz of voices, and an orchestra had begun playing.

He was looking at Nollie's lips, it is true. He was thinking how pretty they were . . . how—what was the word?—"dewy?" But he didn't hear what she was trying to explain to him.

Sweet she was! The blue of her eyes was like the blue of her dress and cloak—like a little bit of heaven!

He was impressionable, and he loved beauty, did young Tony O'Brien.

They got out to the lobby.

"I didn't catch your name?" said Nollie shyly.

"It's Irish, like myself. Everyone calls me Tony, but—the saints preserve me!—my real name is Patrick Joseph O'Brien."

He rolled his "r's" comically as he said this, and his fine eyes, too. They were very handsome, comehitherish sort of eyes. With a fall of the heart, Nollie realized that lots of other women must have felt as she did when they saw those Irish eyes—that this young man must have had much encouragement and long practice with her own sex!

She tried to be cool and collected . . .

It had a monogram upon it.

He was rich? Of course. That easy air. The well-cut clothes that looked as though he'd been poured into them, somehow . . . such a fit they had. His nice manners.

"Let's take a turn in the street. Too many chaps in here I know, and next thing they'll be trying to steal you from me."

There was nothing impertinent in the way he uttered this. Nor in the admiring glances he cast on her.

Reflected in a wall mirror, Nollie saw herself, and knew that never in all her life—and never again—had she looked lovelier.

That knowledge gave her poise. She laughed coquettishly, as to the manner born, let Tony slip his hand under her arm and pilot her out through the glass doors to the sidewalk.

"Did you enjoy the first act? I thought it was quite good," she contrived to remark. How could he guess this was the first time she'd ever been in a New York theater?

"To tell the truth I don't remember a word of what it was all about—"

"You weren't listening?"

"Yes. But it meant nothing, really, for my eyes kept . . . er . . . wandering!"

"That's peculiar." She smiled up at him. How tall he was! She didn't come much above his collar . . .

Tony O'Brien looked down at her. "Not funny at all when a man's got the prettiest girl in the world sitting right next to him," he said solemnly.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, pretty and ambitious, longs to escape the unhappy life she leads with her aunt and uncle in the small town of Yapahunk. She wins a $50 newspaper prize and goes to New York. After three days of fruitless search for a position, Nollie's funds become depleted. Exhausted, she faints on the street and later finds herself in a tawdry house, where a woman called "Daffy" tells Nollie she could make "easy" money. One of Daffy's friends makes advances to Nollie. She strikes him and flees from the house in fear. Nollie secures a position as public stenographer in an exclusive hotel. Mrs. Virginia Judson, a wealthy widow, takes an interest in her. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to model some of her gorgeous gowns for her. Later while she is preparing to sail for Europe, she asks Nollie to substitute for her at a theater party. Instead of the elderly man she expected, a handsome young man enters the theater and sits next to Nollie.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Isn't it true that most of the things you worry about never come [illegible]?

[illegible] ination pictures disa[illegible] certain kind that does [illegible] ize that way.

An auto[illegible] who has driven a car for 12 years says he never passes another car without the thought "suppose a wheel should come off."

He admits that he never enjoys a moment of driving and he has never had the experience he dreads so much.

What is your pet worry?

Perhaps you have several that are equally absurd.

If you have done what you can to forestall any of the unfortunate things you feel might happen to you, what is the use in worrying about them.

Most troubles are magnified from afar.

Why not cultivate the feeling of security?

Provide protection for your loved ones and sickness and accident protection for yourself and you are insured against whatever might happen.

What will happen is bound to happen—you can't stop it, but at least you can minimize the effects of disaster and having done that, stop worrying.

BOSTONIANS READING THE STAMP ACT (1765)

Continuous impositions of restrictions by the British upon the American colonies made the colonists conscious of the necessity of defending their liberties, resulting in the Revolutionary War. One bitterly resented imposition was the Stamp Act. It levied a tax of one cent to 20 shillings on each commercial or legal document, pamphlet or newspaper. Violators were to be tried in the Admiralty courts without a jury. Patrick Henry declaimed against it. Col. Barre, of the British Commons, sided with the colonists, "The Sons of Liberty." (U. S. History)

ROMANS CAPTURING CORINTH (146 B. C.)

The same year the Romans destroyed Carthage and established a Roman province in North Africa, they also became masters over Greece by taking Corinth, the beautiful city and center of the Achaean league. Also Central and Southern Greece became a Roman province. With highest skill the artist pictures the despairing Greek women, beseeching their gods in vain to avert the horrors of slavery, approaching with the victorious legionnaires. (World History)

HYDROGENATION OF OILS

Vegetable oils (cottonseed, corn, soya, peanut) are "hardened" by addition of less than 1% hydrogen (hydrogenation). Fish and whale oils give hard soap by similar process. Hydrogenation consists in adding nickel (or some other metal) salt to the oil, heating it and introducing hydrogen. The salt breaks down, giving finely distributed metal acting as catalyst, promoting the combination of oil and hydrogen. For edible products the catalyst is filtered and washed from the molten mass. Hardened vegetable oils are excellent for pastry baking. Above: A simple hydrogenator. The oil with the nickel salt is introduced at top; hydrogen blown in at bottom; steam coils heat and power driven paddles agitate the mixture. (Chemistry)

THE AUTOMOBILE CLUTCH (TRANSPORTATION)

The clutch is a mechanism comprising driving and driven parts held together by friction created by spring pressure. Relieving the pressure, the friction ceases and the parts become independent. The automobile clutch disengages the engine from the power-transmitting parts of the car for starting the engine or shifting the gears. It is also needed to engage them progressively and not suddenly.

Above: The simplest clutch, cone type. Engine crankshaft A has flywheel F, conical inside (B); cone C, lined outside with leather, asbestos fabric, etc., fits into B; M hub slides on bushing F but turns together with it on A. M slides also on transmission shaft E with which it is connected by keys, so that C, M, F turn together with E.

CHEERFUL HELP CAUSES HAPPINESS

Dick was hurt playing. Mother dressed his bruises and for the first time he felt how rough her hands were. Suddenly he realized how hard mother works even when everyone else is enjoying a good time. "Could I help, Mom?" Dick asked his surprised mother next day. "I thought," she said, "you wanted to go fishing; it's nice outside; you'd better run along." "How could I enjoy it," he answered, "knowing you work so hard for me! . . . I'd better start to beat the rugs." And cheerfully he waved the gang away. (Character Building.)

HARROWS (GEN. SCIENCE)

The harrow is a very important agricultural implement. It is used mostly after plowing to level ground, crush clods, stir soil, tear out weeds and cover seed.

Left: The spike-tooth harrow. The spikes are fastened to bars to make up sections. Several sections can be used together, according to the available power.

Above: The disc harrow. It is used also before plowing to cut vegetable matter and pulverize soil. The discs are in two groups, six inches apart, each group throwing the soil in opposite directions.

It Gives Us the Shivers

Decapitation is again popular in Europe and it gives us a cockroachy feeling way up on the neck.

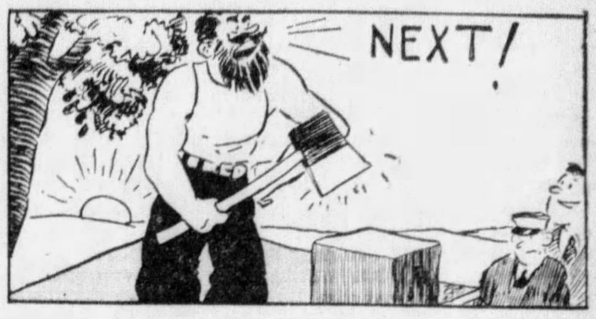
It is supposed to discourage crime. But we know of easier ways of getting rid of a headache.

The headsman wears formal evening clothes, high silk hat, patent leather shoes and carries a charming bouquet of axes.

While conceding that the lily is the ultimate corsage of the criminal we claim that clipping a man in two is carrying the jigsaw craze too far.

The administration of the supreme law is never an auspicious and congratulatory occasion. It is educational without being amusing. Marie Antoinette never enjoyed her last basket party.

Over here we are much more kindly and considerate. We seat the lad in a chair, put a pound of butter in his lap and see that he fries evenly all around. Or, we stand them on trapdoors and they become very ornamental tassels on the ends of ropes. One of our better class of states gives the culprit the choice of the rope or shooting. No matter which way he votes he is elected.



Still another commonwealth parks the object of its legal solicitation in a one-passenger boiler and sprays him with a aromatic garnishing of vaporized poison. It is supposed to be humane, civilized and absolutely reliable if you have moths in your clothing. But up-to-date no one has named a baby after it. The guest of honor never leaves the table.

We may well shiver at the thought of a well-dressed headsman doing his Australian wood chopping act on a rear collarbutton. We imagine that he regulates his technique by the size of the neckband. There is a swish through the air and a last long nod in the affirmative.

Dr. Guillotine would have been far better off if he had forgotten where he left his bag. The jolly doctor eventually poked his own head in the wolf trap and lost his adenoids to history, eternity and a freshly honed index filing system.

Swinging an axe on a man's neck is slicing it too thick. It is bad manners, careless housekeeping and no way to dovetail with the great beyond. If we have to go there and get our choice we prefer to recline on a shady lawn and be kicked into the fathomless future by clover-maddened grasshoppers.

Welcome Reassurance

President Roosevelt Lets the World Know We Are Not Interested in European Politics.

President Roosevelt has reaffirmed traditional American policy regarding the reduction and limitation of armaments with a candor and clarity that will gratify the people of the United States and put the world on notice.

Speaking through his representative at the Geneva Conference on Armaments, Norman H. Davis, Mr. Roosevelt makes it clear that "we are in no way politically aligned with any European power," mendacious reports from Paris and London and other Old World capitals to the contrary notwithstanding.

"We are not interested in the political element or any purely European aspect of the picture.

"Such unity of purpose as has existed has been entirely on world disarmament matters.

"Whether or not conditions are favorable to continue the present disarmament effort, is now a question for Europe, not the United States, to decide. During this week there will be consultations between the capitals of Europe. We do not wish to take an active part in these, as their implications are purely political."

This is timely and welcome reassurance that France and Great Britain are not going to get the assistance of the United States in their effort to discipline Germany and that Germany is not going to get the assistance of the United States in her effort to discipline France.

Unless the powers of the Old World can forego their political quarrels long enough to discuss the reduction and limitation of armaments on the same basis that these discussions were initiated between those powers and the United States, the Geneva Conference no longer serves any useful American purpose.

It is fortunate for the Roosevelt administration that events in Europe have made an opportunity for the President to reaffirm at this time the adherence of his administration to traditional American principles as applied to armaments.

Any departure from these principles would have shocked the American people, who are more convinced today than ever that George Washington was everlastingly right when he declared:

"The rule of conduct for us, in regard to foreign nations, is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible."

Abolish Child Labor

Gov. Pinchot Should Include Ratification of the Amendment in His Legislative Program.

The Legislature neglected an important duty at its last session when it failed to pass on the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution abolishing child labor.

Gov. Pinchot should include ratification of the amendment in his program for the special session. He will find good reasons for such action in the appeal that Gov. Lehman addressed to the New York Legislature at a recent special session. Gov. Lehman said:

"According to the last federal census, there were over 2,000,000 child workers in the United States, of whom more than 1,000,000 were engaged in positions other than on farms.

"Recently it has become more clear that one of the methods of relieving unemployment and distributing work is to restrict the employment of children.

"The National Recovery Administration has just instituted codes, which in large part prevent child labor.

"I believe it to be a fitting time for the Legislature of the State of New York to ratify the child labor amendment and thereby to add impetus toward the consummation in the near future of the plan to incorporate in the Federal Constitution the power to regulate nationally the employment of children in industry."

Pennsylvania has not been as progressive in respect to the abolition of child labor as it should have been. There have been discreditable revelations during the present year as to the employment of children in Pennsylvania sweatshops.

We should hasten to show our disapproval, and ratification of the child labor amendment offers an emphatic way of doing so.

Why Discriminate?

The State Supervision Given to Small Anthracite Mines Should Be Extended to Bituminous Mines.

Secretary Walter H. Glasgow, of the Department of Mines, reports that because of the numerous accidents occurring in small soft coal mines he had a survey made of the entire bituminous field early this year. It revealed that there are at least 900 small mines in Pennsylvania, employing more than two and less than 10 men, and not subject, therefore, to the state inspection required of the larger mines.

The Legislature at its recent session took cognizance of a similar situation in the anthracite field by making the anthracite mining law applicable to all mines employing five or [illegible] and requiring the mine inspectors to give general [illegible] all mines employing more than two men.

The workers in small soft coal mines are also entitled to the protection of state inspection and supervision.

On Their Good Behavior

A Remarkable Decrease in Commitments to Reform Schools Is Reported.

We commented a few days ago on the extraordinary and inexplicable decrease that has occurred in Pittsburgh's mortality rate since 1929.

Research workers for the State Department of Welfare call attention to another decrease no less noteworthy and also gratifying. Since 1928, they state, there has been a steady drop in the rate of commitments to the reform school at Morganza and other Pennsylvania institutions for juvenile delinquents. During the five preceding years there had been a steady increase in these commitments.

Various suggestions are made as to the cause for the improvement. Unemployed fathers, staying at home, have supervised their children's conduct more carefully, is one suggestion. "Less money to spend on joyrides," is another.

Like the decrease in deaths, the subject is worthy of study, because the explanation may indicate how the improvement can be retained, or even carried further, after times again become normal.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Thoughts while strolling: Wonder if they have back-yard picnics any more? Italians sporting Balbo chin whiskers. Merle Crowell and Lee Brown bear a resemblance. No one sings "Home on the Range" on the radio like John Charles Thomas. Or talks so well as Dr. Fosdick.

Sumner Blossom, a Kansas City (Mo.) boy, who made good in the city. Few turn out so much readable copy as Arthur Brisbane. Someone tells me he once dictated an essay to a stenographer while sliding down a Kansas City chute-the-chutes. Only the best restaurants serve tripe in New York.

One-word description of Eddie Eagan—chivalric. George Horace Lorimer's son Burford. A tough word to spell properly—obbligato. What's become of Ann Pennington? Maybe it's the strenuous diet that makes the modern girl speak so softly. Hungry!

Florence Tempest and her Boston. Difficult to imagine the vivacious Mrs. Pat Campbell is 70. One of my favorite people—Jack Pulaski. Lenore Ulric still walks with that Lulu Belle glide. Houston's young white-haired mayor—Oscar Holcombe. Russel Crouse and Corey Ford.

Shelia Barrett, the mimic, always looks as though she's about to bust out crying. O. Soglow is the only artist who looks like his drawings. Somehow I've always wanted to introduce Childe Hassam to Ben Ali Haggin. And Walter Pitkin to Chalter Riffin. My Sealyham must have inspired "Lazy Bones."

Those black short-haired wolf-sized dogs with small, sharp-pointed ears are dobermann-pincers. Popular in Germany, the first was brought to America by Cole Porter, song writer and playwright. Park avenue is now giving them a tumble. Some, touched with a dark tan, are said to be the most pronounced one-man dogs. Hitler owns five.

Fred C. Kelly used to boast of his one-man dog, an Airedale. The animal lived with the writer on his farm near Peninsula, O., and would go nowhere without ihs master. Once he brought him to New York. The big city confused him or something, for he would follow anybody that called except Kelly, at whom he snapped constantly.

His lady fair was listening in and he explained how certain words and certain inflections would have a meaning all their own for her. I spent hours fashioning them and they sound pretty gosh-awful, especially when my wife reads them to company. But then I regarded it as the flowering of genius.

Economy has given window dressing a jewel box sparkle along the de luxe shopping centers. Large display windows have a plushed box background with a small opening for display of a single article. An evening slipper, a purse, etc. The solitary effort produces a grandiose effect at one-twentieth the ordinary cost.

Windows that so far as I can recall, never change, are Tiffany's. Each for years displayed only a winged Mercury in bronze. I always look the other way in passing, just to be snooty, too.

A little-patronized jeweler in our town unconsciously carried out the Tiffany idea. All my remembering years his single window held an 8-day clock with a pendulum on top of the clock swung from one upright bar to the other, winding neatly around. I used to be often late from Mrs. Hanson's with the evening milk watching. And to this day I'd like to own that clock.

I never see the old burlesquer, Hap Ward, without a smile over, to me, his grandest story. Old, but ever amusing. It concerns the colored fellow trapped one midnight in a chicken coop. The owner with his shotgun, after several futile calls, declared that if whoever it was didn't come out he'd shoot. A thin twittering whine finally replied: "Ain't no one in here 'cept us little chickens!"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Is Our Excitement Over Football Idiotic?

Accuse me of packing a grouch.

In short, do or say what you darn please.

BUT I STILL INSIST THAT OUR ANNUAL EXCITEMENT OVER FOOTBALL IS ABSOLUTELY IDIOTIC; AND THAT COLLEGE FOOTBALL, IN THE FACE OF OUR NATIONAL EMERGENCY, IS A DOWNRIGHT DISGRACE.

Now get me right. I believe in sports. I think football is a swell thing. I wouldn't give shucks for a High School youngster who didn't go around in a pig-skin daze from September 1 to January 1.

BUT THE ANNUAL SIGHT OF MILLIONS OF MATURE AMERICAN MEN AND WOMEN GOING GA-GA OVER FOOTBALL, TO THE EXCLUSION OF EVERY OTHER INTEREST, MAKES ME WISH I'D BEEN BORN A ZULU.

Particularly, when I have daily tons of evidence that most of those men and women know practically nothing about what is happening in their world—and care less.

Am I getting anywhere with this line of talk? No, dearie, I am not. This, as I well know, is a one-gal fight against a world gone rah-rah. But what of that? It's a swell war, even if I am the only one in it. So just try and stop me!

Here we are, with the heavens falling about our ears, and every last one of us needing to get wised up and get busy. Where will we be sleeping this time next year? What will we be eating? Will there still be a place called America on the map? Search us! We don't know. And we don't care!

FOR WE'RE OFF TO FOOTBALL!

GOOD-GOODY-GOOD! WE'VE GOT A TICKET TO THE GAME!

Just a Big Bunch of Cut-Ups, that's what we are. And what a silly old Fussbudget you are to crab about it.

So, naturally, we're all in sympathy with the Kampus Kiddies. All, this is, except me. I insist on holding out. And with yells I demand to know—

WHY SHOULD OUR YOUNGSTERS GO ON BEING KIDDIES AFTER THEY GET ON THE CAMPUS? WHY, WITH MONEY AS TIGHT AS IT IS, SHOULD YOU AND I GO ON SPENDING BILLIONS SO THAT BOBBIE CAN MAKE A MARVELOUS TOUCHDOWN, AND BESSIE LOOK PERFECTLY RAVISHING IN THE ROOTING SECTION?

Would I deprive our children of their innocent fun? You can just bet I would! This, let me state, ladies and gents—in case you haven't heard the news already—is no time for innocent Fun. This is a time for little boys and girls to dry off behind the ears and Learn What It's All About—the way the youngsters do across the water.

Ask any English undergrad about the Status Quo and he'll come back with conversation that would make the average Congressman's oration sound like a Mother Goose rhyme. Moreover, he will be excited about the facts he gives you. He will have taken sides. He will have pet theories. Although not yet of age, he will be as interested in what is happening to his country as Ramsay MacDonald himself. Yet English youngsters like, and have, sports. But they also manage to grow up between kick-offs.

Now try to engage the average American college youngster in a serious conversation any time during the next three months. Get him—just TRY to get him—to discuss Collective Bargaining with you. Or the pros and cons of deflating or inflating the American dollar. He's going to school on the American dollar.

He's eating on it, dressing on it, depending for his future upon it—and you and I are digging it up. But what does all that mean to him?

IT MEANS JUST ONE-THIRD THE PRICE OF A TICKET TO "THE GAME!"

And what a dumb cluck you are to expect it to mean anything else!

Now ain't that somethin' for a Great, Big, Wise, Wonderful, Modern Nation to be proud of? Or is it? What's YOUR vote?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Nature Loads the Dice

All of this analytic discussion over the respective "standards" of men and women, in matters of love and marriage, may be highly diverting; but it is a waste of time and good black ink. Because Old Dame Nature settled the whole quarrel 'way back before the Monolithic Age, when the first dinosaur met his mate.

"Woman has nothing to gain by adopting man's standards," writes a young woman from Texas. "She should be an inspiration for the single standard; but that standard should be her own high standard—not man's."

On the other hand, Miss Sheilah Graham, that startling young writer from England says, "I would not divorce a man I loved, simply because he had affairs with other women." And she goes on to prove that a man may be dead in love with his wife, and at the same time quite alive to the charms of other women.

* * *

And THAT is just where Old Lady Nature loaded the dice!

A Man MAY adore his wife, even while he is holding another woman in his arms. But no WOMAN can double-cross a man, so long as she honestly loves him. She can't even SEE another man.

A woman has a single-track mind and a one-way heart; and two men can't pass each other in her affections. Where a gal coyly declares that she can't decide which of two men she's in love with, she is NOT in love with either of them. She's in love with herself. Or with love. Or with her own popularity.

* * *

A man's heart, on the other hand, appears to be much more spacious. While there may be a sacred spot in it reserved for the woman he loves, there is plenty of parking space for any little temporary interest.

* * *

Nevertheless, as long as one woman really INTERESTS a man, he finds no time and has no eyes for any other woman. It is a man's INTEREST, not his love, that a woman finds it hardest to hold.

Of course, nobody (except those who are still back in the dark ages with the horse-hair sofa and the embroidered lambrequin) believes that the double standard is "right." But if there is going to be a single standard it is Woman who will have to set the standard.

Lawyers and Judges

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

Former Secretary of State.

IT BECOMES plainer every day that there is a deep stirring of public opinion throughout the United States against the domination of our legal system by politics.

The words of the United States Attorney General addressed to the American Bar Association calling upon lawyers to "mend their ways," and his warning to the bar associations of the country to "clean up," do not stand alone.

From widely scattered points and through diverse channels of expression the demand of the American people becomes increasingly vocal and insistent that the independence of the judiciary shall be rescued from political influence and control and that the bar associations of the country shall show themselves capable of weeding out unworthy members of the profession and keeping out unworthy applicants for admission.

"It is futile to make war upon crime in the United States, as the government is doing, without attacking the enemy's base. Crime in the United States has its base in the legal profession. Everybody knows this. Jurists know it. Reputable lawyers know it. The people know it. So do criminals know it. They have immensely strengthened themselves by establishing contact with the law. That gulf which should separate the underworld and the world of law and order was long ago bridged by this alliance in almost every American city."

THIS IS TRUE. IT IS DISGRACEFUL. IT CANNOT BE TOLERATED.

How different a picture is presented as one surveys the bar in England, where the LAW IS STILL A PROFESSION and where the members of the JUDICIARY ARE IN TRUTH JUDGES.

THE bar of the British Empire consists of about 3,000 members, a self-governing body organized on the strictest trade union principles. It is sometimes even referred to as the most perfect trade union in the world.

There is no appeal from a decision of its committee. Members are admitted exactly as to a union. The four Inns of Court have a Council of Legal Education.

First, one must be admitted as a student (actually an apprentice). The educational qualification alone is not sufficient. He must be vouched for by two members of the bar as a "fit and proper person" to be admitted, even as a student. His record is looked into, before he is permitted to enter upon the study of the law. It must be clear of even a scintilla of a shady transaction. This all important scrutiny is not postponed, as with us, until the law schools discharge their thousands in an avalanche of half-baked material upon the helpless and overwhelmed "character committees" and bar examiners.

The necessary recommendation is not always obtainable. At the end of three years he can apply to be called to the bar. On this occasion he needs the recommendation of two Benchers (members of the governing body) as to fitness. Without this recommendation all his previous efforts count for nothing. There is no appeal from the decision of the Benchers. The tradition of high probity is very strong. The courts have nothing to do with admissions or disbarments.

WE ARE quoting freely from a most interesting article published in the State Bar Journal of California, written by R. M. Estcourt, Esq., of the Oakland bar, who, it appears, is also a member of the English bar.

No mere attorney can hold judicial office in England. The bar, i. e., the barristers who have been "called to the bar," monopolize all judicial appointments.

"The judge," says Mr. Estcourt, "is intellectually and legally head and shoulders taller than any pleader in his court. An English superior judge has all the case law at his fingertips. He never needs to ask pleaders to submit briefs. Also he never loses his temper. If it is desired to appeal, notice is given there and then, and the judge complies with the request 'to make a note' of the point. On the appeal these notes form the basis of the decision. Often a verdict is taken subject to the decision of the point. This saves a new trial and re-examination of witnesses."

AND as to the making of a judge—his selection and appointment—how different it is there, from the bi-partisan deals which have become so frequent and nauseating in many of our states where the party bosses, in a huddle from which the public interest is completely banned, agree upon a slate of servile political creatures, wholly without the training and character looked for in a judge.

"When a judge is required to be appointed," says Mr. Estcourt, "the event has usually been thoroughly discussed in legal and other journals; the public has already approved of certain prominent King's Counsel (barristers of mature age who have made their mark at the bar) on legal and ethical grounds. The Prime Minister consults with the Benchers, and two or three popular names are put before the King, who thus theoretically makes the appointment, and always one that he is sure will meet with public approval, i. e., someone who has long ago earned public confidence."

THIS ideal of a judge—"someone who has long ago earned public confidence"—is pretty deeply lodged in the minds of all right thinking men. It should not be impossible of attainment under our own legal and political system. Whatever obstacles there are to its attainment should be brushed away.
